Coal Contract In Line With Pay Pattern, Truman Told

Economic Advisers Say Steel Prices Should Not Be Greatly Affected

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

The Council of Economic Advisers, it was learned yesterday, gave President Truman this report on John L. Lewis' new coal contract:

1. The wage increase is not far different from the pattern of pay boosts received by other unions this year.

2. It does not necessitate substantial increases in the price of steel and other products. In fact, the "sound" policy for the steel industry would be not to raise its prices at all.

The three-man council made its report to the President yesterday. Its chairman, Dr. Edwin G. Nourse, told reporters it would be discussed by the entire Cabinet at the White House today. It will probably be the basis for an economic report from the President to Congress.

Council's Thesis Restored

Beyond declaring that the report did take the new coal wage contract into consideration, Nourse did not comment on its contents.

But from other reliable sources it was learned that the report contains a restatement of the council's thesis of almost eight months ago. In December, the economists told Mr. Truman, and he told Congress in January that there was a danger of a slackening off of business activity. This was because consumer purchasing power, reduced by high prices, was not keeping pace with ability to produce.

The same situation is still true, the council's current report states. Because of too high prices, consumers' real buying power, their "disposable income," is below the point necessary to maintain stable business conditions. The difficiency, the report goes on to say, so far has been covered up, and does not manifest itself in slack or canceled orders and in growing unemployment, because of the present high level of foreign buying. In other words, exports are balancing the difference between what Americans are able to buy at home and what American industry can produce.

Coal Question Discussed

The report, it was learned, contains a thorough discussion of the effect of the new coal contract on the national economy. Although the wage agreement appears on its face to give the miners a 44½-cent-an-hour increase, the council does not figure it this way.

Instead, the three economists point out that the contract simply lops off a hangover of the nine-hour day. It brings mining operations back to the eight-hour day which other unions have achieved.

Then, in addition, the contract adds $1.20 a day to the take-home pay of the miner. But this is just 15 cents an hour, the same increase won by the big CIO unions earlier this year.

Those earlier "15-cent package"

Hard Coal Miners Get Lewis Pay Scale

John L. Lewis' union announced last night a completed agreement for the anthracite industry giving the 75,000 hard coal miners the same $1.20 per day wage increase the union has won for soft coal miners.

In addition, it said the new anthracite agreement provides the same increased tonnage levy—from 5 to 10 cents a ton—for the union's health and welfare fund.

Lewis, president of the UMW, announced that the hard coal pact had been agreed upon without even going through the formality of exercising a 30-day contract reopening. The hard coal industry and Lewis simply sat down and amended their existing contract to include the increased terms.

Agriculture Dept. Report

Disappointing Corn Crop Due To Prolong High Meat Prices

Bad Weather Hurts Area Harvests Less Than Other Regions'

600-Million-Bushel Drop From Last Year Below 10-Year Average

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

States near Washington suffered from bad weather this year less than other agricultural areas, yesterday's national crop report indicates.

Outside of heavy losses from late frosts to the fruit crops, particularly apples, most of crops in Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia met with favorable forecasts.

In this region, the report states acreage planted "is smaller than intended, but the acreage for harvest is expected to be about 3 per cent larger."

As for fruit, the report says "early May freezes reduced the crop prospect sharply. The July 1 condition indicated a production only 47 per cent of average, but 23 per cent larger than the record low 1945 crop.

"In Virginia, damage was heaviest in the Shenandoah Valley, especially in Augusta and Shenandoah Counties. Many of the well-

The expected bad news about the Nation's corn crop developed yesterday, when the Crop Reporting Service reported that as of July 1 the prospects were for only 2,612,809,000 bushels this year.

This compares with 3,287,927,000 bushels last year.

It is far below the three-billion-bushel goal set by the Government.

It also is far below the minimum of 2,850,000,000 bushels that Government statisticians said would be necessary to avoid forced curtailment in livestock production and prolonged high prices for meats.

It is even below the ten-year (1936-45) average of 2,639,102,000 grown without widespread advantages from present greater use of hybrid seed and greatly increased use of commerical fertilizers.

Officials hope that better growing weather since the report date

Senate Group Will Meet on Police Probe

District Committee To Decide Today on Parliamentary Tactics

The Senate District Committee meets today to decide on parliamentary tactics for its proposed investigation of Washington police.

Unanimous approval of the resolution seeking "a full and complete study and investigation" into law enforcement and police administrations was voted Wednesday by the committee. The action resulted from disclosures by The Washington Post that police were hiding crime complaints.

Second approval of the resolution is only a formality. After its introduction by three members, the measure was referred to the District Committee as would any bill bearing on matters concerning only the District.

However, it is expected that the executive session of the committee at 2 p. m. will decide if preliminary hearings are to be held.

Senator Joseph H. Ball (R., Minn.) said he wanted to invite Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett and District Commissioner John Russell Young to an early hearing.

These hearings, he said, would be preliminary to asking the Senate Rules Committee for $25,000 with which to conduct the "full and complete" investigation.

Under Senate procedure, any requests for committee expenses of more than $500 must be approved by the Rules Committee.

Members declared, however, that the decision on the preliminary hearings, would in no way bar a full scale investigation of the Metropolitan Police Department

Truman Gets Presidential Succession Bill

Immediate Effect Puts Speaker Martin As Next in Line

As soon as President Truman signs a bill passed by the House yesterday, Speaker of the House Joseph W. Martin, jr., Republican, will become "heir apparent" to the Presidency.

The House, by a vote of 365 to 11, passed the presidential succession law, changing the successor to Mr. Truman from the Secretary of State to the Speaker of the House, and then in order to the President pro-tempore of the Senate.

It was the second time in the Nation's history that the line of succession to the Presidency has been changed.

The law which makes a Republican next in line for his job, was passed at the request of President Truman, made in 1945 when Democrat Sam Rayburn of Texas was Speaker and repeated this year when the Republicans are in House control.

The new law provides that the line of succession shall be, after the death or disqualification of the President, the Vice President, then the Speaker of the House, the President pro-tem and then members of the Cabinet in the order in which their departments were established.

It further provides, however, that the President pro-tem and the Cabinet members so succeeding the Vice President, shall be only acting Presidents, and must surrender their positions when a Speaker, is qualified for the position.

About the only cases in which the Speaker would be unable to qualify would be if he were foreign-born, too young, or ill or

Truman Says Tax Cut Bill To Be Vetoed

Senate Leaders Press for Passage Tonight; Strength To Override in Doubt

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday removed any lingering doubt that he will veto the GOP's 10½ to 30 per cent income tax reduction bill, but none could say whether the veto will stick.

Driving for Senate passage tonight or tomorrow, leaders predicted only that the overriding test will turn on two or three still doubtful votes. Initial passage, by a large majority, was assured.

The flat announcement that Mr. Truman will veto the bill was made to reporters by Senate Democratic Leader Alben W. Barkley (D., Ky.,) following a morning White House call.

Attitude Unchanged

Later the President confirmed this. He told Barkley, he said, that he did not see any reason why his attitude should change if Congress sends him the same bill he vetoed before.

The new Knutson bill, which passed the House by a veto-overriding majority and is now near a Senate test, merely postponed until January 1 the effective date of the vetoed rate cuts.

There were these reactions to the President's announcement:

1. Senate Democratic Whip Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) dropped plans to offer a low bracket relief substitute for the Knutson bill. Instead, he joined Barkley in opposing any tax cut. Lucas said he felt the President would veto any tax reduction proposed at this time.

2. The veto tip-off was construed to mean the President will fire his message right back at Congress, instead of waiting the allowed 10 days.

3. It meant also there will be fewer vote shifts after initial Senate passage. Knowing the President's intentions before they vote, Senators are less likely to be influenced by the subsequent message. The majority on passage thus will tip the action on the veto.

Announcement Criticized

Republicans and some Democrats were critical of the President's unusual advance announcement. Senate Finance Chairman Eugene D. Millikin (R., Colo.) said the President committed "an impropriety," adding: "This is the first time in history the President has vetoed a bill in advance of the time it was presented to him."

Barkley brought the President's decision to a previously called conference of Senate Democrats, and appealed to party colleagues to support Mr. Truman. In the caucus that followed, Senator Walter F. George (D., Ga.) and Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) took opposing sides on the Knutson bill.

George, who has announced he will vote to override the President's veto, argued the taxpayers are entitled to the relief, and that by next January it will be fiscally feasible. O'Mahoney, however, contended that premature tax cuts

Czechs Admit Fear of Russia, Won't Attend Paris Parley; Threat to Hungary Reported

Budapest Rejection Induced by Word Of Soviet Reprisal, Informant Says

Budapest, July 10 (AP).—A reliable Hungarian informant said tonight that Communist leaders' warnings of Russian reprisals induced the Hungarian government to reject the British-French invitation to the European economics conference in Paris.

The Hungarian council of ministers announced this morning that "Hungary regrets it cannot participate in a conference in which all the big powers do not take part together." Russia refused to join Britain and France in calling the conference on the economic aid plan proposed by United States Secretary of State George C. Marshall.

The informant said Communist leaders, at an interparty conference and at a cabinet council, declared that if Hungary accepted the invitation, Russia would:

1. Cut off immediately the return of Hungarian war prisoners.

2. Demand immediate payment of war reparations in arrears.

3. Extend immediately Russian confiscation of Hungarian livestock.

4. Delay indefinitely ratification of the Hungarian peace treaty.

Members of the Social Democratic Party said they would hold a private meeting and there was a rumor that a new group called "the Defenders of the Constitution" would force an immediate reconvening of Parliament.

Keyes Prepares Reply

Russian Charges U. S. Tries To Run Austrian Economic Life

Vienna, July 10 (AP).—Russia's representative on the Allied Control Council for Austria accused the United State today of attempting to dictate Austria's entire economic life through the 100-million-dollar aid agreements signed June 25.

In a 700-word statement to the council, Lieut. Gen. L. V. Kurrasov said certain provisions of the agreement violated previous Allied decisions and "represent nothing else than the evidence of distrust of the Austrian government on the part of the United States."

Kurrasov demanded an immediate discussion of his statement, but Lieut. Gen. Geoffrey Keyes, U. S. representative, said he would reply at a later date. The British and French members of the council reserved comment pending Keyes' reply.

The Russian representative charged that the United States had attached to the aid agreement conditions which made Austria entirely dependent.

Kurrasov said this was in contradiction to the Moscow declaration of October, 1943, regarding Austria's reestablishment as a free and independent state.

The Russian objected principally to portions of the agreement which provided for direct United States supervision and control of relief supply distribution.

In asking annulment of these sections, Kurrasov said Russia approved of relief to Austria if such relief was "placed at the direct disposal of Austrian state authorities, was not accompanied by interference in internal economic affairs and did not violate the sovereignty of Austria."

Austrian Reds Warned

Vienna, July 10 (INS).—Austria's veteran Socialist chief, Vice Chancellor Dr. Adolf Schaerf, tonight denounced Socialist movements in Soviet satellite states for "paving the way to Communism." He warned that his party would oppose all attempts to maneuver Austria into the Soviet orbit.

Acceptance of Bid Is Retracted After Talks in Moscow; Explanation Frank

BULLETIN

London (Friday), July 11.—The Moscow radio said early today Finland had rejected a British-French invitation to attend the European Economic Conference opening Saturday in Paris.

Prague, July 10 (AP).—Czechoslovakia backed down from a decision to attend the Paris conference on the Marshall plan. The cabinet acted upon phoned instructions from Communist Premier Klement Gottwald in Moscow.

The Czechs gave as their reason that participation in the conference might be construed as an action against the Soviet Union.

In fact, the Czech government already had sent a plane-load of economic experts to Paris.

The Czech withdrawal made it virtually certain that no nation in the Soviet orbit in eastern Europe would attend the conference at its opening Saturday.

Hurried Meeting Called

The cabinet decision was made by the unanimous consent of all parties of the National Front government at an extraordinary session lasting six hours. The meeting was called hurriedly when Premier Gottwald telephoned from Moscow, where he was received last night by Premier Stalin.

The cabinet announcement to the British, French and United States embassies was reported to have said that "under our situation" Czechoslovakia could not accept the invitation extended by Britain and France to the conference.

Hungary announced today that she would not attend. A reliable Hungarian informant said tonight in Budapest that warnings by Communist leaders of Russian reprisals induced the Hungarian government to reject the invitation.

"Hungary regrets that it cannot participate in a conference in which all the big powers do not take part together," the Hungarian cabinet declared.

Hungary thus pointed to the breakup of the preliminary talks last week among Britain, France and Russia in which Russia opposed the Marshall plan and refused to join the others in sponsoring the conference.

Finland Still to Reply

The only other nation in the Soviet sphere remaining to be heard from was Finland, but her participation appeared highly doubtful.

The reasons Gottwald gave for requiring urgent and immediate reversal of Czechoslovakia's position were not immediately disclosed.

However, an announcement was issued which said:

"The Czech government has been advised that other Slav nations were unwilling to join in the Marshall Plan. In such a case acceptance of the invitation might be construed as an action against the Soviet Union. Therefore the

Truman Sees No Need for Fall Session

Tells News Conference He Will Take Action If Necessity Arises

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman said yesterday that he didn't think it would be necessary to call Congress into special session this fall to consider the Marshall Plan. He added that if it should become necessary, he would act accordingly.

Mr. Truman's statement must have been a surprise to many in State Department circles. They have been assuming all along that a special session, starting perhaps in October, was a virtual certainty, for two reasons:

1. The European economic crisis, which the Marshall Plan is designed to meet through American grants of something like five billion dollars or six billion dollars a year for three or four years, is expected to reach its most acute stage this winter. Thus there will be need of speed.

2. State Department officials believe the Marshall Plan is of such tremendous importance that it ought to be considered in a special session, and certainly apart from 1948 presidential politics that may dominate Congress after the regular meeting in January.

Favors MVA Bill

Mr. Truman made his views known on the special session at a White House news conference. He also told reporters that:

He is meeting with congressional leaders Monday to talk about legislation for admitting into the United States a substantial number of Europe's million displaced persons, now in camps in Germany, Austria and Italy. The Marshall Plan, he said, may be discussed also.

He favors the Murray bill, to create a Missouri Valley Authority, but would like to see an even more comprehensive plan that would control the Mississippi and the Ohio as well.

He has no plans for a cross-country trip such as Democratic leaders have been urging on him. A trip to Rio de Janeiro still is under consideration.

He is not worried about a speech about to break over the Administration by former Representative Roger Slaughter, who, according to a reporter, said that "a scandal was tration. Mr. Truman's influence

British Yield On Jinnah as Pakistan Head

Attlee Had Planned To Name Viceroy Governor General

London, July 10 (AP).—Prime Minister Attlee disclosed today that Britain had yielded to demands of the Moslem League and had designated its 70-year-old leader, Mohamed Ali Jinnah, for Governor General of Pakistan, new Moslem state to be created in India.

Mahomed Ali Jinnah

Viscount Mountbatten of Burma, present and last Viceroy of India, will become Governor General of the Dominion of India—the name by which the separate Hindu state of Hindustan will be known.

The bill was given its second reading without a major vote thus it won approval in principle, but there were indications several points would be raised for possible amendment in committee stage next week.

Attlee told Commons that Britain had hoped to name Lord Mountbatten governor general of both Pakistan and India, but "that was not to be" because of the Moslem League's insistence on complete severance.

Attlee announced the British decision in opening debate on the second, decisive reading of a bill to create the two new dominions on August 15, out of what has been British India for the past 90 years.

Attlee said also that the 562 princely states outside the dominions were urged to join one or the other of the new commonwealths and to "think again" before carrying out intentions, as announced by some rulers, of becoming independent states.

Jinnah would be the first governor general in the empire to come from the ranks of a conquered people.

Attlee, reiterating that his government still hoped a partitioned India not only would remain within the British Commonwealth but would reunite, disclosed with unconcealed regret that he had failed in efforts to designate Lord Mountbatten as the key link.

Moslem League leaders made it plain they approved of Mountbatten personally, but refused to have

The Gallup Poll

Truman Shows Slight Loss in Popularity, Still Has 54% Rating; Labor Support Gains

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., July 10.—President Truman's general popularity with the voters has declined in the last two weeks.

But the drop from May has not been sharp.

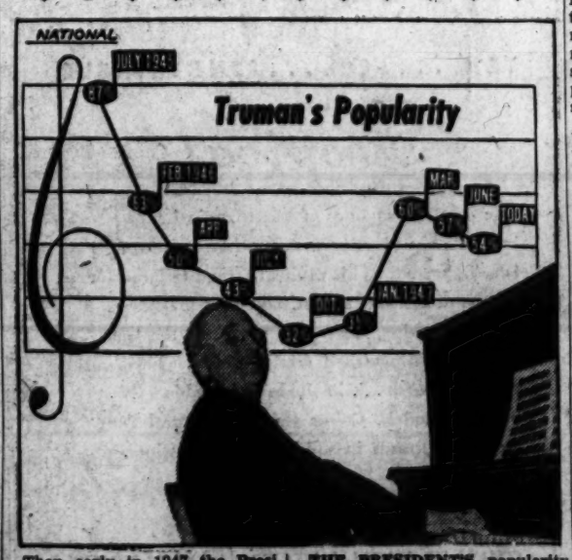
In late May 57 per cent of the Nation's voters polled by the Institute approved of the way Mr. Truman was handling his job as President. Today, 54 per cent say they approve, while 33 per cent disapprove and the rest express no opinion.

Thus, one year before the 1948 nominating conventions, Mr. Truman in spite of his troubles with Congress continues to enjoy substantial support from the people.

Two powerful voting blocs account for a large part of his popularity and for the general strength of the Democratic Party—labor union members and farmers. Among those two groups Mr. Truman's popularity is greater than among any other major groups in the population.

The President went to bat for organized labor by vetoing the Taft-Hartley Act, expressing his opposition in vigorous language. Today's survey, which gives full reflection to the post-veto mood of union labor, finds that as compared to May the President has held his own with this group, and if anything has gained a little.

Starting in July, 1945, from the dizzying height of 87 per cent—higher even than Franklin D. Roosevelt ever polled—he plummeted to 32 per cent in the short space of 15 months. That low point coincided with the meat shortage of the summer and autumn of 1946, confusion over OPA and over foreign policy.



Then early in 1947 the President's popularity began to turn upward, partly as the result of his handling of John L. Lewis and of the new firmness with Russia.

The trend follows:

Do you approve or disapprove of the way Mr. Truman is handling his job as President?

	Approve	Disapprove	No Opin.
July, 1945	87%	3%	10%
Nov., 1945	82	9	9

THE PRESIDENT'S popularity with organized labor has likewise been up-and-down affair, with labor reacting favorably toward him at the present time.

Following is the trend of sentiment among union members, and among another powerful voting bloc, the farmers of the country.

Roundup Foils Civil War Plot, Greek Says

Athens, July 10 (AP).—Minister of Public Order Napoleon Zervas declared today the government's sudden crackdown on Leftists had foiled entirely plans by 50,000 to 60,000 Communist followers to foment civil war in Athens and Pireaus.

Scattered arrests continued today in the wholesale roundup of Leftists launched yesterday. Zervas said nearly 3000 were seized. The government had aimed at 4000 arrests.

A charge that the arrests were ordered by the United States was made by the Communist newspaper Rizospastis and the left-wing Ellefttheria Ellada. They continued publication despite the arrests, and both contained editorials attacking violently the government's action.

(In France the Communist Party announced its "indignation" at what it termed the arrest of "2500 democrats and patriots" in Greece, and in a communique called on the French people "to aid martyred Greece.")

Zervas declared that Prague, capital of Czechoslovakia, was headqurters for the Communist International for European operations and said that Greek Communist leader Zachariades had transmitted to a Balkan Communist super-directorate at Prague the plan of the Greek Communists to seize the governments.

Paraguay Reported Reinforcing Defenses

Buenos Aires, July 10 (AP).—Dispatches from the Argentine-Paraguayan frontier said today the Paraguayan government was reinforcing its defenses along the eastern bank of the Paraguay River against an attempt of rebel forces to open a new naval front in the four-month-old civil war.

The dispatches said the gunboats Paraguay and Humaita, seized by the rebels in Argentine waters, were being moved up in defiance of an ultimatum by Paraguayan President Higinio Morinigo. The vessels last were reported sighted near the Argentine city of Corrientes.

Jewelry of Diplomats Stolen in Argentina

Tucuman, Argentina, July 10 (U.P.).—Valuable jewels have been stolen from the Swedish, Romanian and Chinese Ambassadors who are here for Argentina's independence day celebrations, it was reported today.

6000 Get Wet at Garden Fete For Elizabeth and Her Fiance

London, July 10 (AP).—Vivacious young Princess Elizabeth and her handsome husband-to-be, Lieut. Philip Mountbatten, "met the folks" today and not even a slashing rain dimmed the happiness in the faces.

Showered with congratulations, the couple walked side by side through the milling crowds of a Buckingham Palace garden party for the cream of British society. They so monopolized the attention of 6000 guests that King George frequently had no one to talk to.

Then, while the royal party took shelter in their tea tent from a sudden downpour, Elizabeth and Philip somehow made an island of privacy for themselves and talked gravely in the misty twilight of the things young lovers talk about.

"Doesn't she look lovely" dowagers exclaimed. They referred more to the glow that illuminated the blue-eyed princess' slightly flushed face than to her apricot-hued costume and matching straw hat.

The 26-year-old Philip, chatting gaily and laughing with man-of-the-house ease, caught the imagination of the younger women.

"Thank you—thank you so much," the princess replied to those who pressed close to wish her happiness. To one guest she murmured:

"It's like turning a new page."

Outside the palace a group of spectators—some had been there all day—watched the raincoated party guests come and go. They were hoping for a personal greet-

In House Hearing

Priest Urges High School War Training

By The Associated Press

Compulsory military training in high school was urged at a House Armed Services Committee hearing yesterday by the Rev. Dan A. Laning, Catholic priest of Mission, Tex.

A buck private in World War I and a chaplain in the last war, Father Laning was one of two witnesses who supported the principle of universal military training advocated by a special presidential commission.

The other was Blake R. Van Leer, president of Georgia Tech University, Atlanta.

Opposing Views Given

Opposing the proposal as the committee continued hearings that may run into next year were Kermit Eby, director of education and research for the CIO, and Rabbi Ahron Opher of New York, representing the Synagogue Council of America.

"Put military training in all our high schools, colleges and universities," Father Laning urged the committee. "Why begin at the age of 18? . . . By commencing military training in the high school, the Nation would be getting the benefit of from four to eight years of continuous training as compared to six months or a year" as advocated by the President's commission.

Rabbi Opher called for a strengthening of the United Nations as the most effective way to maintain peace. Universal military training, he said, runs "counter to the intent and purposes" of the U. N. and should be resorted to only when there is an "imminent threat" to national security.

Held Necessary Now

Van Leer told the committee universal military training "will unquestionably improve the education and training of our people" and is necessary now.

Eby claimed the President's commission was "biased from the very beginning" and said its report was "virtually a call to arms" and "an acceptance of war as inevitable."

He complained that the commission did not include representatives of farm and labor groups opposed to UMT and said "individuals from educational and religious organizations were not representative of their group."

Weichel Admits Defeat in Blocking Oil for Russia

Chairman Weichel (R., Ohio) of the House Merchant Marine Committee acknowledged yesterday that he is stumped in his efforts to block oil shipments to Russia.

He blasted as "arrogant" the action of the Commerce Department in granting export licenses that will permit the departure of three Soviet-bound tankers now being loaded on the West Coast.

Undersecretary of Commerce William C. Foster conceded to the committee Wednesday that his office had granted the licenses only a few hours after Weichel phoned him to insist that they be refused.

Weichel has introduced a resolution which would require the War Navy and Commerce Departments to certify that future petroleum exports—on a shipment-by-shipment basis—would not impair the national defense nor interfere with full domestic requirements.

But the committee, itself, has not completed hearings on the measure and House and Senate action seemed unlikely in the drive to wind up the congressional session this month.

Mme. Lupescu's Health Reported Improved

Rio de Janeiro, July 10 (AP).—Elena Lupescu, companion of former King Carol of Romania, was reported almost out of danger today from her long illness of pernicious anemia.

Mme. Ernest Urdarianu, wife of Carol's chamberlain, said Mme. Lupescu "is a little bit better today, having passed another good night."

2 Sergeants Made Finished Pictures, It Is Announced

by International News Service

Congressional Atomic Committeemen said yesterday that prints were made of the photographic negatives stolen from the Los Alamos atom bomb plant and that the FBI is investigating to see if any of them are still at large.

Congressmen said that the negatives taken by two souvenir-hunting sergeants who perpetrated the theft had been developed. One of the soldiers was a photographer.

The committeemen said that the FBI was making an exhaustive search to preclude any chance that the prints would fall into the hands of foreign agents.

Spies Constantly Active

Senator Hickenlooper (R., Iowa), chairman of the Atomic Energy Committee, told newsmen that spies are "working 24 hours a day" in an attempt to steal the atom bomb secrets. However, he said that so far they have not met with "substantial" success.

He declined to comment on statements of his committee colleagues that the data stolen from the Los Alamos, N. Mex., plant consisted of negatives.

The negatives were said by other committeemen to show vital machinery at Los Alamos, which is the installation at which A-bombs are assembled.

The FBI refused to comment on the congressional disclosure, or to discuss the course of its investigations.

The agency said that it had no instructions to arrest the two suspects and the Justice Department stated that no instructions had been issued for their apprehension.

Prosecution Promised

A Justice Department spokesman reiterated the agency's intention of prosecuting the pair involved in the thefts but added, "these things take time."

Hickenlooper told newsmen that he was authorized to say "after a check and a double check" that no documents were stolen from Oak Ridge. He later amplified this by saying:

"I have no knowledge of any theft of anything at Oak Ridge." He said that, as far as the committee knew, the Los Alamos instance was the only case in which secret atomic material disappeared.

President Truman, asked about atomic thefts at his news conference, stated that Hickenlooper had explained the situation clearly and he, the President, was willing to accept the Senator's explanation.

Other Developments

In other developments:

1. Hickenlooper disclosed that the Atomic Energy Control Commission headed by David E. Lilienthal is expanding its security force. He said that its security establishment is smaller than during the wartime peak but larger than when Lilienthal and the four other commissioners took over control from the Army in January.

2. Chairman Thomas (R., N. J.) of the House Un-American Activities Committee, demanded that control of atomic energy be returned to the Army. He said that continued civilian control of the A-bomb "is a threat to the safety of the United States and the peace of the world."

3. Representative Rankin (D., Miss.), demanded in the House that Congress be given the names of the two former Army sergeants who stole the negatives.

Hickenlooper made the statement that spies were working "24 hours a day" to get the A-bomb secrets after a more than two-hour meeting of his committee with Rear Admiral R. H. Hillenkoetter, the Nation's top-ranking intelligence officer.

Gastronomic Delights Replace C Rations in Army Messes

NOONDAY SNACK—Corpl. Henry J. Duchesne stows away a tasty lunch. Typical menus now include breaded lamb chops chicken, and sirloin steaks. Even the breakfast eggs are cooked to order

Breaded lamb chops dressed up to look and taste like chicken . . . sirloin steak cooked to order . . . fancy, eye-catching salads and pies. . . .

Such are the gastronomic delights that have replaced spam and C rations—the old thrice daily dose of them—on the Army's menu.

What's more the Army is teaching its cooks to cook, to turn out gourmet-tempting meals. Even a private at Fort Myer yesterday admitted the food wasn't bad.

After General Eisenhower told a War Department Food Service Conference that "I would like to be remembered as the chief of staff who did something about the Army's cooking," a Post reporter started investigating.

Improvements Under Way

At Fort Myer he found many of the Eisenhower food improvements already in effect. He dined with the 97-man Ceremonial company, commanded by Capt. Ross Calvert, the much-decorated hero of Anzio, Colmar and San Tropez.

Breakfast consisted of pineapple juice, dry cereal, sausage, eggs fried to order, bread, butter and coffee.

For lunch there wes breaded lamb chops, French boiled potatoes, boiled cabbage, cucumber-and-celery salad, bread and butter, peach pie and coffee.

Supper cnsisted of beef ragout, beets, whipped potatoes, raisin salad, hot rolls, watermelon and iced tea.

But how it was cooked was the main thing.

The lunchtime lamb chops, for example, were prepared with bread and cracker crumbs, salted and peppered, rolled in egg batter and then fried in deep fat until they looke dand tasted like Southern fried chicken.

The Army, T/Sergt. Richard Eilenberger, in charge of the company mess, explained, has recently issued two new cook books telling how to prepare such delicacies, with color illustrations to show how the food ought to look to please the GI.

Also the Army is sending out daily menus from top headquarters, each menu scientifically prepared, and on the staff of each headquarters is a "food service officer" who sees that food in all messes is well prepared and properly served.

Since 75 per cent of the men making up the Ceremonial Company are youngsters 18 to 20 years of age, food is especially important, Captain Calvert explained.

"We do have trouble getting many of them to eat leafy vegetables and some other foods which they did not eat at home," he said. "We put these on their plates first as they come through the chow line."

KP Punishment Abolished

The Army long ago abolished KP duty as punishment. Now KP is pulled from a duty roster by all men in turn. Emphasis also is being placed on cleaner-looking kitchen equipment and keeping mess halls attractive.

Army quartermaster officers, in charge of chow-supplying, say GIs will always complain—they gripe against the food because they may dislike the Army in general. But the Army is going to do everything possible to give them a meal fit to be served at the Waldorf.

How the GIs themselves feel is indicated by Pvt. Carmen Sabino, 17, of New Castle, Pa., who has been in the Army four months:

"It's good, but somehow it just isn't the way mother cooks it at home. I miss her fried chicken. Her fried chicken for some reason has a different flavor from what fried chicken has in the Army."

California Navy School Bill Put Aside

By The Associated Press

The House Rules Committee declined again yesterday to act on a bill to permit the Navy to establish a postgraduate school at Monterey, Calif.

Acting Chairman Harness (R., Ind.) told reporters, "I wouldn't want to say whether there will be action on that bill in the future."

The committee heard Representative Anderson (R., Calif.) renew his plea for the authorizing legislation. He said it would be "a good buy" for the Government.

The committee also received a telegram of protest signed by "the Monterey County Taxpayers Association." It read:

"Re Del Monte Navy School, Navy should use part of Fort Ord now standing practically idle representing investment of many millions of dollars of taxpayers money. There is now about 40 per cent of the land in Monterey County in possession of Government and off local tax rolls. What logical reason can there be which would warrant unloading Del Monte Hotel which is a white elephant onto Navy Department at taxpayers expense?"

Anderson told the committee Fort Ord is built on sand dunes, several miles from the ocean, and would not be suitable for Navy postgraduate training. He disputed also that the Del Monte Hotel property is a "white elephant," saying it is assessed for tax purposes at "over four million dollars" and is being offered to the Navy for $2,149,000.

Representative Brown (R., Ohio), a committee members, said "Ord is no more suited for Navy training than I am."

Harness said the Army Air Forces wanted to buy the Del Monte Hotel property on Monterey Bay during the war, but the plan was turned down by the House Military Affairs Committee. This is the property the Navy now wants to buy, he added.

Anderson said the Navy's option on the site was to expire July 1, but was extended pending congressional action on the bill before the committee.

Gross Appointed To Succeed Fahy

By The Associated Press

President Truman yesterday accepted the resignation of Charles Fahy as legal adviser of the State Department and nominated Ernest A. Gross of New York to succeed him.

The White House reported that Fahy submitted his resignation, effective August 15, in a letter dated July 8. He told Mr. Truman that "circumstances have led me to feel for some time that I should return to private life."

Murray Hits Radical Tag on Bill Advocates

Senator James E. Murray (D., Mont.), yesterday accused Republican members of the Senate Labor Committee of trying to pin a "socialism or communism" label on witnesses advocating enactment of President's Truman's health insurance program.

"Every witness that has appeared in support of compulsory health insurance has been subjected to this," Murray said during a sharp verbal exchange with Senator Forrest C. Donnell (R., Mo.), as the committee continued hearings on the plan.

He accused Donnell of "browbeating and bulldozing" Nelson H. Cruikshank, director of the American Federation of Labor's social insurance activities, by cross-examining the witness closely about his background. Cruikshank also objected to some of the questions as "irrelevant."

The witness read a statement in behalf of AFL Vice President Matthew Woll indorsing the country-wide insurance plan, which republican leaders said stood little chance of action at this session of Congress. Donnell wanted to know who wrote the document.

"I might ask the Senator who wrote his questions," Cruikshank retorted, testily.

"I'm getting tired of these proceedings," said Murray. "It's disgraceful to cross-examine a witness this way."

The Woll statement opposed a rival bill by Senator Taft (R., Ohio) and two fellow Republicans as "charity." It said workers should not have to "worry about the financial cost of keeping healthy."

James B. Carey, CIO secretary-treasurer, in a statement said the Murray bill "presents a positive and constructive program" under which the "health of the people can best be safeguarded by themselves."

Flannagan Charges Aid to 'Sugar Trust'

Congressman Says Three Former Aides To Anderson Boosted Nation's Food Bill

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson an dthree former aides were attacked by the ranking Democrat of the House Agriculture Committee yesterday, Representative John W. Flannagan, jr., of Virginia.

Flannagan on the floor of the House, charged that Anderson permitted the men all now employed by sugar companies or associations, to operate the sugar branch of the Production and Marketing Administration for the benefit of the "sugar trust."

Their operations, Flannagan said, had added more than 250 million dollars annually to the Nation's sugar bill.

Hits 'Daddies' of Bill

Flannagan's attack took place in a 50-minute attack upon the proposed sugar production quota measure now before the House. The measure, Flannagan said, was prepared by sugar representatives.

"I don't like the daddies of this legislation," he declared.

The officials attacked were:

Robert H. Shields, former solicitor and later administrator of PMA in the Agriculture Department, and now "$40,000 secretary of the American Beet Sugar Industry Association."

Earl Wilson, former head of the Sugar Division of PMA and Commodity Credit Corp., and now an official of the California-Hawaiian Refining Corp. at a salary Flannagan said is $50,000 a year.

H. B. Boyd, price director of PMA, now an associate of Shields in the Beet Sugar association, at a salary Flannagan put at $18,000 a year.

Wilson Defended

Anderson, Flannagan declared, had appeared in favor of the Sugar Quota bill before the House committee, and admitted that although he favored the legislation, he "knew little about it."

Wilson, Flannagan asserted, was paid as a CCC official while receiving a $25,000 salary from the National Sugar Refining Co.

"This is a serious charge," Flannagan said, "and I defy any man on this floor to deny it."

Later, Representative Domengeaux (D., La.) told the House that "I believe Mr. Flannagan does not have all the facts," and he said Wilson came to Washington during the war to serve the Government "at a great personal sacrifice."

The Louisiana member said when he first joined the Government he worked for $1 a year, and that he later disposed of his stock in a sugar company and worked for a Government salary only.

Alone, Flannagan Says

"I am here today in the role of the lone wolf," Flannagan had said. "It appears that I am the only one who will oppose this bill. All my courageous companions have faded and gone."

He recalled, then, how the original Sugar Act was written 10 years ago during his chairmanship of the House Agriculture Committee. All segments of the sugar industry were divided on the question of legislation, he said, "and it took months of hard work to get any sort of an agreement."

The industry now claims to be united, Flannagan continued.

"What brought them into agreement?" he asked. "Where are these men, Earl Wilson and Robert Shields, now?"

"Written in Shields' Office"

"This legislation was written in the office of Robert Shields right here in Washington," Flannagan declared. "Wilson has been in Washington spearheading for this bill, too.

"I don't know whether Shields is in the gallery today, but I saw him there yesterday when debate began on the bill."

The bill, he continued, does not contain a provision now in the Sugar Law requiring the Secretary of Agriculture to make sure that a fair wage is paid in the sugar-beet industry. The House committee has said it would amend the bill to include this, he added, "but the amendment has a hollow ring."

Flannagan called the bill "the most vicious piece of price-fixing" ever proposed in Congress, and asked the House to vote with him to return it to the Agriculture Committee for revision.

Elizabeth Gets Her Ring

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

ing from the princess and her escort.

From early morning, congratulatory messages flowed in from the empire and the rest of the world. Not a few, as the British press proudly noted, came from the United States.

Then Elizabeth and Philip, arm in arm, posed smilingly for photographs which were splashed promptly on London's front pages.

The princess, without her fiance, drove to Westminster Abbey and stood in brief solemnity while her father unveiled a new chapel honoring the pilots of the Battle of Britain.

In front of the nine centuries old Abbey, where she will be married, and at the gates of Buckingham Palace, where she and Philip lunched later with the King and Queen, rain-soaked crowds roared best wishes to their future sovereign and her handsome escort.

Before the garden party Elizabeth and Philip took time to call on 80-year-old Queen Mary.

When will the wedding take place? Best guess is October, which leaves the usual three-month "wait" after the engagement announcement, and offers some hope of good weather. Whatever the day, it will be a public holiday.

British Royalty Greet Middies At Palace Tea

London, July 10 (AP).—Lieut. Philip Mountbatten, fiance of Princess Elizabeth since last midnight, found time at the Buckingham Palace garden tea today to talk amiably with 20 Annapolis midshipmen and two officers picked from a good will squadron to attend the royal party.

So did Princess Elizabeth, her sister Margaret Rose and the King and Queen.

Alexander Graham Bell Grosvenor of Washington, D. C., one of the middies, came away with the decided impression that the royal romance was a real love match.

"There's no doubt that girl is happy," he said. "Her eyes were absolutely sparkling."

Grosvenor, grandson of the inventor of the telephone, said the Princess and Mountbatten talked with him for several minutes.

Jail for von Papen Kin

Frankfurt, Germany, July 10 (U.P.). The German news agency Dena reported today that Gunther von Papen, nephew of former German diplomat Franz von Papen, had been sentenced to four months in jail for black marketeering.

Daughter Hits Mother's Story In Slave Case

San Diego, July 10 (U.P.).—A daughter who said she believed "truth and right to be more important than blood relationships" testified against her mother today in the slavery trial of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred W. Ingalls.

Mrs. Ruth Castendyk, Chicago, testified that her mother had refused Dora Jones, Negro maid whom the Government charges was kept in bondage by the Ingalls for 30 years, permission to go to movies because "it spoils you and it's not good for your work after you go."

Mrs. Castendyk is the daughter of Mrs. Ingalls and her former husband.

The grey-haired mother, a former Boston socialite, wept as her daughter testified to hearing Mrs. Ingalls "berate Dora from time to time." She said two or three days after her parents were divorced her mother said she "might marry Uncle Fred" and six days later married Ingalls.

Mrs. Castendyk, former school teacher and flying instructor, issued a statement outside of court in which she said she believed "truth and right to be more important than blood relationships."

Earlier Dora had admitted under cross examination her hands had been frostbitten in Athens, Ga., but she did not think that had caused them to become misshapen.

U. N. Group Hears 4 Rabbis; Arabs May Agree to Testify

Jerusalem, Palestine, July 10 (U.P.).—Dr. Isaac H. Herzog, chief rabbi of Jerusalem, told the United Nations Special Commission on Palestine today that what the Jews were looking for in the Holy Land was "freedom from spiritual bondage as well as political and economic freedom."

He was the leader of four rabbis who testified before the commission today. They all described Zionist aims as the same; freedom from persecution in Palestine and the establishment here of a Jewish homeland.

The Arab Higher Committee of Palestine met again in Jerusalem and refused to stop its boycott of the commission's investigation. But there was increasing optimism among the delegates to the commission that the Arab League, which represents seven Arab states, would accept an invitation to appear and present testimony for the Arabs.

One of these seven Arab states is Palestine. The Arab Higher Committee's activities are confined to the Holy Land. Commission meetings may be held in Cairo or Beirut, or possibly Geneva, if the league agrees to testify.

If the Arabs agree to testify, it will be a victory for the commission, engineered by the pro-Moslem Iranian and Indian delegates.

The efforts of Sir Abdour Rahman, the Indian delegate, have been so persistent that executives of the Arab Higher Committee have called him a "quisling of his people."

Expert Explains Construction Of Overell Bomb

Santa Ana, Calif., July 10 (U.P.).—Demolition experts today detailed the construction of the time bomb which blew up the Walter E. Overell yacht and led to 18-year-old Beulah Louise Overell and her boy friend being charged with murdering her parents.

For the first time since the trial began codefendant George (Bud) Gollum appeared ill at ease.

Paris, July 10 (AP).—Virginia Hill, former girl friend of the late American racketeer Benjamin "Bugsy" Siegel, checked ou of the Westminister hotel in Paris on July 3, it was learned today and has not been heard from since.

Police would not comment on a statement by the Beverly Hills chief of police that he had asked protection for Miss Hill during her stay in Paris.

Italy Blast Toll Now Eight

Bologna, Italy, July 10 (U.P.).—Rescue workers today found four more bodies in the ruins of the exploded Marano di Castenaso shotgun factory, raising the death toll to eight.

Exiled Argentine Editor Arrives in Montevideo

Montevideo, Uruguay, July 10 (U.P.).—Lutaro Duranona, editor of the Nationalist newspaper La Tribuna of Buenos Aires, closed recently by the Argentine government, arrived today, a political exile, without a passport or other personal documents.

La Tribuna was closed after it launched a campaign against Miguel Miranda, president of the Central Bank and Argentina's economic czar.

Congress Cost Bill Passed by Senate

A bill providing $55,671,908 to maintain Congress and its related agencies for the current fiscal year was passed by the Senate on voice vote yesterday.

The measure carries $776,903 more than was voted by the House, and now goes to a conference to compromise the difference. Increases by the Senate included $175,000 for the Senate-House Committee on Atomic Energy.

Trunk Slaying Victim's Husband Gone

San Luis Obispo, Calif., July 10 (AP).—A woman found strangled and her body stuffed in a trunk was identified today as the former Comtesse Christiana de Zoheb, 48, wife of a San Luis Obispo restaurant operator.

Her husband, Morley V. King, one-time seaman who married her in Casablanca in 1926, was the object of a widespread search.

Authorities meanwhile were probing the possibility of a domestic love triangle, and questioned at length a 19-year-old divorcee.

King, 46, was last reported seen at 3 a. m., Tuesday, about 30 hours before the body was found.

Police said the last person to see King was Mrs. Jean Martin, cashier in King's restaurant, who King took home at that hour after a date.

The dead woman, a native of Turkey, married the Count de Zoheb of Portugal at the outbreak of World War I in 1914. He was killed in 1916.

When found, the woman had been dead a week, Acting Coroner Fred Waters said. She had been strangled with a man's woolen scarf, which was knotted tightly around her neck.

Mansfield Reported In Critical Condition

Representative Joseph L. Mansfield, 86-year-old Texas Democrat, continued on the "critical" list at the Bethesda, Md., Naval Hospital yesterday.

His son, Bruce Mansfield, who was summoned to the Congressman's bedside along with other members of the family, said his father is "sinking." Ill for three months, Representative Mansfield took a turn for the worse several days ago.

Two Friends Questioned in Actress' Death

New York, July 10 (AP).—Two businessmen, quizzed by police 24 hours in the strangulation death of Mrs. Sheila Mannering, blonde actress, were released today but directed to appear before a grand jury Wednesday.

An attorney said one of the men was his client, Jacob Rosen, 60-year-old textile manufacturer. The other was not named.

A police official said Rosen's account of his movements Tuesday afternoon, when police believe Mrs. Mannering was slain, had been corroborated in all details by business associates.

The two men were found listed in one of the actress' address books, police said. More than 50 persons whose names were in the books have been questioned and others will be picked up, they added.

Among those questioned was a man who was with Mrs. Mannering Sunday and Monday nights but who asserted he had not seen her since that time. His name was found on an uncashed $20 check in the apartment and he admitted that some articles of clothing in the apartment were his, police said.

The investigators took impressions of teeth marks on the actress' arm and of marks on a partly-smoked cigar found in the bedroom where her body was sprawled.

and other police forces operating in the District.

The Washington Criminal Justice Association said yesterday that Police Superintendent Barrett had agreed to conference with its representatives.

Edward J. Flynn, managing director of the association, said a meeting would probably be sought next week.

"We want to make certain that all records of arrests are made available to the association," he said. "We have had trouble in getting gambling arrest figures and we want to be sure that all figures we get are accurate."

Senator J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.), former Solicitor General of the United States and one of the sponsors of the resolution, declared the "committee has done the right thing to seek authority for the investigation."

"Those stories in The Post warrant us in looking into the whole theory of police administration," he said.

"Since Congress has seen fit to keep responsibility for local affairs out of the hands of the District's citizens, it can hardly refuse to meet its obligations in this matter."

Committee to Meet

A meeting of the executive committee of the Maryland State Firemen's Association will be held Saturday and Sunday at St. Helena Island in the Severn. Host will be president of the board of trustees, E. J. C. Raney of Kensington.

New president of the association, Charles R. Stallings, jr., has appointed Bradley C. Riggs, of Kensington, chairman of the executive committee. Other members are T. C. Gardner, Riverdale Heights; Dr. James P. Swing, Cambridge; Mitchell Boulden, Elkton, and John Devine, Hagerstown.

Assault and Robbery Another 'Pocket' Case

Benjamin C. Milstead, 339 14th st. ne., has been wondering why there was no police action when he complained he had been robbed of $40 by a man in soldier's uniform.

A painter and hardwood finisher, Milstead reported on September 14 to the Ninth Precinct he was knocked to the ground and the money taken from him at 9th and G sts. ne.

A check of precinct records show it is another one of the "pocketed" cases. The precinct record is marked "hold for Greenfield." The case was not reported to headquarters on the teletype. It was not included in police statistics.

"I never heard anything about it, so I just forgot it," he said.

Breaks Ancient Church Tradition

THE VERY REV. WILLIAM M. SLATTERY of Baltimore, Md., whose election July 5 to the post of Superior General of the Order of Vincentians at the convention of the order in Paris, broke a four-century-old tradition during which time the post has always been held by a French priest.

41% Rise In Employed Here Since '40

The number of employed persons living in the greater Washington area increased 41 per cent between 1940 and 1947, according to a Census Bureau estimate.

The Census report, based on house-to-house interviews, shows that about 567,000 employed civilians 14 years old and over lived in the area as of April, 1947. This is about 166,000 more than the March, 1940, figure.

The reported increase in employed persons is almost matched by an estimated 40.5 per cent increase in the population. The estimate, made by the Board of Trade, lists about 1,360,000 persons in Washington and its suburbs in 1947, compared to the 967,985 listed by the Census for 1940.

Of the 166,000 new employed residents, some 75,000 are Government workers. The latter make up roughly two out of every five persons in the area who work for wages or salaries.

The seven-year increase in the number of workers employed by the Federal Government or local governmental units amounts to 51 per cent, according to the report, while those receiving wages or salaries increased by 38 per cent.

Women workers increased from 147,000 in 1940 to 221,000 this year. The size of the "work force" in the area, consisting of all persons of 14 and over employed or looking for work, rose from 443,000 to an estimated 588,000 in the same period. Unemployed persons total about 4 per cent of the civilian labor force this year, as compared with 9 per cent in 1940.

The area surveyed includes, besides the District, Alexandria, Arlington and Fairfax County as far west as Fairfax in Virginia; Montgomery County as far north as Rockville and Prince Georges County as far north as Laurel, east to Bowie and south to Axon Hill.

Suit to Stop Use Of Baltimore Buses Dismissed

Baltimore, July 10 (AP).—An injunction suit filed by two stockholders against the Baltimore Transit Co. to prevent the company from substituting buses for its trolley lines was dismissed in Circuit Court today.

Judge John T. Tucker, in a lengthy opinion, ruled for the company on three main points advanced by the plaintiffs, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson C. Warren of Baltimore:

1. That the BTC board of directors had acted in bad faith by approving the conversion.
2. That the question should have been submitted to the stockholders.
3. That there was some doubt as to whether new assets and rolling stock of the company were properly placed in the name of its wholly-owned subsidiary, the Baltimore Coach Co.

NLRB Men Try Out Rumor, Find It Gets Around in Hurry

Summertime, season of susceptibility to scuttlement, redolent with spinning saucers and revolving rumors . . .

That, it seems, accounts for the circumstance that the National Labor Relations Board had a new general counsel yesterday morning. He was Admiral Samuel F. Dupont, a man described as "having both feet in the ground." But he didn't last long in his new job.

It happened this way: The NLRB's information director, Louis G. Silverberg, and its Chicago regional director, George Bott, fell into a discussion while walking to work. How long, they mused, would it take a rumor to spread? A test seeme din order.

Test Is Success

Whereupon Bott decided to start the story that a new general counsel of the NLRB had been named, to replace Gerhard VanArkel, who has resigned. Bott cast about for a name and found a convenient one as he walked passed Dupont Circle.

At work, the two rumor researchers synchronized their watches. It was 9:15 a. m. Bott repaired to a second floor office in the NLRB annex to start the story. Silverberg went to his own office on the seventh floor of the main building.

In 50 minutes—at 10:05—Silverberg had the story repeated to him as cold fact: an Admiral Dupont was to be named, and his nomination would be sent to Capitol Hill that very afternoon. Before Silverberg could get to the phone to notify Bott of the elapsed time, two other officials told him of new appointment.

Unfit to Serve Now

Meantime, one member of the board itself had already begun checking with the Navy Department to find out what the record of the new man was. It was a pretty distinguished record, at that. But it ended 82 years ago, in Admiral Dupont's death in 1865.

Ah well, as Plautus so well put it: Nullam rem citorem apud homines esse, quan fatam, reor (I believe there is nothing among mankind swifter than rumor).

And yet, as Tacitus argued: Haud semper erret fama; aliquando et elegit (rumor does not always err; it sometime elects a man).

Note: It was rumored yesterday that the White House would announce the nomination of the new general counsel and the two new members of the NLRB early next week.

Tuck Tactily Indorses Road To Monticello

Manassas, Va., July 10 (Spl.).—Sponsors of the proposed Monticello Memorial Highway had their project indorsed here last night by the presence of the State Governor, if not by his spoken word.

Gov. William M. Tuck, honored guest and principal speaker at a promotion rally of the Monticello Highway Commission, said neither aye nor nay on the proposal to link the Jefferson Memorial, in Washington, D. C., to Jefferson's home, in Charlottesville, Va.

Instead, Governor Tuck praised the State's present highway system and the State's economic position and lauded the memory and the shrines of Jefferson.

"Virginia highways are better than those of any other State in the Union," the Governor declared to the 300 guests assembled on the lawn of the 19-acre Portner estate, here.

Virginians "Out Of The Mud"

Following a tribute to Thomas Jefferson as the "founder of Democracy" and "the founder of our system of education," he declared that officials of America as well as the people of America "would do well to visit his shrines."

"Virginia people," he noted, "are at last out of the mud. During the last session of school not a single school child lost school time because of road conditions.

"Virginia has met to a remarkable degree the need for primary and secondary roads and I feel that Virginians do not wish ((highway) expansion unless they are willing to pay the taxes required."

Without direct reference to the cost of the proposed memorial highway, Governor Tuck declared:

"Virginia has been able to operate its government on a balanced budget. Virginia does not owe a dollar. It does not have to pay huge carrying charges on debts."

Climax of Final Rally

His speech was the closing address of an all-day rally here which climaxed a lengthy campaign in Arlington, Fairfax, Prince William, Fauquier, Culpeper, Orange, Madison and Albemarle Counties to foster the Jefferson Memorial Highway.

Last year, the State Legislature voted unanimously in favor of a joint resolution sponsored by State Senator John S. Battle of Charlottesville, calling for study of the highway project.

State Senator Battle, principal afternon speaker at today's rally, called for establishment of the highway to join Washington with "a wonderful and magnificent memorial in Monticello which Jefferson loved so dearly."

Rep. Smith Leads Session

The commission's steering committee chairman, Edgar Parrish of Manassas explained that the group is not seeking an entirely new highway but wants the legislature to provide funds for "linking, straightening and widening existing roads" between the two shrines.

Circuit Court Judge Burnett Miller of Culpeper, advocated the highway as "a fine monument to the memory of Jefferson."

Charles R. Fenwick of Arlington, former member of the Virginia House of Delegates, was chairman of the afternoon session. Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.) led the evening session.

Colored Shirts Now in Demand; Whites Plentiful

By The Associated Press

The Nation's haberdashers were pictured yesterday as bowed with gloom over man's apparently natural cussedness when it comes to shirts.

"Now that they can get white shirts, they want colored shirts!" Purveyors of men's wear were quoted as saying.

In reporting this, the National Association of Retail Clothiers and Furnishers said a survey of merchants across the country disclosed that two thirds expect an increased demand for colored shirts this fall.

On a cheerier note, the association reported that buyers are definitely turning away from the fad of hand-painted neckties. Of 18 stylists queried, 13 expect the fall demand to be "bad."

increases did not necessitate or cause price rises. Accordingly, neither should the coal increase, it is suggested.

At the press conference yesterday, before he received the report, the President said he did not know of any study being made by the Government as to effects of the coal wage boost on the cost of living. But, he added, with a grin, Mark Sullivan would probably tell him.

The reference was to the well-known newspaper columnist, whose article yesterday forecast higher prices as a result of the coal contract.

Meantime in Congress Senator Taft (R., Ohio) disagreed with his coauthor of the new labor law, Representative Hartley (R., N. J.), over the latter's contention that soft coal operators who signed the soft coal contract have become liable to criminal prosecution.

Hartley had contended that under the new law only union dues may be withheld from workers' pay checks. He said that the operators in agreeing to allow the withholding of union assessments and initiation fees ran against a ban in the law carrying $10,000 fine and a year in jail as the penalty.

Taft Discounts Question

Taft told reporters the soft coal coal operators who signed up with Lewis may have violated the new law in this respect, but he termed it "only a minor item."

"As far as the employer is concerned," Taft said, "it is up to him to protect himself when he makes a contract. They (employers) are free to make any contract they wish to make."

Taft said he thought maybe Lewis had driven a hard bargain which might force the price of some basic commodities up and start a new inflationary spiral. But that, he said, is a matter for the Congressional Economic Committee to consider, not the Justice Department.

Farm Benefits Favored by Senate Group

By The Associated Press

Farm-minded Senators yesterday reversed the House economy drive by agreeing to restore more than 2 billion dollars to the annual agricultural appropriation.

Agreement was reached at a closed-door session of a Senate Appropriations subcommittee presided over by Senator Brooks (R., Ill.).

Senators who attended said formal public announcement of the many increases over amounts voted by the House will be made at a meeting of the full appropriations committee Friday.

They reported these major increases:

1. A full 300 million dollars for benefit payments to farmers who complied this year with the Administration's "conservation and use" program and a pledge to continue it next year with 150 million dollars for these purposes. The House had cut this year's payments to 150 million dollars and directed that no program be planned for 1948.

2. A full 75 million dollars to continue the Federal aid for school lunch programs in the next 12 months. The House had allowed 45 million dollars for this program after its Appropriations Committee recommended only five million dollars.

3. A 250 million dollar fund for the Rural Electrification Administration's loan program. This is 25 million dollars more than recomended by the House. Administrative funds for this agency also were increased one million dollars.

Loan Fund Restored

4. A 20 million dollar loan fund to aid veterans and tenants to become land owners. The House had eliminated this item.

As the bill reached the Senate it carried about 845 million dollars for agricultural activities or some 345 million dollars less than the President's budget estimates and about 430 million dollars less than amounts voted last year.

The Senate subcommittee increases will not all show as additional new cash outlays because part of the funds will come from customs funds of 148 million dollars. Thirty per cent of these each year may be used for agricultural purposes but the House voted to use only 40 million dollars.

Gaithersburg Boy Hurt in Mishap

ODELL FLANERY, 17, of Gaithersburg, Md., had his arm entangled in a corn-husking machine for nearly an hour yesterday until fellow farm workers dismantled the machine and freed him. He is recovering at Suburban Hospital, Bethesda, Md.

of July 1 has improved corn prospects materially. In order to determine accurately any improvement, the Department of Agriculture has announced plans to have two additional crop reports on corn, one on the condition July 15, to be available July 23, and one of the condition August 15, as well as the regular report of August 1.

On the other side of the ledger the report predicts a still greater wheat crop than the phenomenal forecast of a month ago of 1,409,893,000. The new prediction is for 1,435,551,000 bushels.

That compares with last year's wheat crop of 1,155,715,000, an all-time record at that time, and the 10-year average of 890,306,000.

General Outlook Good

In its report, the department stated that the aggregate "crop prospects are surprisingly good, considering the adverse growing conditions which prevailed through mid-June."

"Total production," it added, "is 3.6 points lower than the record set last year, but is still 22.5 points above the 1923-32 average.

"A new record tonnage of the food grains—wheat, rice, rye and buckwheat—aid greatly in reaching this relatively high level.

"The contribution of feed grains is smaller than in several recent years. For while corn crops of the past five years have averaged 3058 million bushels, the prospective 1947 crop is only 2613 million; and while oats production averaged 1335 million bushels in the past five years, the current estimate for 1947 is only 1247 million."

Post Forecasts Borne Out

The forecast bore out early predictions in The Post for the great corn belt.

In Iowa, the greatest producer of corn, yield per acre is estimated at only 40 bushels per acre, compared with 60 last year. Iowa's crop was set at 396 million bushels, as compared with 661 million last year and a 10-year average of 461 million.

Ohio was set at only 118 million, against 178 million last year and 157 million average.

Indiana was set at 173 million bushels, contrasting with 231 million a year ago and 186 million average.

Illinois was forecast at 406 million, against 514 million in 1946 and 380 million average.

Besides wheat, there were other bright spots in the report.

For instance, it stated that "production of almost 13 billion pounds of milk in June tops the volume for any previous month.

"Egg production per layer in June was highest on record for the month.

"Sugar production based upon indicated production of sugar beets and sugar cane, may be about 2.3 million tons. This would be about one fifth larger than production either last year or the average.

"Hay supplies, consisting of production of about 103 million tons now being harvested and stocks of 16 million tons, are likely to be the most abundant on record per animal unit.

"Prospective deciduous fruit production is only 4 per cent less than last year's record total.

"Apples will be only slightly less than the 10-year average despite a short crop in the Appalachian area.

"A record peach crop is indicated for the fourth year in succession.

"Grapes are forecast at a record and pears a near record.

"Aggregate production of summer-season truck crops is estimated at 2,732,000 tons—4 per cent below last year, but 20 per cent above the 1936-45 average."

Barley, Rye Production Up

"A barley crop of 284 million bushels is in prospect, 8 per cent larger than the 1946 crop.

"Production of rye in 1947 is estimated at 25,219,000 bushels, about 35 per cent above last year's 19 million.

"A record rice crop of 75,485,000 bushels is in prospect. This bumper crop would exceed by almost four million bushels the previous record production in 1946.

"Production of flaxseed is estimated at 38,374,000 bushels, two thirds more than last year."

"The 1947 acreage for soy beans is 11 per cent more than the 14½-million acres in 1946, but is less than for any of the war years, 1942 to 1945.

Area Crops Little Hurt

located orchards, particularly in the Timberville area of Rockingham County have fair to good crops.

"In Frederick and Clark Counties, the orchards in lowlands have very light crops, while on the ridges the fruit set is fair to good.

"Harvest of Transparent and Williams Red varieties will be in fair volume about mid-July.

"In West Virginia, the set varies greatly both between and within orchards. The crop appears shortest in Jefferson County, with some improvement nearer the northern part of Berkley County.

"The set around Paw Paw and levels is spotted, with the best prospects in the Romney-Augusta area. Apples are sizing well, with Transparents starting to move about July 10, a week later than last year."

Peaches, the report states, in the mid-Atlantic Area (Virginia, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland) "indicated about a fifth below 1946, but nearly a fifth above average.

"New Jersey and Pennsylvania have about the same size crops as last year, but Maryland, Delaware and the Virginias are sharply lower.

"The crop averages at least ten days later than usual. Volume harvestings are indicated for the last half of August and the first week of September."

As for milk, the report states that "in most Southern states east of the Mississippi River, July 1 production per cow was substantially above average, with largest increases reported in Maryland, Virginia, Tennessee and Mississippi."

Milk production for Virginia was estimated at 180 million pounds, against 183 million in June a year ago, and an average of 149 million.

FIESTA SALAD
...with the fresh, fresh flavor of Blue Plate Mayonnaise

2 tomatoes
1 large or 2 small avocados
1 large or 2 small cucumbers
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Salt
1 teaspoon onion juice (optional)
Lettuce, chickory, or watercress
Blue Plate Mayonnaise

Cut avocados lengthwise, remove seed, peel, and slice lengthwise. Peel and dice cucumbers. Place thick slice of tomato on greens arranged on individual salad plate. Top with avocado slices, sprinkle with lemon juice, onion juice if desired, and salt. Fill center with Blue Plate Mayonnaise—a good generous portion. (Creamy Blue Plate Mayonnaise is made especially to please Southern tastes—just sweet enough, just tart enough. Adds fresh home-like flavor to all your salads.) Arrange diced cucumber around avocado. Serves 4.

Bring down the temperature! Bring on Blue Plate ICED Coffee

For each person, make double-strength coffee, allowing 4 level tablespoons Blue Plate Coffee and 1 measuring cup of water. Pour fresh-made hot coffee over cracked ice or cubes.

Blue Plate Coffee gives you the "full-strength flavor" that's so important for ICED coffee. Without it, the taste is weak and watery. Taste Blue Plate Iced Coffee—and enjoy all the true mellow flavor you love so well.

CREAMY PEANUT BUTTER FUDGE
Yes . . . you can make homemade candy really smooth—with smooth Blue Plate Peanut Butter

2 cups sugar
¼ cup Blue Plate Peanut Butter
½ cup milk
½ cup white corn syrup
Pinch salt
2 tablespoons Blue Plate Margarine
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup shredded coconut, if desired

Put first 5 ingredients into deep sauce pan, stir well. Cook over moderately low flame, stirring occasionally, about 20 min. until a little candy dropped into cold water can be formed into a soft ball. Remove from heat, pour into clean dry bowl, add vanilla and margarine but do not stir. Let stand until lukewarm. Add coconut if desired. Beat about 4 to 5 min., until candy turns much lighter color and begins to lose its gloss. Turn onto oiled plate, and knead at once about 2 min., until smooth and creamy and not crumbly. Shape into a roll on waxed paper or oiled plate, and slice.

Five Nations Report Inability To Meet Grain Requirements

Paris, July 10 (U.P.).—Three special committees of the emergency International Cereals Conference were charting distribution of the world's depleted bread ration today amid reports from five food ministers that they could not fill their grain needs this year.

French spokesman Yves Baylot, secretary-general of the food commissariat, told the 38-nation conference that he feared political repercussions if France was forced to reduce the bread ration below the present level.

Delegation chiefs from Austria, Italy, Czechoslovakia and Eire all said they were "doing everything possible" to meet their own grain needs, but could not do it this year.

American Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson had informed delegates yesterday that the United States would be unable to increase her grain exports during the coming year.

Meanwhile, the special committees worked in private on surveys to determine grain collections for 1947-48, the best livestock feeding program and the most efficient rationing systems.

Judge Refuses to Cut Tilden's Jail Sentence

Los Angeles, July 10 (AP).—William (Big Bill) Tilden, former world's tennis champion, today lost his second attempt to gain modification of a nine-month jail sentence which followed his conviction of contributing to the delinquency of a 14-year-old boy.

Superior Judge A. A. Scott said: "This man can't be free. I won't permit him to be free. If the doctors can't cure him, he should be put in a State hospital and kept there for the rest of his life."

St. Mary's Oystermen Offer 7-Point Plan to End Dispute

Leonardtown, Md., July 10 (AP).—A seven-point formula for ending the Maryland-Virginia Potomac River oyster poaching dispute of long standing was offered to the State Tidewater Fisheries Commission by St. Marys County watermen.

Maryland owns the river, but by terms of a compact adopted in colonial days, Virginia watermen have fishing rights in the stream.

Dredging is forbidden, but Maryland has charged Virginians with dredging the river illegally for the last several years.

Virginians contend they cannot make a living if they tong for oysters instead of dredging them up.

The suggested program was contained in a letter sent the commission by State Senator Paul J. Bailey, attorney for the St. Marys watermen.

It called for:

1. Division of the river down its center, with Maryland watermen allowed to fish on Free State side and Virginians on theirs.

2. Overhaul the police force for the Maryland half, appointing experienced, qualified watermen and giving them fast patrol boats.

3. Separate the force into two categories: (a) Inspectors and tax and license collectors; (b) young, aggressive patrolmen to police the river.

4. Divide the 50-mile oystering strip into 10 five-mile sectors, with a patrol boat working day and night.

5. Set up local advisory committees of experienced watermen to report regularly to the Tidewater Fisheries Commission on conditions.

6. No "political" appointments to the enforcement patrol.

7. No dredges or patent tongs.

Soviet Control of Dardanelles Seen Step to Rul of Egypt

If Russia ever gets control of the Dardanelles she will seek to take over Egypt and other neighboring territories, Dr. Christos Kopsidas, a member of the Greek Chamber of Deputies, said here last night.

"Since Russia could make no headway with Turkey she is working on Greece, taking advantage of the desparate hunger and poverty of the people for propaganda purposes," he declared.

Dr. Kapsidas, who arrived in the party of the Greek foreign minister, Constantine Tsaldaris, is visiting his brother, John A. Kopsidas of 2739 Chesapeake st. nw.

A physician, Dr. Kopsidas served in the medical corps of the Greek army in both World Wars and was a member of the Zervas resistance forces during the German occupation in the recent war. He represents the district of Hrodopes, Thrace, in Greece's single-chamber government, and is a member of the Laikos, or Popular Party.

"Greek guerillas of today are traitors," he said, his remarks being translated by Mrs. Kopsidas, and added that he had seen the Greek army in action on their side of the Greeco-Bulgarian border in the mountains two weeks ago.

"Quite a few were captured and a number of them asked to join the Greek army, saying they had been forced to join the Communists. They volunteered information on location of hidden arms and ammunition."

He estimated that only 40 per cent of the guerillas are Greeks, and that the remainder came from other countries.

The reported plan for a communist uprising in the cities, which the government has just asserted it has scotched, he said was probably an effort to keep the Greek army away from the border and thus give the guerillas a free hand.

"America wants to save the world for freedom, and another country wants to enslave it," he said. "America should be thanked."

Czechs Recall Acceptance

entire cabinet has voted against Czechoslovakia's attendance at the conference."

From the very first, the Czechs have wanted to participate in the Marshall program, culminating in the official acceptance on Tuesday of the invitation to attend the conference.

The length of the cabinet session alone indicated that some parties in the government must have objected seriously to the reversal.

Afterwards, however, an unofficial spokesman from one major party said "What else could we do?"

Today's editions had buried stories of the Paris talks and displayed leading articles on the Czech delegation's hope of obtaining still stronger trade agreements with Russia.

The French foreign ministry said in Paris that refusals had been received from six nations, all of them within the Russian sphere. They were Poland, Hungary, Romania, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania.

Formal acceptances were received from 15 states—Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Greece, Eire, Iceland, Italy, Luxembourg, Norway, the Netherlands, Portugal, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey and Czechoslovakia.

Twent-two were invited by France and Britain.

Dispatches from Paris said France severely criticized Poland and other eastern European nations for standing aside from continental economic cooperation.

The conference is intended to set up committees which will survey Europe's capabilities and needs and then report to the United States just where that country can assist Europe.

Gottwald and Czech Foreign Minister Jan Masaryk both saw Stalin last night and Czech sources in Moscow said the meeting in the Kremlin took place in a "friendly and warm atmosphere."

Meanwhile, Czechoslovakia continued tightening her trade links to the Eastern bloc. She announced a provisional trade exchange pact with Hungary.

Thirteen per cent of Czechoslovakia's foreign trade is with Russia. She is sending out more than she is getting back.

[Obviously, the Czech decision was decided in Moscow. As late as 12:45 p. m. (EDT) Thursday, Czechoslovakia's Foreign Minister Masaryk wanted to participate.

[He gave a brief phone interview from Moscow to American Broadcasting Co. Commentator Martin Agronsky, who called him from Washington.

[Agronsky asked: "Do you think that the Paris Conference will contribute to the peace of the world and to the economic stability of Europe?"

[Masaryk replied: "I certainly hope so."

[Agronsky also asked whether Czechoslovakia is following an independent course in determining its economic policy.

[Masaryk replied "We are following an independent—" Before he could complete his answer the circuit was broken temporarily.

["Why did your government first accept the Paris conference invitation as a participant and then change its mind and come an observer?" Agronsky asked.

["We have not become an observer; we have accepted," Masaryk replied.—Editor's note.]

Italy to Have Full Status

Rome, July 10 (AP).—France told Italy today the Italian delegation to Paris would be considered by the French government on "an equal footing with all others."

Roy HarperNamed Federal Judge

By The Associated Press

Roy W. Harper was nominated yesterday by President Truman to be a roving Federal District Judge for Missouri.

Harper, Democratic State chairman of Missouri, would succeed John Caskie Collet, presidential intimate, which Mr. Truman recently elevated to the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals.

China Reds Peril Rail Line

Nanking, July 10 (AP).—New Communist advances in Shantung province and reports of Russian movements in southern Manchuria marked China's civil war today.

Hollington Tong, government minister of information, told correspondents the Communists again were thretening to cut the Tsinan-Suchow north-south railway in the vicinity of Taian, about 55 miles south of Tsinan, and Feihsien, 100 miles southeast of Tsinan.

(He gave the details, but the Communist radio reported that Communist troops already had captured Feihsien and a vast stretch of surrounding countryside. The broadcast said other Communist forces were on the offensive on both sides of the Peiping-Hankow railway, main north-south route, in northern Honan province just north of the Yellow River.)

Russia Spurns Police Force Commitments

Lake Success, N. Y., July 10 (U.P.).—Russia bluntly refused today to tell what it would contribute to a proposed international police force, or suggest how large the total force should be.

William R. Hodgson of Australia reminded the United Nations Security Council that all the Big Five powers except Russia had suggested over-all figures for the "international army." He asked Soviet Delegate Andrei Gromyko to do the same.

Gromyko replied: "Regarding the advice that the Australian delegate has given to the Soviet, I thank him for it very much, but I shall not avail myself of it."

American officials indicated privately, however, that they would ask the council to make a formal request for estimates from Russia. The request would have no binding force, but would tend to embarrass the Soviet if it refused to answer. Gromyko made it clear that he had no intention of answering now.

Gromyko said that it was "impossible" to work out estimates of total strength or individual contributions until the Security Council agrees on basic principles that would govern the U. U. force. It would be under command of the Security Council, which could order it into action to prevent or turn back aggression.

The forces would be kept in their home countries, and assembled into one fighting machine only when the Security Council called.

Other U. N. developments:

1. A formal move by Saudi Arabia guaranteed that the U. N.'s 55-nation General Assembly, meeting September 16, will debate a proposal to end the British mandate over Palestine.

2. The Security Council referred to its membership committee, Austria's application to join U. N. Gromyko said the request could not be considered until the Austrian peace treaty is signed. American Delegate Herschel Johnson replied with a thinly veiled hint that Russia was to blame for the slow signing of peace treaties.

3. The U. N. Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East, beginning a new series of meetings, heard the Philippines complain that only five of the 10 commission members were Asiatic countries, while six Asiatic nations were not.

Scallop Fishing Boat Rams Another, Sinks

Boston, July 10 (U.P.).—Blinded by fog, the New Bedford scallop dragger Acushnet rammed the New York dragger Rainbow 127 miles east of Pollock Rip Lightship today and the New Bedford crew abandoned their vessel, which later sank.

No member of either crew was injured.

AuthorityOver Property

An "Indian emancipation" bill to give all Indians full authority over their own property and money—if they want it—was cleared yesterday by the House Rules Committee for consideration by the House.

The bill, sponsored by Representative D'Ewart (R., Mont.), would permit Indians to apply for a writ of competency which would cut them off tribal rolls.

Reds Irk Chile By Treatment Of Diplomats

Santiago, Chile, July 10 (U.P.).—Growing official irritation at the treatment given Chilean diplomats in Moscow was reflected today in a motion sent to the House Foreign Affairs Subcommittee cutting off funds for the Chilean Embassy unless the Kremlin accords it more adequate treatment.

The motion, which seemed assured of an early vote, also directed the Foreign Ministry to report to the committee on the result of representations made two days ago to Soviet Ambassador Dimitri Zhukov.

It was reported that, besides demanding proper housing for the embassy staff, the Foreign Office had protested against the refusal of Russian authorities to allow the Russian wife of the Chilean Ambassador's son, Alvaro Cruz Ocampo, to leave the country with him.

This case was similar to that of many American and British subjects who married Russian women in the Soviet Union and found themselves unable to get them out of the country.

Also involved was Chilean Charge d'Affaires Carlos Valenzuela, who, on the eve of his departure for Moscow, married Eliana Cori, beautiful and talented society girl, and who now is living with her and with the Cruz Ocampos in a single room in Moscow.

This casual handling of Chilean diplomats was contrasted by outraged Congressmen with the regal treatment extended the Soviet Embassy here. They recalled that when Zhukov and his staff of 45 arrived late in 1945, they came in a fleet of specially chartered planes, were welcomed by military bands and were housed in Santiago's most luxurious hotel.

On the other hand, they said, when Chilean Ambassador Luis David Cruz Ocampo arrived in Moscow, he wandered for five hours before an Intourist guide befriended him.

Bullitt Flies to China As 'Private Individual'

Honolulu, July 10 (U.P.).—William C. Bullitt, former United States Ambassador to Russia, stopped over at Honolulu today en route to China, where he will "look around and see what's going on." Bullitt, who arrived here last night, said he was going to the Orient only as a private individual with no official status.

U. S., Russians Deadlocked On Consulting Korean Parties

Seoul, Korea, July 10 (U.P.)—Maj. Gen. Albert E. Brown said today that the American and Russian delegations to the joint United States-Soviet Commission had been "deadlocked" for the last three weeks over the issue of what Koreans to consult about the form of their future government.

It was feared that this dispute might break up the consultations of the commission again, leaving Korea indefinitely split into occupation zones, without any unified government of its own. The issue now in dispute was basically the same as one that ended consultations last year.

Brown, who is head of the American delegation, said "zero" progress had been made since the commission returned from Pyongyang, in the Russian zone. Reliable sources said the Russians originally agreed to consult all democratic political parties and social organizations with more than 1000 members and with more than one branch.

At Pyongyang, however, the Russians accused the American delegation of "unfairly" insisting in consultation of parties that opposed trusteeship of Korea during its political infancy. The Russians were said to have charged specifically that 15 per cent of Korean rightist parties already approved by the United States for consultation were members last year of a so-called "antitrusteeship society."

This was the society, the Russians said, which engineered an antitrusteeship sitdown strike in Seoul several weeks ago. The Russian stand was that these organizations had disqualified themselves for consultation.

Senate Committee Approves Rep. Jones for FCC Post

HEADS COURT OF CLAIMS—Judge Marvin Jones, former Congressman from Texas, was sworn in yesterday as Chief Justice of the United States Court of Claims. Administering the oath of office is Chief Justice Vinson of the United States Supreme Court, right. Attorney General Tom Clark also took part in the ceremony

Marvin Jones, former Representative from Texas and president of the United Nations Conference on Food and Agriculture in 1943, yesterday became Chief Justice of the U. S. Court of Claims.

He was sworn in by Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson of the U. S. Supreme Court, a former Congressional colleague.

Witnesses at the ceremony, in a high-ceilinged room at the old Corcoran Art Gallery, included Associate Justice Stanley F. Reed of the U. S. Supreme Court; former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, former Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn, Senior Judge B. H. Littleton of the U. S. Court of Claims and Judge Samuel E. Whitaker of the Court of Claims.

Attorney General Tom Clark, also a Texan, handed the President's commission to Justice Vinson for presentation to Jones, noting that the new Chief Justice has a "distinguished record of service in all three branches."

Jones, 61 and greying, has been a member of the Court of Claims since 1940 but was on leave during most of the war years. He succeeds Richard S. Whaley, chief justice since 1939, who resigned last January.

Small Nations Oppose Big 4 On Reich Plan

Geneva, Switzerland, July 10 (AP).—The small countries of western Europe lined up against the four occupation powers in the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe today on the problem of economic relations with Germany.

A Belgian proposal to place the subject on the agenda for the commission's next session was strongly supported by the Netherlands and Denmark, but opposed by Britain, France and Russia. The United States delegation remained noncommittal, but showed little enthusiasm for the Belgian proposal.

A Belgian economic expert, Cecil de Strycker, opened the debate with a declaration on Belgium's difficulties resulting from stagnant economic relations with Germany. He pressed for establishment of a rate of exchange for the German mark which, he alleged, was at present arbitrarily varied by the occupation authorities for different German exports.

A memorandum previously circulated by the Belgian delegation had openly described these variations as a violation of the Bretton Woods agreement.

"The complete disappearance of Germany as a commercial partner has caused very serious disturbance to European economy," said de Strycker.

"We ask for the reestablishment of large trade between Germany and the other countries of Europe," he said. Paul R. Porter, the United States Government would have to consider the problem in detail before expressing its views.

"I can say, however," he added, "that we recognize the necessity for establishing a stable rate of exchange for the reichsmark as early as practicable."

Senate Committee To Hear Marshall On Foreign Policy

By The Associated Press

Secretary of State Marshall yesterday undertook a new working relationship with Congress apparently designed to bolster bipartisan support on United States foreign policy in the critical months ahead.

Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, announced that Marshall will appear before the committee today for a review of world conditions as he knows them behind the scenes.

Marshall's personal liaison role will mark a resumption of close contacts maintained by the State Department with the Senate during the war, when a bipartisan subcommittee met often with former Secretary Cordell Hull for off-the-record sessions on key developments.

Those contracts have dwindled in the interim. Now both Marshall and Vandenberg are represented as anxious to renew them with the Republican-controlled committee.

Jinnah to Head Pakistan any connection with former "political enemies," the dispatch added.

Some informed British sources speculated that Jinnah's appointment, probably to be followed by a knighthood or even peerage, might enhance the chances that Pakistan would remain within the commonwealth, regardless of the choice made by the predominantly Hindu Dominion of India.

Attlee said the Moslem League had consented to one slender tie—that Lord Mountbatten will be chairman of a joint defense committee until the Indian army can be divided between the dominions. Field Marshal Lord Auchinleck will continue as commander in chief of all forces.

Jawaharlal Nehru, vice president of the present All-India interim government under Lord Mountbatten and leader of the predominantly Hindu Congress Party, is regarded as a certainty for premiership of the new Dominion of India.

Calcutta, India, July 10 (U.P.)—Ten persons were killed and some 75 injured today as communal rioting, growing more intense by the hour, raged for the fourth successive day in this city's brickbattered streets. The death toll stood at 117.

Farley Says Roosevelt Ignored Protests in Selecting Wallace as 1940 Running Mate

By The Associated Press

James A. Farley said yesterday the late President Roosevelt insisted on Henry A. Wallace as his running mate in 1940 over the protests of Farley, Mrs. Roosevelt and the Roosevelt sons, Elliott and Franklin, jr.

In the fifth and last of a series of articles in Collier's on why he broke with the New Deal President, Farley reported that Cordell Hull, then Secretary of State; Jesse H. Jones, then chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, or Paul McNutt, an avowed vice presidential candidate, could have been nominated for second place.

But he wrote that Hull didn't want the nomination, Jones decided of his own accord to withdraw his name from a list of 17 potential candidates, and McNutt withdrew "at the request of the President."

Roosevelt Picks Wallace

Farley said he went to the 1940 convention determined to let his name be placed in nomination for the Presidency, not because he believed he could win, but to express his opposition to a third term.

He accused James F. Byrnes and the late Harry L. Hopkins of "trying to make it appear that the President was being drafted, when everyone knew it was a 'forced draft' fired from the White House itself."

After Roosevelt had been nominated, he called Farley and told him he had decided on Wallace as his running mate, wrote the former Democratic national chairman and Postmaster General. Farley said he replied that he had a personal regard for Wallace's qualities but "the people look on him as a mystic and I think you'll regret it."

"He's not a mystic," Roosevelt snapped. "He's a philosopher. He's got ideas. He thinks right. He'll help the people think."

Farley said he told the President that Jesse Jones was his choice, that he would "offset the lack of business support, big and little, which will come if Wallace should be the nominee." The President was silent.

Elliott Opposes Wallace

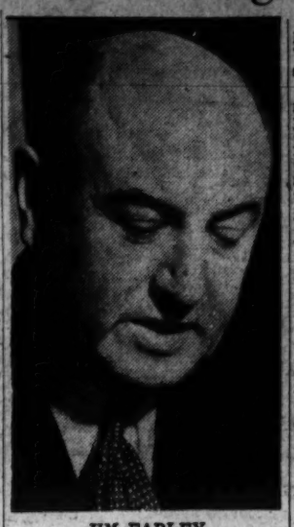
Later, Farley recounted, Elliott Roosevelt came to him "to say he thought it would be a great mistake to nominate Wallace."

Elliott promised to second Jones if Farley nominated him.

Farley met Mrs. Roosevelt at the Chicago airport where, he said, she and her son Franklin, jr., agreed that it "was a mistake to nominate Wallace." Later, at her hotel, Farley said Mrs. Roosevelt had the following telephone conversation with the President:

"Franklin, I've been talking with Jim Farley and I agree with him, Henry Wallace won't do. I know, Franklin, but Jesse would bolster the ticket, win it business support and get the party contributions."

The President asked that Farley be put on the phone. "I've given my word to Wallace, Jim," he quoted the President. "What do you do when you give your word?"



JIM FARLEY

"I keep it," Farley said he replied, but felt he had answered "perhaps too quickly and too sharply."

When the second place race was narrowed down to the late Speaker Bankhead, Wallace and McNutt, Farley said, McNutt could have been nominated because the delegates "did not want Wallace," but the Indianan withdrew at the President's urging.

Discarded for Truman

Wallace finally was nominated by 627 out of 1100 votes, but Roosevelt discarded him for Harry S. Truman in 1944. Farley resigned, from both Cabinet and party jobs in August, 1940. Before he left Washington he talked with Hull about the convention. He said this conversation took place:

Hull: "I think I was treated unfairly by the fellow in his not letting my name go before the convention. (Farley previously had written that Hull could have been nominated for the Presidency and elected.) That is not so bad as the fact that I have received no recognition for what I have done as Secretary of State in a most trying and most vital period of this country's history."

Farley: "What about the Vice Presidency?"

Hull: "Oh, that! He tried everything he could think of to get me to take it. He argued and smiled. Then he smiled and argued. I said, 'No, by God!' and 'by God, no!' And that's all there was to it. I felt he was trying to kick me upstairs. I'd rather go."

After the election, Farley said he wrote the President a letter of congratulation and received a reply which was unsigned except for the typewritten initials "F. D. R."

"Later I learned," Farley wrote, "that the President had deliberately chosen to let it go unsigned."

SHERRY WINE?

☑ an age-old variety of wine produced solely from grapes

☑ a moderate, delicately flavored appetizer or dessert wine

☑ the world's best invitation to a good dinner

SHERRY is the most popular of appetizer wines. It is the kind of wine that tastes best before dinner. Sherry wine is produced from fresh, ripe grapes.

In producing Sherry the first step after grape picking is to crush the grapes and let the natural juice ferment. Before all of the natural grape sugar in the juice is fermented, the vintner adds a small amount of pure grape brandy. This arrests the fermentation, and so some of the sweetness of the grape stays in the wine.

After that, Sherry is aged for months in warm rooms or in casks placed in the sunshine, and this slow "baking" imparts the nutlike Sherry flavor. Then comes further aging and finally the clear amber-colored Sherry is ready for your table. Try some before dinner. Wine Advisory Board, 717 Market Street, San Francisco.

Due to favorable soil, climate and the vintner's skill, California Wines are among the highest quality wines in all the world

Tongues Wag As Landon Cuts Dewey Affair

Kansas City, July 10 (AP).—Alf Landon, 1936 GOP presidential candidate, was absent from a luncheon given today by Kansas and Missouri Republican leaders for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey but denied that he had snubbed the New Yorker.

The absence of the former Kansas Governor had led to speculation that Landon might oppose Dewey for the presidential nomination.

Landon, at his home in Topeka, said:

"It was nothing personal."

He said he had conferred with the Governor at Pawling, N. Y., last month and added he stayed home today so that other party leaders would have a chance to talk with Dewey.

Dewey Leading, Carlson Says

Observers well acquainted with Landon's political maneuvering said he was pursuing a "wait and see" course. Landon, these sources reported, feels that if the Henry Wallace group forms a third party the Republican race will be wide open and the Kansan wants his State's delegates to go to the 1948 convention uncommitted.

Gov. Frank Carlson of Kansas, who arrived from Washington in time to join the receiving line at an afternoon reception for the Deweys, said the New York Governor was leading all other candidates for the GOP nomination in Kansas.

More than 1000 persons attended the public reception, which climaxed Dewey's visit to Kansas City. He was to leave late tonight for Salt Lake City to attend the Governors' Conference opening there Sunday.

There were no other conspicuous absentees at the luncheon, attended by 250 leaders from the two States and sponsored by Harry Darby and Barak T. Mattingly, national committeeman from Kansas and Missouri, respectively.

First Ballot for Eisenhower

Mrs. Landon attended another luncheon, given by Mrs. Darby for Mrs. Dewey. Mrs. Carlson, wife of the Kansas Governor and other Republican women, also attended the luncheon.

Darby repeated at the luncheon his assertion of yesterday that Kansas had supported Dewey in 1940 and 1944 "and I think he is even more popular now." While Dewey supporters said privately they believed the majority of Kansas' 16 delegates would back Dewey, the consensus of Jayhawker GOP leaders was that the delegation probably would cast its first ballot for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as a "favorite son." There was no apparent boom for Eisenhower in Kansas City today, however.

Dewey spoke briefly at the luncheon. He praised former Gov. Andrew Schoeppel of Kansas and credited the Kansas City Republican organization and the Kansas City star with "bringing good government" to the city.

Mattingly, who predicted last week that Missouri's delegates would vote for Dewey, pledged his personal support of the governor at the luncheon today.

Some Missouri Republicans said Mattingly's prediction would stiffen any opposition in the "show-me" state to Dewey's nomination.

Reports circulated at the luncheon today that the midwest would seek a place on the Republican ticket if the nomination goes to Dewey. Governor Carlson and Senator Forrest Donnell (R., Mo.) were among those mentioned as vice presidential possibilities.

Disappearance in Cave Called Publicity Hoax

Nashville, Tenn., July 10 (AP).—The underground hunt for John T. Hurn in legendary nickajack cave ended today with an ocial announcement that his disappearance was "a hoax from beginning to end, for publicity."

State Safety Commissioner Lynn Bomar said that instead of being lost in Nickajack, an unprofitable tourist venture in which Hurn had an interest, Hurn was in New York some 800 miles away.

Not Worried

Scandal Talk Belittled By Truman

Tulsa, Okla., July 10 (AP).—An assertion by former Representative Roger C. Slaughter (D., Mo.) that a "scandal threatens" the Truman Administration brought a quick retort from the President today that he isn't worried.

Slaughter

Mr. Truman helped defeat Slaughter for reelection in Missouri's 1946 primary.

Slaughter, who said he was convinced "the President is personally an honest and honorable man," made the "scandal" assertion in a speech at a Chamber of Commerce forum here and continued:

"Like Grant and Harding, he (Mr. Truman) has been misled by false friends, and has likewise been the victim of his own impetuosity."

Truman Consider "Source"

The President, asked to comment at his press conference in Washington, replied that, in view of the source, he was not worried.

Apprised of Mr. Truman's comment on the statement in his prepared text, Slaughter interpolated in his address:

"The President's statement that he isn't worried and considers the source speaks for itself.

"If the President is not worried he is in a different state of mind from hundreds of Democratic candidates who will be running for office in 1948. Through no fault of their own they will be forced to carry the load of stolen ballots and blasted vault doors, all occurring as the aftermath of an election where Mr. Truman admitted he had enlisted the aid of the Pendergast machine.

"A small boy walking by a graveyard at night 'is not worried,' but his teeth chatter just the same."

Assails Pendergast Machine

Slaughter assailed the Pendergast Democratic organization of Kansas City, asserting it "finally fell of its own weight" but "like the phoenix, it managed to arise from the ashes—helped, in part, by a friendly national Administration."

"Its present importance," he asserted, "lies not in its current strength, which is considerably diminished, but rather in the effrontery with which it seeks to trade upon the prestige of the President of the United States. It brags of the fact that the President of the United States is a dues-paying member, and proudly frames his checks from annual dues. It continues, on its letterhead, to list the President of the United States as the vice president of that organization."

Tax Cut Bill To Be Vetoed

helped defeat Slaughter for renomination in the Kansas City congressional district last summer.

All the President knows about flying saucers is what he reads in the papers.

The question of a special session of Congress came up midway in the news conference. A reporter asked the President if he planned to call one.

Mr. Truman said he had no thought of it—didn't anticipate that there would be a necessity for it.

Will Take "Necessary" Steps

Later on, another reporter returned to the question. He was about to ask the President if the situation didn't more or less "necessitate" a special session, when the President broke in on him.

If the necessity arises, Mr. Truman said, the Administration will certainly take whatever steps are necessary.

"I was just trying to clarify it," the reporter said. "You don't think the necessity will arise?"

Mr. Truman said he did not see the necessity arising in the immediate future. But if it did arise, he repeated, he would do what is necessary.

PAC Maps Vast Vote Drive

Pittsburgh, July 10 (AP).—The executive board of the CIO Political Action Committee today mapped an intensive double-barreled campaign to register voters and collect voluntary dollar contributions from individual members for political activity in what the committee said was its answer to the Taft-Hartley labor law.

The executive committee, comprised of the secretaries and presidents of the six international unions affiliated with the CIO, said in a statement that "the members of these union . . . will form the core of any army of one million citizen volunteers who will preach the need of registration and voting in the blocks in which they live."

Young Democrats Back Truman

The National Committee of the Young Democratic Clubs of America gave wholehearted indorsement yesterday to President Truman's national and party leadership.

Forty-three Young Democratic State organizations were represented at the one-day committee session, held at the Mayflower Hotel.

The indorsement of the President was contained in a 20-point "statement of principles" the committee voted to propose at this fall's national convention of Young Democratic Clubs in Cleveland. The convention dates were tentatively set for October 3 and 4.

The proposed "statement of principles" indorses the President's foreign policy, asks retention of many of the social gains of the New Deal, and urges a "planned reduction" in the cost of Federal Government and in the national debt rather than "a helter-skelter slashing of Government costs by abandoning essential peacetime operations."

The statement ends with the sweeping declarations that "we stand solidly in favor of continuing under the inspiring leadership of our great President, Harry S. Truman" and that "we are proud to follow his leadership."

The statement also calls for a continued "positive" party program for world peace and "a stronger and healthier" Nation at home. It also asks a national health program, a Government resources, and "decent" housing program to develop the Nation's for everybody.

Presidential Succession Bill Awaiting Truman's Signature

otherwise incapable of assuming presidential duties.

Until the bill is signed by the President, Secretary of State Marshall will remain next in line to succeed Mr. Truman. When it is signed the chance of succession to the Presidency by inheritance will about vanish.

The only Republican who voted against the measure was Representative John W. Gwynne of Iowa, who opposed the measure on the floor as unconstitutional and "dangerous."

Its danger, he said, lies in the opportunity it affords for a congressional "cabal" to impeach the President in order to make on their members the new Chief Executive.

President Complimented

Chairman Michener (R., Mich.) of the Judiciary Committee told the House President Truman "is to be complimented" for having advocated the legislation at a time when the Speaker is a member of the opposition party.

"He stood by his principle," Michener said, recalling that Mr. Truman first asked for the law when a Democrat, Sam Rayburn of Texas, was Speaker.

In passing the act both Democrats and Republicans expressed the hope that President Truman continues in good health.

Tax Cut Bill Will Be Vetoed, Truman Says

would be a blow at the free enterprise system and would jeopardize the success of the Marshall plan to help Europe help itself.

Senator Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.) spoke up in conference against presentation of any "substitute" Democratic program. Tydings argued it would be inconsistent for Democrats to fight Republican-sponsored tax cuts on the ground the Treasury couldn't stand it, and then propose tax cuts of their own.

Trade Discussed

Lucas later dropped his substitute program but Senator John L. McClellan (D., Ark.) continued to press his proposed amendment granting married couples in all States the right to equally divide their income for tax purposes.

GOP leaders sought to minimize the threat of this amendment by promising to include a similar provision in an over-all tax bill slated for action next year. McClellan said he wasn't satisfied with that promise. He urged inclusion of the amendment "to make this the best bill we can."

There was some cloakroom talk of a "dicker" on the McClellan amendment, but Republican tax spokesmen said none would be made. The amendment would add 300 million to the present four-billion cost of the bill "and lose us more votes than we gain," commented one.

"Inequities" Hit

At the outset of yesterday's tax debate, Millikin argued that mounting revenues and cuts in spending leave plenty of room for cutting taxes and making payments on the debt. Millikin estimated Congress will trim at least three billion dollars from the President's $37,500,000,000 budget. Estimating revenues "conservatively" at $41,400,000,000, he said that would leave a $6,900,000,000 surplus.

Senator Warren G. Magnuson (D., Wash.) charged the bill is loaded with "inequities" and will give the greatest benefits to those who need it least.

Lucas made a similar attack on the measure. Then he taunted Senate GOP leaders for yielding to House pressure for the Knutson bill.

"I'm shocked and surprised that they'll take orders," he said. "It's a great tribute to the boys in the House that they can make the fellows on the Republican side here walk the chalk line."

Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.), one of the handful of Republicans opposed to the bill in its present form, told reporters he will propose seven amendments. He did not disclose their nature. He denied reports that he might lead a floor action to delay a final vote on the bill.

Hope for Vote Today

Senate leaders are hoping for a vote before nightfall, but said they are prepared to call a Saturday session if necessary.

If the measure reaches the President this weekend, it is unlikely to be returned before next weekend. It was pointed out that at least three strong opponents of the bill are now absent. One of these, Senator Sheridan Downey (D., Calif.) is expected back in Washington tomorrow. Another, Senator Elbert D. Thomas (D., Utah) is due back from Switzerland next Tuesday. A third, Senator Robert F. Wagner (D., N. Y.) is still ill and not expected to return for the veto test.

If all 96 members of the Senate were present and voting, a two thirds majority of 64 would be needed to override a veto. Only 61 "sure" votes have been turned up in Republican polls. Two or three additional, however, say they have "open minds."

Police Probe

It is encouraging to note the Senate District Committee's sense of responsibility toward The Post's expose of hidden crime complaints. We hope the Senate votes the money for the authorized investigation without delay. This newspaper stands ready to aid in the probe to the extent of its knowledge and facilities. The inquiry should afford the fullest opportunity for going to the roots of the Police Department's dereliction.

It must be borne in mind that we restricted our own quest to complaints of robbery that had gone unreported. Many more cases in other crime categories were marked "held"—in the categories of housebreaking, of larceny and of assault. Moreover, even in our restricted investigation the result was presented soberly and statistically and without any effort to make a shocker out of the negligence. Now the Senate will be able to pursue the inquiry into complaints of other offenses. At the same time it will be able to answer the questions that occurred to us as to many aroused citizens as to the purposes and responsibility back of the omissions. We have an idea that the Senate will unearth enough to make this investigation the beginning of overdue reform of District administration.

The Post's probe covered 11 months ended May 31, 1947. It showed more than 300 robbery complaints held at precincts for which there was no record in the Detective Bureau or central bureau. There were 300 more at the Detective Bureau in secret files that never had been reported to the precinct in which the crimes occurred. In neither instance were the cases reported on the teletype to the central bureau and thereby made known to others of the force so that they could aid in catching the criminal. The loss to efficiency resulting from such a practice is obvious. It is bad enough to keep the public in the dark about offenses, but to keep the police in the dark is to hamstring crime detection and to reduce police morale. Faith in the police on the part of the citizenry, as one correspondent of ours has testified, has likewise been imperiled. There has been unwillingness on the part of a segment of the population even to report crimes. People took nonaction for granted; in some cases they feared mistreatment.

The practice of hiding crime records is in flagrant disregard of the FBI's latest instructions in Uniform Crime Reports. In the 1947 edition the handbook says: "Law enforcement is important public business, and as such it must be represented by adequate, well-kept records. Records constitute the official memory of a law enforcement organization. They furnish a complete record of all police activities for present and future reference." The least reprehensible feature of the hiding of crime complaints was that it gave our Police Department a prize record in the detection of crime. In other words, the department got a good press for pulling the wool over the public's eyes.

But deception usually has a purpose beyond self-adulation. What is behind a practice so susceptible to abuses other than the one of establishing a good record is a question that the Senate committee may be relied upon to press to the limit. An aroused citizenry, anxious to get honesty in police administration and the police protection that it pays for, will be content with nothing less.

Unification Halfway

The Senate can take justifiable pride in the statesmanlike way in which it expedited the armed services unification bill. The measure it approved was no fly-by-night affair. All facets of unification had been carefully explored and debated. But the Senate brooked no monkey business. When the time came for a vote, the upper chamber proceeded in orderly fashion, spiking the pettifogging delays attempted by Senator Robertson. The bill it produced is a good one, by no means perfect, but one that accomplishes a substantial degree of the integration essential to modern defense. It establishes responsibility for unified top-level planning, it provides means of reconciling our diplomatic aims with our military strength, it takes stock of our national resources, it paves the way for eliminating many needless duplications. With its admitted imperfections, this is a material improvement over our present hydraheaded defense machinery which has been left uncoordinated since the war.

Now that unification has reached the halfway mark, it is to be hoped that the Senate's statesmanship will be duplicated by the House. There, unfortunately, the Committee on *Expenditures in Executive De*partments, which never should have received the bill in the first place, is still sitting tight on it. The attitude expressed by Committee Chairman Clare Hoffman is far from encouraging. Mr. Hoffman has been quoted as saying that his committee will write its own bill. He has indicated that the committee will concentrate on limiting the power of the secretary of national security, on eliminating the separate Air Force and on revamping the duties of the central intelligence agency—moves that could easily nullify most of the real integration. The only possible result of such unnecessary recapitulation would be delay—delay that becomes more ominous with Mr. Hoffman's denial that unification is considered a Republican "must."

Plainly this is a case for the Republican leadership to step in and give its errant committee head a legislative hotfoot. It must be particularly on guard against the device of introducing vexatious changes so as to spin out conference discussion beyond adjournment. The crying need is for the House committee to report out a bill substantially similar to the Senate version so that Congress can take final action promptly. For the Navy no less than the Army, this bill is the foundation stone for building a solid national defense. And it would be only self-delusion to term any measure "unification" if shortsighted dissidents were permitted to water it down to ineffectiveness.

Loyalty Hearings

Of the ten individuals summarily dismissed from the State Department last week, four have now had their cases reviewed by a panel hastily created for that purpose and five others have requested such a review. Secretary Marshall had said of these men that none had sought a hearing—implying that this amounted to an acknowledgment of their guilt. Apparently, however, in respect of nine out of the ten, the failure to seek a hearing was due only to lack of opportunity. The Secretary stated also that all ten knew why they were dismissed.

A letter from a State Department employe appearing elsewhere on this page asserts that at least one of the ten had no knowledge of the reason for his dismissal and that his immediate associates were similarly bewildered. In addition, this correspondent expresses a suspicion which is undoubtedly widespread—Jerry Kluttz reported in The Post Monday "some members of Congress hint it's really true"—that the dismissals were a price paid in order to obtain needed appropriations from Capitol Hill.

The suspicion is a grave one—affecting at once the Secretary's own good name and the morale of all his subordinates. It is a suspicion to which, in our estimation, Mr. Marshall's whole career provides a formidable answer. But this kind of legislative blackmail—coercion through the withholding of appropriations—has nowadays become a common practice, and only the toughest of administrators can be counted on to withstand it. The review procedure adopted in the State Department is designed neither to protect the Secretary from the suspicion of yielding to such coercion nor to protect individual employes who may be its victims. For it is a star chamber sort of review, more ritualistic than real.

Under it, the dismissed persons (the review comes only after the dismissal has taken effect) may present affirmative statements as to their loyalty and integrity to a three-man panel. They are given no specification as to the charges against them and therefore have no means of refuting the charges. They may not be represented or advised by legal counsel, for indeed they have no legal rights in the matter. And, finally, the panel's members are themselves agents of the authority which ordered the dismissals, including, perhaps, even individuals who recommended the dismissals. Review of cases of this kind can be meaningful only if conducted by a genuinely impartial panel of outsiders and only if they afford the accused real opportunity to answer known, specific accusations.

It should be recognized that a situation of this kind presents a difficult dilemma. Secretary Marshall dealt with it, we think, in a commendably candid manner. He did not resort to the easy evasion of dismissing the ten employes on a pretext of retrenchment. Neither did he, on the other hand, charge them with outright disloyalty, and he sought to protect them from the worst consequences of such a charge by withholding their names. He charged them merely with "indirect" association with foreign representatives which made him distrustful of them. But since he refused to let them resign, presumably because he was unwilling to see them get jobs elsewhere in the Government, he undoubtedly subjected them to a very severe penalty; it will be hard for them now to obtain even private employment.

Of course, Secretary Marshall cannot reasonably be asked to keep in his department employes in whose good faith he lacks confidence. The trouble is, however, that Washington's current climate is such as to direct suspicion at almost anyone whose thought or conduct deviates in any way from the most rigid conventionality; and the Secretary himself, since he cannot have direct acquaintance with all his subordinates, cannot easily be sure that suspicion has a substantial basis. If intelligence and initiative are to be preserved for the Government, which means safeguarding employes against unjust suspicion, and if the morale of Federal employes is to be maintained, which means safeguarding administrators from suspecting unjustly, some better review procedure than that pursued by the State Department must be devised.

At the very least, in our judgment, suspect employes should be allowed to resign without prejudice unless the suspicion concerning them is found to be substantial by an independent loyalty board which will afford them full opportunity to refute specific charges. Otherwise we shall have a Federal service ruled by caprice rather than by merit standards and something perilously akin to the atmosphere of a police state.

Heavenly Days!

The flying saucer story, it seems to us, has got a little out of bounds. A certain journalistic indulgence for apparitions of sea serpents, glawaki, snallygasters, Jersey devils, banshees, werewolves, vampires and chimeras is of course traditional in the hot-weather weeks, although, to be technical, the silly season does not open officially until August 1. These new celestial phenomena have been observed at this writing in 44 of the 48 States and over four of the five continents, counting Australia.

We promised, to take a firm stand on this question if and when the apparitions began to extend into other species of crockery. This has already come to pass. Over in Baltimore someone reported a vision of iridescent teacups, or perhaps it was shaving mugs, and it seems only a question of days or hours before somebody notices a whole tea service, complete with sugarbowl, creamer and slopjar. Sooner or later, to judge by our correspondence on the subject, somebody, subconsciously influenced by the famous story of Socrates and Xantippe, is going to report an apparition that will cause the fellows on the news desks even more embarrassment than the story of the fiery straw hats seen in the heavens over Nebraska and the luminous quoits, or it may have been doughnuts, that were observed over England.

We don't want to be uppity about this business, but it seems to us that the boys have only themselves to blame that the story has got out of hand. Some of them are pretty bitter about Lieut. Warren Haught, USA, official press agent for the Army Air Forces command near Roswell, N. Mex., because he sent out a story beginning, "The many rumors regarding the flying disk became a reality yesterday when—" It seems to us that Lieutenant Haught was only doing his job according to his lights, and, after all, he got the name of Roswell Field into the first pages of almost every newspaper in the country before the thing that was found there turned out to be some kind of meteorological kite. We venture to say that if Lieutenant Haught calls up the city desks next week to tell them that the general just found a lion in his headquarters, 9 out of 10 of them will hurry a photographer right out to the place.

The worst about the flying saucer story is that we have the sensation of having read it all before. There is, for example, the allusion in Alice in Wonderland about the flying tea tray in the sky, and then there are the well-known lines by Edward Lear:

> . . . through the vast and gloomy dark
> There moves what seems a fiery spark—
> A lonely spark with silvery rays
> Piercing the coal black night—
> A meteor strange and bright;
> Hither and thither the vision strays,
> A single lurid light.

Special Session

The ways of a presidential press conference are full of pitfalls, and the President half-stepped into one of them yesterday in replying to the question about a special session of Congress this fall. On Monday he will talk over the Marshall plan with congressional leaders. Should he put up their backs needlessly, especially in the current spell of muggy weather, by announcing ahead of time that he will call a special session? Should he anticipate that there will be a plan of supranational scope out of Europe that will warrant a special session? The questions constituted the dilemma in which the President found himself when confronted by the newsman's repeated question. But, despite these circumstances, Mr. Truman decided to return a straight answer—that there seemed no present necessity for a special session. There may be a pained reaction among the statesmen of Europe who are on the eve of meeting together with a view to devising an answer to the Marshall challenge.

This all comes of the habit of which we thought Mr. Truman had cured himself, of trying to meet a question frontally. It is an indulgence that is fraught with embarrassment, even danger. The President gave no impression of any great expectations as to the outcome of the European conclave. Actually he must hope with all lovers of peace that unity of action will be discovered. Congress must then be recalled to consider it. Indeed, with or without a European scheme, the legislators doubtless will have to come back, for a crisis, if not a plan, is in the cards by the fall. This will probably be made plain when Mr. Truman meets with the congressional leaders.

BOATS WEAR WATER

In white ruffle
And frilly train
Boats wear water
As belies their party graces.
Pity the plain
Who stay at home
With lengthening faces
And lips drawn tauter,
Longing for ribbons and laces.
Pity the car, the truck, the train,
The road's poor daughter,
Who cannot glide as a boat glides,
Wearing rosettes of water.

Dismissed Employes

I wish to commend you for your excellent editorial of July 5, regarding the dismissal of 10 employes from the State Department. As a coworker of one of the dismissed employes, I have come to the conclusion that I would be participating in an injustice if I failed to speak out on two points in the Secretary of State's July 3 statement.

Secretary Marshall said (and I do not doubt that he believes this) that all the 10 knew why they had been fired and none of them had appealed to him personally. However, my coworker was given no charges and no opportunity to make a statement. Both he and the entire division working with him were dazed and incredulous at his dismissal.

He appealed immediately to the head of the personnel division, who said that he did not himself know the charges. The dismissed employe then wrote the Assistant Secretary for Administration but still was given no explanation.

This employe served the Government during the entire war. Those of us who have worked with him during these years know his political views and are convinced that he has never been disloyal for an instant to our Government. His record had been checked and approved for confidential work at least twice previously. And yet, two weeks ago without an hour's notice, he was dismissed and branded in the public mind as an uncertain risk. Although his conscience is clear, he still feels disgraced, knowing with what horror he would himself regard a possible traitor.

His coworkers, whose faith in the defense of individual rights has received a profound shock, have now been told that a board will be set up to hear possible future cases before dismissal. However, this would not remedy the injustice already inflicted upon a loyal employe, whose case was not sufficiently investigated before his dismissal.

According to the current issue of Time, a Congressional Committee on Appropriations refused funds to the State Department until the Secretary should fire employes under FBI suspicion. Secretary Marshall urged more time for investigation so that no injustice would be done, but the committee was adamant, and two days later the 10 employes were abruptly fired.

Monticello

Thomas Jefferson was the author of the Declaration of Independence, I'll grant you, but the name of his home near Charlottesville, Va.—Monticello—is pronounced "Mont-i-sel-lo," not "Mont-i-chel-lo," as a few misinformed people would have us believe.

Noah Webster, who compiled the world's foremost dictionary of the English language, is the lexicographer—authority for this former pronunciation—the one Jefferson used himself. President Truman in his Independence Day plea from this historic homestead, for world peace, used the latter. So did the diction-bewildered National and Columbia Broadcasting companies.

To show that this is pure affectation by English-speaking peoples, let us observe the case of another word—violincello. For years musicians have been calling this instrument "vee-o-leen-chel-lo" while its base counterpart is often called "chel-lo." This should surprise no one, for the violincello was invented and brought to its highest state of perfection in Italy. English musicians have tried to pronounce the word as Italians pronounce it—"vee-o-leen-chel-lo"—in honor of the Latin virtuosos.

It is a familiar fact to students of romance languages that Latins cannot pronounce the soft "c." They make attempts at it, as follows: "th," as in Spanish; "ch," as in Italian; and "z," as in French, Portuguese and other Latin languages.

But let us Americans not desecrate our national monuments by Latinizing the names so dear to us. We aim to use the soft "c" in Monticello and elsewhere for a good, long while.

Flying Saucers

Kindly allow me to advance the following theories regarding the origin of the "flying saucers":

1. They are the ghosts of the dollars being thrown away by a spendthrift Government.

2. They are the spots which occur before the eyes after drinking "neutral spirits" liquor.

3. They are the soaring costs of living which have been observed over the entire country.

J. I. LEE.

Arlington.

We wish to report a strange phenomenon, even stranger than the reports of the "flying saucers." A squadron of "flying mess kits," flying at a height of approximately 500 feet with knives and forks attached, was just reported by my best friend. When he called my attention to them, I also saw them, but personally, I think he is crazy. There were no forks on them. They were traveling at a speed of about 473.35 miles per hour and were headed in a slightly south northeasterly direction.

I, however, still persist that there were no forks attached.

Please do not publish our names, as someone might think we are crazy, or sumpin'. Heh! heh!

"Commiphobia"

In your editorial, "Chiang and China," of July 8, your opening words are: "In calling upon China to fight for her life against the Chinese Communists, Chiang Kai-shek is really appealing to the United States, trying to inflame the commiphobia in our midst with the hope of winning all-out American aid for Chiang."

Brave and welcome words, these, to the Americans who long since despaired of the press turning a hand to exorcize the anti-Communist psychosis which possesses us now and for which psychopathic state of mind the press and radio are responsible.

Our mass-controlled thinking presented a field day for those who used the powerful leverage of the Communist bogey. The device was first hatched in Hitler's fertile brain in order to seize power in Germany and "save the Fatherland from communism." He then used it on England in order to set the green light for rearming Germany "to save Europe from communism." Meanwhile, England was abundantly cognizant of the propaganda value of the Communist bogey. Wrote the Marquess of Londonderry in Ourselves and Germany, 1938: "I was at a loss to understand why we could not make common ground in some form or other with Germany in opposition to communism . . . The anti-Communist platform was (and still is) invaluable."

A few days ago a correspondent in Argentina came out with the statement that Peron had run the risk of precipitating an economic crisis in his country by so manipulating its internal affairs as to bring Uncle Sam hurrying to the rescue. His idea was that since Uncle Sam had lost all perspective and gone all-out to salvage the world, he might as well maneuver his country into the receiving line.

And so I say, more power to The Post; if you can manage to loosen the despotic hold of this psychosis on the otherwise sane thinking of the American people, you will have done a signal service to our country.

"Chiang And China"

Your July 8 editorial, "Chiang and China," shows a complete departure from your customary fair-mindedness. You express the hope that President Chiang Kai-shek will fail to win all-out American aid; you claim that nothing has happened in the last six months to call for a change in our policy toward China; and you imply that we should, therefore, continue the policy of hands-off until China has settled her "internal quarrels."

This policy in itself is one involving American meddling in China's internal affairs. The very act of setting ourselves up as judges to decide whether China's government qualifies or fails in its administrative efficiency implies interference; it also implies partiality on our part to one criterion or another that may or may not be applicable to China.

If we were to limit our qualifying factors to China's external relations with us or other important nations of the world we would be basing our judgment on sounder premises. For it so happens that China, in her relations with us and all others has an exemplary record in recent years.

It is, indeed, appalling if you have not yet realized that China's so-called civil war is more than halfway an international conflict. It seems futile to begin here to initiate you into the Russian pattern of conquest through intrigue, economic pressure, instigated revolts, Titos, satellites and even plain military force. In the near future we shall sorely need China as our ally in the western Pacific area, I believe; but even if I am wrong about this, it is our traditional policy to maintain good and cordial relations with friendly nations. Their requests for aid are honored as long as our relations with them are good and we are capable of accommodating them.

You are quite right when you say: "The job of running the subcontinent of China is beyond the genius of anybody but the Chinese." Why, then, do you advocate that we continue to meddle in China's internal affairs by passing judgment on the efficiency of the present Chinese administration?

EMMANUEL S. LARSEN.
Washington.

That able editorial "Chiang and China" justifies your reputation as one of the best informed of American newspapers on foreign affairs. It should prove to be a powerful dissolvent of the "myth" which we Americans have too long fostered as Chiang Kai-shek.

Within China Chiang Kai-shek is but another Hitler and a Stalin in one. General Marshall got the truth and formulated eventually a policy of "hands off," so to speak. If our State Department from now on can be made to adhere to the Marshall doctrine in China and deny any aid whatever to the Kuomintang government of Chiang Kai-shek, there is reason to hope that the Chinese will be able to work out their own salvation. That may mean the defeat of the present oligarchy, which will justify prompt action by the United Nations, and so test its real value.

Washington Calling

Without UMT

WAR DEPARTMENT planners are trying to figure out what the Army's deficit in manpower will be in view of the likelihood that Congress will go home without doing anything about universal military training.

It is a question of paring down here and cutting there in an effort to make do with the men who will be available. The Army has estimated that 1,070,000 men will be needed, during the coming 12 months, as a minimum for the occupation of Germany and Japan and the other far-flung commitments of our foreign policy.

The latest figures show that voluntary recruiting will fall to meet this minimum by from 100,000 to 150,000 men. This is not nearly as large a deficit as had been originally feared.

Voluntary recruiting has been more successful than early pessimistic Army estimates indicated. It was up to schedule last month and it is expected to run close to the desired monthly goal during the summer.

Army planners are particularly pleased with this showing at a time when employment is at probably the highest level in the Nation's history. Even the smallest recession would immediately step up the number of young men voluntarily enlisting. A bill recently passed by Congress offers better inducements for long-range careers in the Army, and the hope is that it will give new impetus to the recruiting drive.

THIS, HOWEVER, just about covers the credit side of the Army's ledger. High officials, both civilian and military, are pessimistic on the score of the very narrow margin on which their planning is based. Set against this margin, a deficit of 100,000 to 150,000 men looks very large.

The only reserves the Army has are two divisions, one of which is not up to full strength. An infantry division, it is at about 8 per cent of strength. The other one, an airborne division, is virtually at full strength. This means under 30,000 men in reserve for any emergency that might arise.

About 150,000 Americans comprise our Army of Occupation in Germany and Austria. The total for Japan and Korea is 250,000. The necessity for constant replacements, who must be trained and transported across great distances, commits large additional numbers of men.

That is one reason why the opinion is growing within the War Department that our occupation force in Japan should be cut to a skeleton police force. Gen. Douglas MacArthur has long been advocating this. It was behind his recent statement urging an early peace settlement with the Japanese.

Some officials, and among them are important policy-makers, go as far as to say that we should pull out of Korea entirely. They argue that, while the Russians would take over, the difficulties of the Soviet position in Korea, in view of the fierce conflicts rending that unhappy country, would be such as to give them slight advantage.

PULLING OUT of Korea and leaving merely a police force in Japan, the Army would save upwards of 200,000 men. This would make it possible to balance the manpower books on the basis of voluntary recruiting and add something to the reserve at the same time. The story in Korea is a perpetual wrangle with the Russians, plus the difficulties that our occupation has encountered with ardent Korean Nationalists now freed from years of cruel oppression under the Japanese.

It is, of course, not a foregone conclusion that Congress will put aside the universal training proposal. There is a chance that it will pass the House. But by his stump speech denouncing the training program, Senator Robert A. Taft, the Republican leader, made it virtually certain that the measure would not come up for a vote in the Senate.

The men responsible for our military establishment pin their hopes on the fact that in public opinion polls sentiment for military training has been steadily rising. In the latest poll, about 74 per cent of all persons asked said they favored the universal training program.

But the organized lobby against it is both articulate and influential. Their weakness is that they rarely talk about constructive alternatives which might help to keep the Nation strong in a time of troubled uncertainty. This last is the ever-present worry of responsible men in the War Department.

Military Training

There is a threat of militarism in these United States and universal military training is that threat. With UMT the church, the school, and the home will lose much of the influence they once had in shaping the character of American society and the ideals of militarism will take their place. This will not happen suddenly but slowly, insidiously over the years.

UMT is not the alternative to a super standing Army. The size of the postwar Regular Army has been set at but 675,000. UMT would add several million quarter-trained reserves and a million trainees to the Regular Army. Rather than do away with a super standing Army, it would create one.

Mass armies are, or soon will be, outmoded by modern warfare—atom bombs, guided missiles, biological warfare. If our military leaders were less concerned with politics they would tell us that another war means destruction, rather than demand that every boy learn close-order drill.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

Dragons Are Old-Fashioned

THE GREAT flying disc scare is a curious commentary of our times. Even until 10 years ago, the ancient nightmares—dragons, sea serpents and their relatives—served very well. But now instead of cozy, old-fashioned Loch Ness monsters, the minds of men are haunted by the man-made horrors of the age of the absolute weapons.

The trouble is that the man-made horrors are quite real, quite imminent possibilities. And so the scare of the flying discs raises a perfectly serious question. If there is to be no peace, what warning shall we have that our enemies are preparing war?

Most people assume that this question takes the rather simple form: "How shall we know when the Soviets have an atomic bomb?" Oddly enough, there is a way of learning of the explosion of an atomic bomb, even in the distant fastnesses of Siberia. It has already been tested, with our own bombs at Alamogordo and Hiroshima, Nagasaki and Bikini.

As everyone knows, the explosion of an atomic bomb releases a gigantic cloud of radioactive particles, which mushrooms upward onto the stratosphere. Here, in the calmer upper air, the radioactive cloud remains for some time, until it is gradually dissipated or precipitated. It will be recalled how the Alamogordo cloud was by chance partly precipitated in Midwestern cornfields, and ended by ruining photographic negatives whose base was made from the cornstalks.

Before precipitation can occur, however, the cloud actually circles the earth, like the dust-clouds from the volcanic explosion of Krakatoa. And it can thus provide the clew to the explosion of an atomic bomb anywhere on the earth's surface.

THE PRESENCE of the radioactive cloud in the upper air is revealed, of course, by the newly familiar Geiger counter, which measures radioactivity. The heavy hand of the security officers has silenced the Government scientists who no doubt traced the course of the Alamogordo, Hiroshima, Nagasaki and Bikini bomb clouds. But there are also amateur physicists who have their own Geiger counters to keep check on the strength of the cosmic radiation from inter-galactic space, just as farmers used to maintain measured rain gauges in their backyards for the enlightenment of the Weather Bureau. Their work has also proved the effectiveness of this odd technique.

For example on July 16, 1945, shortly after the Alamogordo explosion, Lieut. Comdr. A. R. Coven, USNR, noticed an increase in the normal rate of his Geiger counter at Annapolis, Md. The increase continued until July 18, about 60 hours after E-minute at Alamogordo, when it had almost doubled. The next day it returned to normal. Again, in July, 1946, a couple of days after the first Bikini explosion, G. Herzog noticed a sharp rise in the rate of the large Geiger counter on the second floor of his house in Houston, Tex. By the following day, the count had almost doubled, to return to normal by evening of the next day. Both these occurrences have been reported in letters to the Physical Review, together with one or two others of the same sort, and negative results from amateurs in other areas over which the clouds did not pass.

Expert, although unofficial, opinion gives these remarkable facts a simple meaning. A really adequate net of watching stations, designed to detect the presence of a radioactive cloud in any latitude, will announce the explosion of an atomic bomb anywhere on earth. As usual, since the net must be extensive, its maintenance is likely to be expensive.

BUT THIS is by no means the end of the story. Nothing, in the first place, will prevent a potential enemy accumulating great stores of fissionable material and great numbers of bombs before putting his bomb design to the final test of detonation—and it is only the explosion which makes the cloud. Thus the detection of an unexplained radioactive cloud in the upper air, if and when it comes, is entirely likely to be a sign that the worst is immediately at hand. Indeed, in this age of lightning attack, the worst might already have begun to occur, for the maximum speed of the clouds on their earth encircling journey seems to be a trifling 60 miles per hour.

Against the slight reassurance, in short, must be balanced new reasons for disquiet. Diplomatic reports from Europe describe the extraordinary frankness of Soviet diplomats seeking to dissuade nations on the fence from joining the Paris conference on Secretary Marshall's plan for European reconstruction. They have warned, in effect, that in 10 years the Soviet Union will have all the weapons of total destruction now possessed by this country, and that, when this happy time arrives, noncooperators must expect to suffer.

Nor is this testimony unsupported by other facts. The Soviet recruiting drive for German and other European physicists and engineers has been without parallel, and Soviet orders now overload the Swiss, Swedish and other European factories which can produce the complex apparatus needed for such plants as Hanford and Oak Ridge. Here, in the evidence of an armament race to produce weapons of total destruction, is the raw material of a world nightmare, which is merely reflected in the scare of the flying discs. What is being done to exorcise or minimize this nightmare is still another vital question.

Mine Decision

By Mark Sullivan

Operators' Perilous Choice

THE CONTRACT made by the coal mine owners with Mr. John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers, by which Mr. Lewis got practically all he demanded, has led to an aftermath which includes criticism of the mine owners for making the contract. Much of this focuses upon the United States Steel Corp., a large owner of coal mines, and upon its president, Mr. Benjamin F. Fairless, who was a spokesman in the negotiations with Mr. Lewis. Criticism of Mr. Lewis is passed over, presumably on the assumption, sustained by experience, that Mr. Lewis is immune; he either has developed a hardened induration or sees advantage in criticism as a thing that strengthens his position with his union following, whichever way you choose to read Mr. Lewis' extraordinary mind.

Sullivan

What went on among the mine owners as they negotiated with Mr. Lewis—while neither this nor anything else can ameliorate the effects of this contract on the public and the country's economy—reveals the reasons the mine owners took the course they did. Their early discussions with Mr. Lewis might justify the term "negotiation." There was some argument about minor aspects of Mr. Lewis' demands, such as payments to the miners' welfare fund. But what went on toward the end could hardly be called "negotiation;" it might be more accurately described as an ultimatum by Mr. Lewis that the mine owners could accept or refuse.

LEADERS AMONG them gave thought to the two sets of consequences they were obliged to choose between. Resistance would mean a strike. While the new labor law in some respects enables an employer to resist a strike more effectively than the former one-sided law, nevertheless neither the new law nor any other condition could bring a strike to termination in less than some three months or so. Meanwhile the strike in coal would bring paralysis of almost the whole of the country's industry and economy. Avoidance of this calamity was mainly the thing for which the mine owners chose to pay the price they did.

Mr. Fairless, in the statement he made as the contract was signed, emphasized the effect of an industrial paralysis on the entire country, and added that it "might also have had an adverse effect upon the international situation." What was in the mine owners' minds was that much of Europe is at this time dependent upon America for coal. It is being shipped to Europe in large quantities. Deprivation of American coal, causing distress and paralysis to Italy and other European countries, might strengthen the movement toward communism. Also, interruption of the supply of coal to Europe might impair European confidence in the Marshall plan, much cherished by our Government, which rests upon the assumption that we can help Europe recover.

THE MINE owners apprehended that a coal strike might lead to another seizure of the mines by the Government. Though the wartime law under which past seizures were made ended July 1, there was already talk that in the event of a coal strike Congress would pass an act authorizing seizure. And seizure, the mine owners felt, would be likely to end, as past seizures have, with a granting by Government of most of Mr. Lewis' demands. Granting of demands by the Government some months from now would be no less undesirable than granting by the mine owners now. An additional motive weighing with the mine owners was the wish to get on with certain technological improvements in industry now well under way, such as "gassification" of coal at the mines, expected to offset higher cost of coal.

The mine owners, as a representative of them said to this writer, had to "choose between the devil and the deep blue sea" —in which figure of speech let us assume that Mr. Lewis is the deep blue sea. The defect of their choice is suggested by a phrase Mr. Fairless used. He hoped the contract would bring "industrial peace in the bituminous coal industry for a long time to come." These words uncomfortably recall the phrase used to justify concession to Hitler at Munich for the sake of "peace in our time."

The decision the mine owners came to—leading to higher prices for coal as a basic commodity and hence to higher prices for all sorts of goods—is a step, and an ominous one, in the upward spiral of the country's price level of goods generally. That, if it should go on to serious inflation, would be a greater calamity than any which the mine owners envisaged as possible consequences of resisting Mr. Lewis.

Containment Of Russia

THE ARTICLE by "X" in the current issue of Foreign Affairs is beginning to receive the wide attention which it deserves. Internal evidence indicates that the author is George Kennan, now head of Secretary Marshall's long-range planning committee, and published assertions that he is the author have not been denied.

X's analysis of "The Sources of Soviet Conduct" is no longer new. It has gradually become the prevailing, although not unanimously accepted, view of American policy-makers. Two years ago and more, when Mr. Kennan was the counselor at the American Embassy in Moscow, he was in a minority, except among the small group of men who, like himself, had made it their business to study Russian history, Communist doctrine, and Soviet practices. The trends of Soviet postwar policy which he foresaw have materialized and his analysis makes comprehensible many actions which otherwise would be baffling.

For reasons which "X" outlines, the Soviet authorities postulate antagonism between capitalism and communism. They expect the eventual downfall of capitalism. They will hasten it in every way they can without incurring undue risks to the Soviet Union. But they are not bound to any timetable.

"THUS THE Kremlin has no compunction about retreating in the face of superior force," X finds. "And being under the compunction of no timetable, it does not get panicky under the necessity for such retreat. Its political action is a fluid stream which moves constantly, wherever it is permitted to move, toward a given goal. Its main concern is to make sure that it has filled every nook and cranny available to it in the basin of world power. But if it finds unassailable barriers in its path, it accepts these philosophically and accommodates itself to them. The main thing is there should always be pressure, unceasing constant pressure, toward the desired goal."

Thus the Russians "look forward to a duel of infinite duration." They may make agreements, but they regard them as temporary expedients.

In the foreseeable future, therefore, the United States cannot expect to "enjoy political intimacy with the Soviet regime," and must continue to regard the Soviet Union "as a rival, not a partner, in the political arena." It must continue to expect that Soviet policies will reflect no abstract love of peace and stability, no real faith in the possibility of permanent happy coexistence of the socialist and capitalist worlds, but rather a cautious, persistent pressure toward the disruption and weakening of all influence and rival power."

THE "MAIN ELEMENT" of American policy toward the Soviet Union, X concludes, must be "a long-term, patient, firm and vigilant containment of Russian expansive tendencies." At every point where the Russians "show signs of encroaching upon the interests of a peaceful and stable world," they must be confronted with "unalterable counterforce." When they find such counterforce they will retreat.

By such a policy, X believes, the Western world not only can prevent Soviet-Communist expansion, but can influence developments both within Russia and in the international Communist movements. No policy can stand up indefinitely against constant frustration. In time—perhaps 10 or 15 years—Soviet power may mellow or break up.

In the calculable future, however, the United States cannot afford to relax. It must remain strong in every way and must employ its strength alertly and fearlessly.

This may seem a dark analysis to those who still cling to the hope that stable peace can be worked out with the Kremlin —that the Russians, although hard bargainers, will stick to the agreements which they make. But, among close observers of the events of the last few years, there are not many left with those illusions.

However, X displays no pessimism about the ultimate result if the United States retains the strength, determination, and wisdom to wage a long struggle —if, as he says, the American people pull themselves together and accept "the responsibilities of moral and political leadership that history plainly intended them to bear."

Educators Advocate Adoption Of 'Adequate' Military Plan

Cincinnati, July 10 (AP).—A resolution calling on Congress to enact "such legislation as may be required 'to provide' an adequate military establishment" was handed to National Education Association delegates today at the organization's twenty-sixth annual general assembly convention.

Delegates received copies of the resolution, which will be acted upon tomorrow at the concluding general assembly meeting, after hearing Dr. Alonzo F. Myers of New York City propose a "friendly" test case before the United States Supreme Court to settle the question of whether public funds can be used for operation and maintenance of Catholic schools.

Dr. Myers made the proposal in answer to a suggestion last Saturday by Catholic Archbishop John T. McNichols of Cincinnati that the convention take a "conciliatory approach to the highly controversial question concerning use of public funds to aid nonpublic school children."

Dr. Myers made reference to the school board controversy at neighboring North College Hill where more than 500 pupils struck last March after the Catholic majority on the board voted against renewal of the contract of Superintendent Dr. William A. Cook.

A parochial school was part of the community's public school system last year but has been excluded from the new budget.

The resolution of "an adequate military establishment" made no reference to universal military training but "condemns any form of legislation which in the name of national security sets up paralel education agencies that absorb or supplant the programs of educational facilities now in existence."

The resolutions committee said its report to the Generay Assembly tomorrow would urge the NEA to condemn the "violating of contracts by teachers" and brand "the tsrike an unsatisfactory method of solving professional problems."

Dr. Morris Meister of New York City, was elected president of the National Science Teachers Association. A department of the National Education Association.

Brazilian Communist Leader Now Missing

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, July 10 (U.P.).—Senator Luis Carlos Prestes, head of the Brazilian Communist Party, was missing today and it was believed possible that he may have gone underground.

A Ministry of Justice request that the Senate permit Prestes to be brought to trial for "offenses against the public powers, insults against Brazilian armed forces and incitement to rebellion," is now under Senate study.

Prestes' immediate associates refused any information as to his whereabouts beyond saying that he had not left the country.

U. S. Generals Honored

Cairo, July 10 (AP).—King Farouk of Egypt has conferred the Grand Ribbon of Ismail upon Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, United States Army Chief of Staff, a court circular said today. The Grand Ribbon of the Nile was conferred upon Gen. Carl Spaatz, United States Army Air Force commander; Gen. Jacob L. Devers,

'Air Force Day' on Aug. 1

President Truman yesterday signed a proclamation desgnating August 1 as "Air Force Day."

Jones Okayed By Committee For FCC Post

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The Senate Interstate Commerce Committee yesterday unanimously approved the nomination of Representative Robert F. Jones (R., Ohio) to the Federal Communications Commission.

The vote as announced by Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.), chairman of the subcommittee which held hearings on the nomination, was 13 to 0. Hearings were precipitated by charges made by Drew Pearson, radio commentator and columnist, that Jones had once belonged to the Black Legion.

Pearson told the committee that he feared Jones would not look with favor on a pending application of Pearson and his associates for a radio license at Baltimore.

Denied Charges

Jones denied charges of Black Legion membership and produced a letter from FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover's files proving that Jones, when county prosecutor, had sought FBI aid in detecting and prosecuting Black Legion members.

President Truman nominated Jones for the seven-year term on the FCC after he had withdrawn, without explanation, the renomination of Ray C. Wakefield, retiring Republican member.

Three Ohio witnesses, subpenaed at Pearson's request testified on the question of the charges that Jones belonged to the Black Legion. One of the witnesses had spent 61 days in a mental institution and had been jailed six times. Another acknowledged that he had forged 18 payroll checks while a bookkeeper for an Ohio firm. The third, commander of the Black Legion at the time Jones was alleged to have joined, said he could not remember whether or not Jones had ever been inducted.

Action Likely Today

Numerous Ohio witnesses told the committee that Jones had never been accused of racial or religious prejudice.

Brewster said he had made a preliminary canvass of the Senate and had not found a single member who wanted to speak against the nomination.

The Maine Senator said the nomination would probably be acted upon today.

GAO Charges 79 Frauds in War Contracts

By the United Press

Comptroller General Lindsay C. Warren reported to Congress yesterday that the General Accounting Office had discovered fraud in 79 cases of war contract terminations and had found "reasonable evidence" that 57 other settlements were "induced by fraud."

He said the cases had been certified to the Department of Justice for action, but "no case thus far referred has been brought to conclusion."

In a blistering report, which spared neither Government officials nor war contractors, Warren said the Government might be able to recover more than two million dollars but that this would be only a small part of the fraud that occurred in settling World War II contracts.

He scornfully attacked the "feathering of nests" by some officials and employes of the Government involved in settlement negotiations.

These persons, he said, were given the opportunity to "curry favor with contractors" and then went to work immediately after the settlements for the "very contractors on whose termination claims they worked."

Glass Workers Get 8 Cent Hike

By the United Press

The CIO Glass Workers Union and the plate glass industry yesterday reached a wage agreement granting an 8-cent-an-hour increase, retroactive to last February 1, to 18,000 employes.

The 8-cent increase is in addition to the 3-cent raise granted glass workers last February. The union exercises its right under the contract to reopen wage talks after May 1.

Chapman, Hilldring To Aid Jewish Appeal

Oscar L. Chapman, Undersecretary of the Interior, and John H. Hilldring, Assistant Secretary of State for Occupied Areas, have accepted cochairmanships of he Government unit of the Christian Committee for the 1947 United Jewish Appeal, it was announced yesterday.

Secretary Chapman said the Christian committee will seek to add $200,000 to the $1,800,000 which the Washington Jewish community is trying to raise as its part of the national quota. Organization of the various Government departments for the campaign will be completed within two weeks.

Soviet Embassy Denies 'Liberty,' N. Y. Sun Charges

By the United Press

The Soviet Embassy last night denied reports that the wife of an employe at a United States atomic bomb plant was working at the embassy.

It issued a brief statement denying the charges which it said were carried by Liberty magazine and the New York Sun. The statement:

"On June 21 the magazine Liberty carried an article in which it was stated the wife of one of the employes of the factory for manufacturing of atomic energy was on the staff of the embassy in Washington.

"A like statement appeared in the article by Edward Nelson, a correspondent of the New York Sun, on July 9, who also stated that some of the Soviet agents had been seeking to steal atomic secrets.

"In connection with this the Soviet Embassy officially states that these reports are completely false and have no grounds whatsoever."

Compromise Offered In Retirement Bill

Kluttz

RETIREMENT: The House Civil Service Committee yesterday bounced back from defeat with a new compromise retirement bill which it approved unanimously. The bill, sponsored by Rep. Stevenson (R., Wis.), would make these changes in the original Langer - Chavez - Stevenson measure:

The clauses which would permit retirement at both 55 and 60 after 10 years of service were dropped; benefits to children under the survivorship plan also were eliminated, and finally stricken out was a provision to permit retirement to laid off employes after 25 years of service regardless of age.

In other words, the compromise bill would not change the existing law which allows for retirement as follows: at age 60 after 30 years of service; at 62 after 15 years of service, and on a reduced annuity at 55 after 30 years of service.

The House Civil Service group decided to rewrite the bill and scale down its benefits after the House Rules Committee voted to pigeonhole it. Rules Committee members objected to the provisions which were dropped.

However, the employe's contribution to the retiremer' fund would be raised by the bill rom 5 to 6 per cent. Employe groups late yesterday were debating whether the increased employe cost was worth the benefits carried in the new bill.

PAY RAISES: The House Committee also okayed the Rees bill which would pay $15,000 salaries to 45 top-flight scientists 30 in the Army, and 15 in the Navy. The present ceiling is $10,000.

Vice Admiral G. F. Hussey, jr., chief of Navy's Bureau of Ordnance, made a strong appeal for the bill in the name of national security. He pointed out that three civilians he had in mind for high-ranking scientific jobs were threatening to leave Government because of the $10,000 ceiling.

STORY: Congress now has a new reason for meeting its deadline to adjourn by the end of this month—the speeches of members won't be officially printed after July 31. Here's why.

Public Printer Giegengack warns that his Government Printing Office has only enough newsprint to publish The Congressional Record through July 31. And he adds: "We have no prospect of getting anymore newsprint at this time.

SENATE. In reporting out the legislative appropriation bill, its Appropriations Committee recommended these changes in the House-approved bill:

That the Library of Congress be given $441,298 additional which would permit it to hire a few additional people. Cuts made by the House would force it to wipe out about 200 jobs. The proposed increases are: Legislative reference service, $100,000; copyright office, $135,500, and library proper, 205,-798.

That the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation be given $30,000 to investigate Internal Revenue laws and personnel policies of the Internal Revenue Bureau, and,

That the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy be given an additional $175,000 to build up a professional staff.

STATE: Outside of its overseas information service, this department does not now plan to lay off additional employes here. Its officials have decided to gamble on normal turnover to reduce its staff and get it within its smaller budget.

It now appears that the overseas information staff will be cut down to about 250 here from 600; that the New York office will be cut from 500 to 150, and that only 150 Americans abroad can be continued in the program.

The office will continue its broadcasts to Russia and eastern Europe. However, contracts will be let to both NBC and CBS to broadcast to other Nations.

PEOPLE: Oscar Smith can be expected to resign as chief of the field division at the National Labor Relations Board. His job was abolished by the Taft-Hartley Act. . . . Barney Mullady of Labor's press staff, is a good bet to be appointed information chief at Federal Works . . Charles Fahy will resign soon as Solicitor of the State Department.

INTERIOR: A general functional reorganization has been ordered by Secretary Krug. Instead of all the bureau chiefs reporting directly to the Secretary and Undersecretary Oscar Chapman, it has been ordered:

That Mines, Geological Survey, National Parks and Land Management report to Assistant Secretary Davidson, and that Reclamation, Indian Affairs and Fish and Wildlife report to Assistant Secretary Warne. All other chiefs will report direct to either Krug or Chapman.

COMMERCE: Its export control employes will get another lease on their jobs. The Congress has agreed to extend the controls to February 29. These controls would have expired next Tuesday . . . LABOR: Its United States Employment Service, now that its budget is finally settled, will retain only 370 of its 863 jobs, and its Veterans Employment Service will have only 426 of the 1000 jobs it requested.

Deeds Office Transfer Rejected by House Group

Subcommittee Okays Photostatic Recording; Four Bills Approved

A House District Subcommittee yesterday rejected a proposal to transfer control of the District Recorder of Deeds Office to the District Commissioners.

The subcommittee, however, did authorize modernization work for the recorder's office. It approved a bill which would legalize recording of documents by photostatic methods instead of by typewriters, as now required by law.

Also left in the bill was a provision for a pre-audit of Recorder's funds by the District Auditor, which was sought by sponsors of the control transfer. Representative Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.) heads the subcommittee.

Four Bills Approved

Four other bills were approved during a subcommittee executive session. They would:

Limit television and radio towers in residential areas of the District. Representative O'Hara said the practical effect would be to ban new towers in residential areas, but not disturb present ones.

Let Municipal Court reporters collect fees for transcripts, as is done by reporters in other District Courts.

Let Episcopal parishes and congregations in Washington write their own by-laws for vestry elections.

Extend from 20 to 50 years the time for building up the District's teacher retirement fund to finish absorbing all the extra initial cost of setting it up and improving it.

In a brief hearing, Walter F. Bramhall clerk of Municipal Court, and Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West urged passage of the bill to let the official reporters get fees for their transportation.

Broader Inspection Law

West joined with Lloyd F. Scheer, District boiler inspector, in urging that the present inspection law be extended to cover hot water boilers and other heating equipment now exempt. William C. Strickler, of the National Association of Power Engineers, also appealed for passage of the bill.

Charles J. Rush, executive secretary of the Washington Real Estate Board, told the subcommittee the bill would lead to the "ninth degree of regulation," and urged that the hill be held up for further hearings.

Later Representative O'Hara introduced a House bill to let local schools and universities repossess housing they own where it is needed for educational, research, administrative or dormitory use. This permission would be written into the local rent control law.

Drink Test Bill Shelved

O'Hara's group sidetracked a bill calling for compulsory medical tests in drunken driving cases. Also tabled were bills to tighten present laws on picketing, on the location of liquor stores, and to credit experience in a Government job for getting a Certified Public Accountant certificate.

The subcommittee postponed action to give more time for studying bills to start commercial rent control in Washington, and to write a new legal code for corporations here.

The group also delayed action to give time for hearings later on Senate-approved bills to tighten District boiler inspections, take off the present $10,000 limit on death damages, and change the rules for testimony in cases where one person is legally incapable of testifying.

Beverly Tate Wren, Jr. Dies Unexpectedly

Bluefield, W. Va., July 10 (AP).—Beverly Tate Wren, jr., 37, vice president and assistant general manager of Consolidated Bus Lines, died at his home here today from what was described as acute coronary thrombosis.

Wren formerly worked at Charleston. He was a native of Abingdon, Va., and former resident of Lynchburg, Va., and at Charleston, where he received his education.

Wren is survived by his widow, three children, three sisters, and two brothers.

Rerouting Of Buses Permanent

The Maryland Public Service Commission has made permanent the Capital Transit Co.'s re-routing of bus lines between Prince Georges County and the District, which has been on a trial basis for the past few months.

The Commission made certain revisions in the bus routes, and also has approved the Maryland section of experimental express lines to downtown Washington, as proposed by the transit company.

Operation of the proposed express lines, subject to the approval of the D. C. Public Utilities Commission, will begin as early as possible, probably by the first part of September, according to E. Cleveland Giddings, a vice president of Capital Transit.

New Express Routes

The express routes are from Hamilton st. and 38th ave., West Hyattsville, and from Defence hwy. at Edmonston rd., Bladensburg, to downtown Washington. They will follow the local routes of the F-8, B-4 and B-6 lines to the Mount Rainier terminal, then over Rhode Island ave. nw. to 9th st. and Constitution ave. nw.

Fares on the express routes will be 25 cents for the full ride, or 20 cents between the Mount Rainier terminal and the District. Transfers will be issued free under crtain conditions on both inbound and outbound trips.

Th rerouting of other lines, now approved on a permanent basis, involves having passengers for the District transfer at Mount Rainier terminal. It has been opposed by the Federation of Citizens Associations and the Hyattsville Citizens Transportation Committee. However, the transit company made the changes only after consulting with civic and business groups in Prince Georges County, Giddings said. These included Prince Georges Business Men's Association, College Park authorities, and University of Maryland officials.

Revisions Outlined

Revisions ordered by the Maryland commission in making the route changes permanent, provided for:

1. Re-establishment of the former F-2 line service between Riverdale and College Park, by extending the G-6 route along Baltimore blvd. to Riverdale rd. and Ritchie Coliseum. This will eliminate the present route G-6 between Baltimore blvd. and Rhode Island ave. via Riverdale rd., Rhode Island ave. and Rittenhouse st.

2. Extension of part of weekday rush hour service of the G-8 line from the Branchville streetcar connection to Ritchie Coliseum.

Roadway to Be Built

Both these lines, the company said, will be operated when a concrete roadway is built in front of the Coliseum, where the buses turn around. Work will begin immediately, it was stated, and the routes should be established for the opening of the college fall term.

3. Establishment of a new feeder line on Riverdale rd. and Jefferson ave. between Lafayette ave. in Riverdale and a terminal in East Pines. This is dependent on the rebuilding of Riverdale rd. and establishment of adequate roadways in East Pines, the company said.

4. Extension of the H-8 bus line from Landover rd. at 58th ave., Bladensburg, to Landover Hills, via Landover rd. This is dependent on the construction of new roadways in Radiant Valley and local streets in Landover Hills.

G-4 Partly Rerouted

5. Rerouting of part of G-4, by discontinuing operations on 30th st. between Queens Chapel rd. and Upshur st., Mount Rainier, and extending it along Queens Chapel rd., 25th st. Arundel rd., Russell ave., 28th pl. and Upshur st. This will probably be operating within two weeks, according to the company, providing a line directly into the heart of Kaywood Gardens.

6. Establishment of a more direct F-2 route, between 29th and and Randolph sts. at the District line, and the Mount Rainier Terminal, via Eastern ave. and Rhode Island ave. About half of this service is now operated, over a circuitous route, through Mount Rainier. The new more direct and shorter route to the terminal will be operating by about the end of August.

Maryland P-TA Congress Awards Certificates to 88

Certificates of participation were presented to 88 members of the Maryland Congress of Parents and Teachers at the closing session of the State Parent-Teacher Conference at the University of Maryland yesterday.

A total of 234 representatives of local P-TA units, including 22 men, attended one or more sessions of the conference.

Mrs. James Speake, Indian Head, was elected chairman of the Local Presidents' Club, at a morning meeting. Other officers named were Mrs. A. S. David, Easton, vice chairman, and Mrs. W. P. Leutz, Salisbury, secretary.

A demonstration of program committee planning given by Mrs. C. M. Wright, Silver Spring, chairman of the leadership training group, developed a number of basic programs for unit PTA meetings. Suggested topics included: living in the Atomic Age, improvements in home and family life, world understanding and health, and school education.

Mrs. Sylvester M. Gower, Sharpsburg, counselor to councils, stressed mutual understanding and cooperation between local groups. Through this cooperation all groups can obtain the benefits of others' thinking and planning, she said.

Certificates were presented by Dr. Henry Brechbill, assistant dean of the College of Education of the University of Maryland.

D. C. Police Asked to Seek Plank's Car

Street-to-Street Search Requested For Slain Man's Missing Sedan

The Fairfax County, Va., murder of 29-year-old Norman L. Plank sent police into a three-phased probe yesterday in search of a definite clue.

Police Chief Carl McIntosh and Detective Chief Lieut. H. T. Magarity said Metropolitan Police had been asked to help in a street-to-street search for the Buick sedan, missing from the Chesterbrook Woods home where Plank was slain.

Police combed the death scene yesterday for additional fingerprints and they still sought some trace of a stranger Plank brought to the house at 4108 Forest la. on Saturday. Plank's body was found early Monday.

Died of Bullet Wound

Plank, a clerk in the District's Small Claims Court, died of a bullet wound in his head, presumably from a .22-caliber pistol which was found on the basement stairs—five steps from the body. The gun failed to yield fingerprints and police theorized a towel also found on the steps had been used to wipe off the weapon.

Meanwhile, a police check of Plank's activity over the July 4 weekend brought information that he was in a 34th and M sts. nw. liquor store "about" 3 p. m. Saturday. His sister, Mrs. Nellie Burrer, owner of the house where Plank lived, said she had a telephone conversation with him shortly after 3 p. m. Saturday, at which time he told her he was with a friend—a man named "Don" or "John," who told her by phone he was a "walkie-talkie salesman."

Police also had information that Plank and another man had attended a carnival at Vienna, Va., Saturday night.

Borrowed Bottle of Gin

Neighbors in the Chesterbrook Woods area said Plank had called them and borrowed a bottle of gin Friday night. On Saturday, they said, he called again and told them he was unable to find a similar brand to replace the borrowed one. Police, however, found a full bottle of the same brand 1 nthe Burrer home after the slaying.

Search of the house again yesterday disclosed Plank's wallet empty, his checkbook gone. Authorities also said they believed some of his identification papers were missing.

The Buick sedan, carrying Virginia plates 474-521, missing from the garage at the side of the house, apparently was stolen between late Saturday night and the time Plank's nephew, Donald Burrer, 21, arrived home early Monday and found the body.

Juvenile Judge Plans to Permit Limited Publicity

Hunington, W. Va., July 10 (AP). Juvenile Court Judge Frank Eaton today announced a policy of permitting publication of limited news from juvenile court as a "deterrent to potential juvenile delinquents."

State law prohibits publication of the name of a juvenile tried, charged or accused of a crime, without the court's written consent.

But Judge Eaton said "a very large part of the effectivenss of juvenile court is lost due to the absence of proper and judicious publicity."

He said the main purpose of the new policy is "to show youngsters what is happening to others who have given in to ideas . . . which they themselves are having."

The child's name is relatively unimportant, he said.

2 Apartments Seek 12-15% Rent Boosts

Higher Realty Tax, Upkeep Costs Compel Rise, Attorney Says

Rent increases of 12 to 15 per cent are being sought for 250 units in two large Washington apartment houses.

Stephen Ingham, owner's attorney, revealed yesterday that the 15 per cent hike would affect 125 apartment units at The Croydon, 1815 17th st. nw., and the 12 per cent raise, 125 units at Governor Shepherd Apartments, 2121 Virginia ave. nw. Both are owned by John J. McInerney.

Ingham said higher rents were needed at The Croydon and Governor Shepherd to cover increased operating and maintenance costs and the recent hike in District real estate tax rates.

Present $45 to $55 monthly rents at The Croydon are lower than those for comparable accommodations in other apartment houses, he added. Rents at the Governor Shepherd range from $50 to $85 per month, he said.

Both cases are scheduled for public hearing before Rent Control Examiner James G. Tyson on July 23.

In Fairfax Village a $3-per-month rent rise became effective yesterday for 826 apartment units.

Rent Control Administrator Robert F. Cogswell made the boost effective by denying a May 29 petition for reconsideration from 494 of the tenants.

Scott Crampton, attorney for the 494 Fairfax Village tenants who protested the raise, said he would meet soon with their representatives to discuss possible appeal of the case in Municipal Court.

The Fairfax Village development, at 38th st. and Alabama ave. se., is owned by the Realty Management Corp. Rents previously ranged from $49 to $67 per month.

Under present law, rents for the 332 tenants who did not appeal could hve been raised May 29, 10 days after the original rent control order, Ernest Henry, owenrs' attorney pointed out.

But the company withheld the boost pending action on the appeal, he said, sothe rent increase would be "applied in an equitable manner" to all tenants.

Foreign-in-Laws Arriving in U. S. To Visit GI Brides

GI in-laws from other countries are beginning to arrive here on visits to relatives who became Americans by marrying servicemen.

One of the first such foreign in-law families arrived from London at National Airport yesterday. The family includes Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Duce and Brian Duce, parents and brother of Mrs. Frank E. Magee, 1105 S. Thomas st., Arlington, a GI bride who came here in March, 1946.

Mrs. Magee, a comedienne on the London stage before the war, was a corporal in the British Auxiliary Territorial Service when she met her husband, a captain in the U. S. Army Medical Administrative Corps.

Alibi Fails to Hold In Retrial of Gill Case

Christiansburg, Va., July 10 (AP). An alibi that won for him a mistrial last February failed Woodrow Gill of Tazewell in Circuit Court here today when a jury in retrial of the case, found him guilty of armed robbery and he was sentenced to 10 years in the penitentiary. An appeal was noted. Gill remains in jail, where he has been since he was indicted in December, having been unable to supply the $25,000 bond demanded.

Sidewalk Deaths

Driven to Tell Of Fatal Auto Crash

Cecil Patterson, 43, driver of a car which on August 6, 1946, hurtled a downtown sidewalk and killed two persons, went on trial yesterday in Municipal Court on a charge of negligent homicide.

Patterson is to take the witness stand in his own defense today. Maximum penalty for the offense is a year in jail and a $1000 fine.

Killed in the accident at 14th st. and New York ave. nw., were Joseph A. Scannell, 45, of 1929 Pennsylvania ave. nw., and John Lowe, 50, 420 11th st. ne. Five other persons were injured.

Eight Government witnesses said they saw Patterson's automobile travel between 30 and 50 miles an hour, swerve off streetcar tracks and rip into a sidewalk crowd. Patterson, the witnesses said, seemed to be slumped on a side, and perhaps unconscious.

Judge Nathan Margold refused a defense motion for a directed verdict of acquittal. He said the jury must decide whether Patterson, a Government Printing Office employe, should not have driven a car, knowing that he had suffered two epileptic-type seizures a year before and had high blood pressure.

Dr. George Basil of Annapolis said he had examined Patterson over a course of years and knew that he had systemic disorders. He said that between 1944 and 1945, Patterson's condition improved markedly. Dr. Basil said that from his examination he believed that Patterson was fit to drive an automobile.

Amusement Taxes Bring $102,453 To Anne Arundel

Annapolis, Md., July 10 (AP).—Thanks to the action of the State Legislature and Governor Lane, Anne Arundel County is striking it rich—in amusement tax income.

Under the revised law which gives the amusement tax to the counties, Ann Arundel has taken in $102,453 since May 1. No licenses were issued during April, but in May the county took in $85,449, and $17,012 has been tabulated for June, with figures incomplete.

The income takes care of some increases in salaries and other expenses without boosting the county tax rate.

Lynwood Wheeler Jr. Trade Board Head

Berryville, Va., July 10.—Lynwood Wheeler, World War II veteran, has been elected president of the Charles County Junior Board of Trade. He succeeds Harold G. Potts. Other new officers are Arthur Edmonds, vice president; Lewis Hart, secretary; Larrick Hockman, treasurer; and Harold Potts, State director.

Md. Stockmen Cancel Summer Field Day

Lump Benefit Proposed for Slain Police

Rep. Auchincloss Favors Payments To Officers' Families

Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.) yesterday asked Secret Service Chief James J. Maloney to draft a formal recommendation for paying lump sum benefits to families of policemen killed in line of duty.

Auchincloss said he had no specific amount in mind, but said the problem "is very close to my heart."

"When a policeman is killed in line of duty his family should be taken care of with an appropriate sum," he said.

Maloney Supports Plan

Auchincloss said he was particularly concerned about Washington's Metropolitan Police in suggesting the lump sum death benefit.

The issue was raised during hearings before Auchincloss' subcommittee on District Reorganization and Home Rule.

Maloney agreed with Auchincloss there should be a lump sum payment.

Representative Charles B. Deane (D., N. C.) commented that when a policeman is killed in line of duty "they always have to pass the hat."

Transfers Are Opposed

Maloney was called to testify about activities of the White House police. He told the subcommittee it would be a "disadvantage" to consolidate the White House force with the Metropolitan Police.

The subcommittee also heard John Ihlder, executive officer of the National Capital House Authority, testify it would cause confusion and delay to transfer his agency to the District government. He said his agency serves primarily the national interest.

Similarly, Dr. Alexander Wetmore, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, opposed transfer of the Zoo to control of the District government.

100 Md. Farmers Plan One-Day Tour Tomorrow

More than 100 Maryland farmers are expected to take a one-day farm tour Saturday sponsored by the University of Maryland and the United States Department of Agriculture Research Center at Beltsville.

W. B. Posey, University of Maryland tobacco specialist, said the group would visit the William H. Marr farm, six miles from Marlboro on the Marlboro-Ritche rd., and the Harry W. Townsend farm near Mitchellville.

The group will observe conservation methods in practice, grassed waterways, ridge tobacco planting, ridging rowing, and take part in a demonstration and contest in tobacco judging.

Schley Antiques Sold

Frederick, Md., July 10.—Antiques owned by the late Miss Agnes Schley, this city, were sold for a total of $2780. The sale attracted a large crowd and bidding was brisk. Six Adams chairs brought $41 each and a butler's tray went for $69. Two sets of andirons also brought high prices.

2 Men Held In Robbery Of Maryland Cafe Owner

Handkerchiefs Used As Gags and Neckties Truss Up Couple in $7000 Gem Theft

Princes Georges County (Md.) police last night held two men for questioning in the $7000 jewelry robbery of a nearby Maryland tavern-keeper and his wife. Identity of the suspects was withheld.

In the District, meanwhile, Tommy English, 34, notorious underworld character, was ordered held under $10,000 surety bond on a charge of housebreaking. His attorney, M. Edward Buckley, offered to put up $10,000 cash bail but the plea was summarily denied.

Victims of the Maryland holdups were Spruce Baird, proprietor of the Wheel, at 3817 Bladensburg rd., Colmar Manor, Md., and his wife. They reported two bandits trussed them with neckties and gagged them with handkerchiefs, in their apartment home, 2705 Arundel rd., Mount Rainier.

Followed Into Building

Baird told police that he and his wife left the tavern about 11:30 p. m., Wednesday. When they arrived home, he said, they were followed into the apartment hall by two bandits, one of whom pressed a pistol in Mrs. Baird's side. Baird was ordered to unlock their apartment door.

The bandits tied and gagged the couple and forced them to lie in bed while the unarmed one ransacked the apartment, Baird said. They removed Baird's $350 watch and $1800 diamond ring and Mrs. Baird's diamond engagement ring, valued at $2400. They also took $35 in cash and a quantity of other jewelry worth over $2000, he reported.

In the English case, Municipal Court Judge Thomas D. Quinn fixed bail on the defendant at $10,000 on a housebreaking charge in connection with the attempted safe-cracking Wednesday morning at United Insurance Co., 811 11th st. nw. English was arrested at 4 a. m., fully clothed, in his lighted bedroom at 832 10th st. nw.

Awaiting Sentence

English, who recently made news when he was shot at by another known gangster, was free under $2000 bond awaiting sentencing on an earlier housebreaking charge when arrested. He had pleaded guilty to the earlier charge and sentencing was scheduled for July 18.

Police also arrested Harry L. Ealley, 25, of 1109 4th st. nw., who was also held under $10,000 surety bond by Judge Quinn. A third man arrested, John D. Flynn, 42, of 1002 Massachusetts ave. nw., was released on the word of the district attorney's office there was sentenced to a total of three to seven years imprisonment on three robbery charges. His police record shows he was once wanted as an escaped prisoner and was arrested once for pandering, once on a conspiracy charge, once for carrying a concealed weapon, once on disorderly conduct and seven times for investigation.

Condition Improves

Meanwhile, Pvt. William J. Sartain's condition was reported "somewhat improved" at Providence Hospital. Private Sartain, 31, was beaten on the head with a meat cleaver early Wednesday while attempting to arrest a thief.

Inspector Floyd Truscott, detective chief, has ordered the entire general assignment squad to try to catch his assailant. He told them that he would give them all the help they needed, "the entire police force if necessary."

House Group Backs Work Resumption On GAO Building

Representative J. Harry McGregor (R., Ohio) announced yesterday his House Public Buildings subcommittee had approved the bill to let the Government resume construction of its proposed new General Accounting Office Building here.

McGregor said the immediate effect of the bill would be to let the building be started with funds totaling about 5 million dollars previously appropriated and still available for the job.

Construction of the building, in the block bounded by 4th, 5th, G and H sts. nw, was held up by the war after the excavation had been dug. McGregor said about two million had been spent. The bill boosts the total authorized cost to $22,850,000.

3 Md. Cities Protest Lack Of Air Routes

By The Associated Press

Representatives of Baltimore, Cumberland and Hagerstown, Md., said yesterday Civil Aeronautics Board examiners slighted their cities in the Middle Atlantic air route case.

Thomas J. Tingley, assistant solicitor for Baltimore, said the "basic exception" taken by the Baltimore City Aviation Commission is the failure of examiners, in recommending new routes, to "adequately recognize the convenience and necessity of more than one million persons comprising the metropolitan population of Baltimore."

Baltimore entered the case, he said, with "the hope and expectation that the unbalanced domestic air service pattern to and from Baltimore, as compared with Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Washington, would be substantially remedied."

"Evidence indicates," he said, "that Baltimore is one of the forgotten cities on the airline map of the country."

Tingley said that despite the fact that Washington's population is smaller than that of Baltimore, the examiners "show no concern over the fact that one million citizens of Baltimore have to travel 56 miles to the Washington airport to get adequate air transportation.

Charles A. Heskett, solicitor for Cumberland, Md., said his city "is not complaining about inadequacy of service or asking more service.

"We have no service to improve or to add to," he said, "and what is worse, the examiners make no recommendation that we receive service, although we have a fine airport and are anxious to be served by air lines who say they want to serve us. We are amazed."

Robert Dean, secretary of the Hagerstown Chamber of Commerce, said that 10 air lines want to serve his city and "we want service from as many or any the board sees fit to certify."

Water Rate Suit Lost by Lewis; Faces $2000 Bill

Cumberland, Md., July 10 (AP).—As a result of losing a water rate suit filed against the City of Cumberland, former Representative David J. Lewis faces the possibility of having to pay a back account which will amount to over $2000, including interest.

The Court of Appeals ruled against Lewis Tuesday. The former Representative had contended the proper water billing for an apartment house would be one account while the city regulations provide for separate billings for each apartment.

Lewis had not been paying the bills and the city has been prevented from collecting by an injunction. Instead of paying the amount shown on the bill, Lewis has been paying according to his own method of figuring for over 10 years.

Husband, Wife Tax Cut Seen in Md.

Annapolis, Md., July 10 (AP).—A move to save Maryland married couples money on income taxes gained momentum today as Governor Lane said he would favor a "community-property" law and State Senator R. Melnicove of Baltimore said he planned to introduce such a measure at the next legislative session.

Thirteen other States have adopted legislation which permits a husband and wife to divided the family income for tax purposes, thereby placing each return in a lower tax bracket.

Charlotte Bid Is Low For Lynchburg Armory

Lynchburg, Va., July 10 (AP).—Goode Construction Corp. of Charlotte, N. C., submitted low bid of $138,900 for construction of a naval reserve armory here, Capt. P. J. Halloran, Fifth Naval District public works officer, announced today.

The next lowest bids offered were V. P. Loftis Co. of Charlotte, $145,532, and J. M. Turner of Roanoke, $159,576.60.

The bids will be submitted to the Bureau of Yards and Docks, Washington, for approval.

Waynesboro Parade Draws 45,000 Crowd

Waynesboro, Pa., July 10 (Spl.). An estimated crowd of 45,000 lined the streets here today to view one of the largest parades in Waynesboro's 150-year history.

The two-mile march, to the beat of nine bands and four drum and bugle corps, highlighted the 5-day celebration of the city's sesquicentennial.

Seven thousand firemen from four States—Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia and Pennsylvania—marched in the parade. Fire-fighting equipment of all types, from jeeps to huge pumpers and hook and ladder trucks, was exhibited.

Color Predominates

Chambersburg, Pa., firemen just to be different, showed up with bright yellow fire-fighting equipment and Hagerstown, Md., representatives put in an appearance with green equipment.

The parade was sponsored by the Cumberland Valley Volunteer Firemen's Association, which is in convention here.

Tonight all participating bands will compete for a prize, in festivities in the city's center square. Later a pageant will be shown in the high school stadium.

Drill Contest Slated

Tomorrow, at 9:30 a. m., firemen will stage a drill contest and at 2 p. m. there will be a float and organization parade. The celebration will be climaxed at 10 o'clock with a contest to select the outstanding member of the "Whisker's Club." The competition will be followed by a fireworks display.

Burgess Funk, who grew a thick mustache and "imperial" beard for the occasion, said:

"Now that we've celebrated the past, Waynesboro is going to look into the future."

The celebration ends tomorrow night.

Army Carrier Pigeons Get Victoria Crosses

Melbourne, Australia, July 10 (U.P.).—Two army pigeons today were awarded medals which are equivalent to the Victoria Cross for their wartime services.

The citation of one of the pigeons said that the carrier, despite heavy Japanese fire, carried through a message which saved a trapped marine patrol on Manus Island.

Taxi Service Interrupted Briefly in Hagerstown

Hagerstown, Md., July 10 (AP).—Hagerstown was totally without taxi service for a brief period last night, when all drivers quit in a demand for uniform rates.

A compromise reached later in the evening reduced the walkout to operators of Mayflower cabs.

O. B. Hovermale

Berkeley Springs, W. Va. (Spl.). Services were held here this afternoon for O. B. Hovermale, 79, former sheriff and former member of the Morgan County Court, who died at a local hospital after a brief illness.

He was a native of this county, son of the late Daniel Webster and Mary Elizabeth Bohrer Hovermale, and a lifelong resident here. Formerly he was a farmer but retired in 1923 from his operations at Ridge and came to reside here. He was named sheriff in 1924 for a full term, to the County Court in 1906, and filled out the unexpired term of former Sheriff J. F. Hovermale, resigned. In recent years he had to go about on crutches following amputation of a foot.

Surviving are his wife, the former Miss Edna Unger of the county; two sons, a daughter, two brothers, two sisters, 11 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Alexander V. Shepherd

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 11.—(Spl.).—Alexander V. Shepherd, 73, last member of his immediate family and descended from a pioneer line in this county, died at his home here yesterday after extended ill health.

He was a son of the late Francis R. and Margaret McMurran Shepherd and the last of his family to reside at the Shepherd homeplace south of this city. The large level field which adjoined the home has now been converted into the Municipal Airport.

Surviving are his wife, formerly Miss Lula M. Dorn; a daughter, Mrs. Raymond F. Mentzer, this city; and two sons—Howard A. and Raymond L. Shepherd, this city.

Services will be held tomorrow afternoon with interment here.

Holds Hearings

State Enters Tax Dispute In Salisbury

Salisbury, Md., July 10 (AP).—The State Tax Commission opened hearings today in a controversy between assessors and the Wicomico County commissioners, with disputes arising quickly on two points.

The commissioners contended the assessors had deviated from standard practice in setting depreciation allowances on old houses.

They argued that values set on front footages along Camden ave. in one of the community's better residential sections were far above any recent sale prices.

The assessors set new valuations on property in South Salisbury early this year in line with a program designed to make assessments uniform throughout the State.

Some 120 property owners protested to the county commissioners, and the four-man board wiped out most of the increases. Today's hearing resulted when the assessors appealed to the State Tax Commission. It has the power to make a final decision.

W. Edgar Porter, attorney for the commissioners, told the hearing that the assessors valued Camden ave. property just beyond the city line at $12 a front foot, $30 a foot just inside the line, and up to $60 closer to town.

The commissioners started their scale at $20 at the city line, with increases up to $35.

Few Ask Rent Hikes In Anne Arundel

Annapolis, Md., July 10 (AP).—In the opinion of J. Brook Mellor, president of the Real Estate Board of Anne Arundel County, there is no rush on the part of landlords to hike rents here.

After a meeting of the board, Mellor said, "as far as the members of this organization are concerned, fewer than 5 per cent of the landlords have asked for rent increases."

On the hotel front, Morgan J. Smith, general manager of Carvel Hall, said he expected an increase of 11 per cent in room rates for permanent guests.

Virgil Lowe Rites Held At Fredericksburg

Fredericksburg, Va., July 10.—Funeral services were held at Salem Bethodist Church in Spotsylvania County today for Virgil Orbelus Lowe, 73, direct descendant of Benjamin Franklin. He was engaged in the furniture business in High Point, N. C. for a number of years, operated a farm in Orange County, Va., and came to Fredericksburg to live last November.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Frances Lowe; a daughter, Mrs. Johannes Boehme; a son, George O. Lowe, all of Fredericksburg, and two brothers, Lawrence Lowe of High Point, and the Rev. Francis Lowe of Salem, Oreg.

Police Force Shaken Up

Frederick, Md., July 10.—Aroused by a series of unsolved robberies here, Chief of Police Frederick Straley has announced a shakeup in the local department to produce greater efficiency among men on night duty.

At least two patrolmen will be added to the force, Straley announced, and one member of the day shift transferred to night duty.

The shakeup follows robberies of four Frederick oil company bulk plants, and of a number of private residences. Complaints of window peepers have been registred by residents of the northern section of the city.

Michael P. Barry

Michael Patrick Barry, 48, Washington guide to thousands of visitors here, succumbed yesterday in Emergency Hospital to a heart attack suffered 10 days ago.

Mr. Barry, of 535 Quincy st. nw., served for 25 years an independent taxicab operator, specializing in accommodating sightseeing parties in the Nation's Capital. For years, he operated out of Union Station, attracting new arrivals with his ready knowledge of points of interest.

He later adopted Peace Monument, at the northwest foot of the Capitol, for his base of operations.

He leaves his wife, Mabel M.; four brothers, Anthony, Lawrence, George, and Joseph Barry, and two sisters, Mrs. Anna Capone and Mrs. Lucille Rogers, all of Washington.

Mass will be offered at 9 a. m., tomorrow at St. Gabriel's Catholic Church, 26 Grant Circle nw., Interment will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Md. Jap Beetle Invasion Seen Worst Ever

By The Associated Press

A mounting pile of requests for assistance and advice pouring into the University of Maryland extension service at College Park yesterday indicated the Free State may be in for the worst invasion in history by the Japanese beetle.

Reports of growing devastation by the bug were coming in from virtually every section, and all hinted they were thicker than ever.

The beetle posed a threat to virtually every fruit and vegetable crop in the State, since the insect devours practically everything it contacts, including ornamental plants.

One of the biggest armies of beetles was reported in Washington County where the bug made its first appearance in Maryland several years ago after a march from New Jersey, where it was discovered and identified.

Berry growers in the Trego and Rohrersville sections, reported the beetles were not only devouring this year's crops but threatening next year's by consuming new shoots. Several growers reported their crops wiped out, and extension service agents were called in to help check the invasion.

The war-proven insecticide D-D-T was being employed as a major weapon against the beetle, several Eastern Shore towns already having been dusted. Chestertown in particular reported a thick concentration of the bugs.

County agents throughout the State reported they were besieged for requests for aid from farmers alarmed after a two-year respite from ravages of the beetle.

George F. Hanowell

George F. Hanowell, 63, retired insurance broker, died yesterday at his home, 3325 O st. nw., after being taken ill Sunday.

Native of Flushing, N. Y., Mr. Hanowell came to this city in 1929 and has lived here since. He retired from the insurance business about eight years ago and recently had been working as a Peoples Drug Store clerk.

His wife, Mrs. Ruby A. Hanowell is national chairman of the National Council for Youth Entertainment, an organization to make motion pictures, radio series and comics more suitable for juvenile consumption.

In addition to his wife, he leaves three daughters, Mrs. Francis Lo Bianco, 1408 35th st. nw.; Mrs. Heywood Hanback, of the O st. address, and Mrs. Jennings B. Lynch, Hampton, Va., and two sons, Charles L. Hanowell, 4408 N. 17th st., Arlington, and Dr. Ernest G. Hanowell, 1124 S. Wakefield st., Arlington.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow at his residence. Burial will be in the National Memorial Park, Falls Church, Va.

New School Asked For Fredericksburg

Fredericksburg, Va., July 10.—Construction of a new elementary school here was recommended to the school board by the State Department of Education following a comprehensive study. A survey committee of the Department also recommened separation of all elementary grades from James Monroe High School, a new cafeteria and gymnasium at Walker-Grant School, and acquisition of additional land for James Monroe School.

Meet With Darden

Charlottesville, Va., July 10.—Colgate W. Darden, jr., new president of the University of Virginia, will hold his first meeting with the board of visitors tomorrow at 10. Edward R. Stettinius, jr., rector, will preside at the monthly meeting. Darden, elected president of the university in March, took office June 23. He will be inaugurated sometime in the early fall.

Dog License Law Debated Before Va. Advisory Group

Richmond, Va., July 10 (AP).—A proposal to divorce the dog license law from the game law was debated in the Virginia Advisory Legislative Council's special committee at the State Capitol today.

Representatives of a number of county boards of supervisors appeared in force to fight the proposal while sportsmen and members of hunt clubs and conservation societies favored the new plan.

Representatives of the boards of supervisors of Nottoway, Appomattox, Loudoun, Norfolk, Prince Georges and Middlesex were among the first to be heard before the committee. They said the law should remain as it is with the game wardens enforcing the dog law as part of their duties.

Among the spokesmen for the independent hunters and fishermen were James E. Edmunds and the Rev. O. G. Burnette of the Halifax Hunting Club, and Bert East and Jordan Pugh of the Izaak Walton League of Norfolk County. They contended that a game warden's primary interest should be conservation of game and the improvement of the habitat of game and fish and predator control; that wardens have not time to enforce the dog licensing law.

Appeals Court Ends Session In Maryland

Annapolis, Md., July 10 (AP).—The judges of the State's highest tribunal—the Court of Appeals—have folded away their black robes for the summer after dealing with 164 cases listed officially on the 1946 term docket.

But it won't be all fishing and basking in the sun from here on. They have 62 cases already docketed for the coming October term, which starts on the seventh of that month. Briefs in some of these cases have been sent to the judges so they can get an idea of what they will be called on to decide.

The jurists divided up their work pretty well during the past session in which six sat in on most cases.

Fourteen of the 164 cases were dismissed, and two of them were continued until next time.

In the present term 144 majority opinions were filed and 16 dissents listed.

Among the dissenters were Judge Edward S. Delaplaine, Charles Markell and C. Gus Grason and Chief Judge Ogle Marbury.

Execution Date Appointed for 2 Md. Slayers

Annapolis, Md., July 10 (AP).—Governor Lane signed a death warrant today for Ross J. Abbott, 24-year-old war veteran convicted of murdering his childhood sweetheart after she jilted him, and set the execution date for August 1.

The Governor also signed the death warrant for Weldon Jones of Chance, Md., convicted of slaying a Deal Island oyster packer. He will be hanged the same date.

Abbott shot and killed 20-year-old Pansy Twigg in July, 1946, on a beach at Deal Island while she was on a bathing party with two other girls.

Jones was convicted of killing I. Raynor Graham, the oyster packer, in a case which caused a stir on the Eastern Shore in January, 1946.

His brother Holbrook, 15, also was convicted of murder, but won acquittal after a second trial.

Unemployment Board Favors GI Benefits Bill

The District Unemployment Compensation Board yesterday urged congressional passage of a Senate bill providing war-service benefits to former GIs reentering business operations here.

The legislation, already passed by the House, would benefit approximately 1000 former servicemen here, particularly professional and small business men, according to C. A. Wharton, director of the board.

Under the present law, an employer must pay 2.7 per cent of his payroll to the District Unemployment Compensation Board for the job relief fund. After three years the payroll tax is reduced to one tenth of 1 per cent.

The present law is so written as to require businessmen who served in the war and reentered business here to pay the higher tax of 2.7 per cent. The pending legislation would permit the employer to pay the same tax he was turning over to the DUCB before the war. Maximum saving to the GI employer would be $78 per employe.

A Senate District subcommittee, holding hearings on the legislation, delayed action on the bill and called for another hearing this morning at 10 o'clock to permit the Unemployment Compensation Board to study and comment on an amendment to the bill urged by Mrs. Ann Dodge Goodbee, an attorney.

685 Appeals Filed

D. C. Court Marks Fifth Anniversary

Chief Judge Nathan Cayton yesterday released statistics of the Municipal Court of Appeals which Wednesday celebrated its fifth anniversary.

Cayton

The court has jurisdiction of appeals from all branches of Municipal and Juvenile Court.

In the five years, 685 appeals were filed in the Appeals Court. Ninety-five were small claims cases and 47 were criminal cases where the penalty is less than $50. Both of these types have no automatic right to appeal but must obtain permission from the Appeals Court.

Motions of various kinds totaled 784. The average time from noting an appeal to final decision is 92 days.

Foreign Ships Carry More of U. S. Trade

Foreign ships are carrying more of the goods exported and imported to this country then they did last year, the Census Bureau reported yesterday.

The bureau said American flag vessels carried only 61 per cent of the tonnage during the first quarter of this year compared with 71 per cent during the corresponding quarter of last year.

D. C. Slums Fund Restored in Bill

A $95,000 Washington slum clearance planning fund has been restored to the Independent Offices appropriation bill, Senator Clyde M. Reed (R., Kans.) said yesterday.

Senator Reed said the Appropriations Subcommittee in charge of the money bill had restored the planning fund, and that the full Senate Appropriations Committee would act on the bill today.

Senator Reed is chairman of the subcommittee.

The money would be used by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission for drafting general and detailed plans for the 20-million-dollar Washington slum clearance program authorized by Congress last year.

The planning money was knocked out of the money bill in the House.

Meanwhile President Truman forwarded to Congress a proposed $50,000 appropriation to plan additional office space for Senators and House members.

Pepco Files Plan for New Stock Issues

By S. Oliver Goodman

Potomac Electric Power Co. filed yesterday with the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Public Utilities Commission a plan to increase its authorized capital stock from 30 million to 75 million dollars.

If the recapitalization is approved by the two regulatory bodies, Pepco's authorized capital stock will consist of 400,000 shares of $50 par preferred stock and 5,500,000 shares of new $10 par common stock.

The refinancing follows a recent District Court sanction of a SEC order under which Washington Railway & Electric Co. will dispose of its 100 per cent stock ownership of Pepco and 50 per cent interest in Capital Transit Co. W. R. & E. will then dissolve as a holding company.

Only 225,000 shares of new Pepco $50 par preferred and 2,961,250 shares of $10 par common will be issued immediately.

The PUC hearing on the refinancing plan has been set for July 21.

Underwriters will be invited to submit bids on the new issue by August 13.

A Pepco spokesman said that 140,000 shares of the new preferred stock, carrying a dividend rate between 3.60 and 3.80 per cent, will be sold publicly to retire Pepco's present 5½ per cent and 6 per cent preferred at their redemption price of 107.

However, preferred holders may elect to exchange their stock for two shares of new preferred plus a cash adjustment.

The remaining 85,000 shares of new preferred will be issued to retire W. R. & E. 5 per cent preferred. Owners of each share of W. R. & E. preferred will receive one share of new Pepco preferred and 4¼ shares of new Pepco common.

Of the 2,961,250 shares of common to be outstanding, 2,600,000 shares will be exchanged for W. R. & E. common and units, and 361,250 for W. R. & E. preferred. Each share of W. R. & E. common will be exchanged for 40 shares of Pepco common new; each unit will receive one new share.

The SEC is expected to act on the registration of new Pepco securities in time for general distribution in September. In the meantime, local brokers are trading in the new common issue on a "when-distributed" basis. Current market in Pepco common new was quoted yesterday at 16¼ bid and 17¼ asked.

New Diagnosis For Ailments Of Heart Told

A Cuban Doctor yesterday told Latin American pediatricians of new, safe methods of diagnosing heart deformities in children.

Speaking before the Pan American Congress of Pediatrics, meeting at the Mayflower, Dr. Augustin Castellanos suggested the injection of an opaque fluid into the blood stream of the patient. The fluid, he said, clearly shows improper flow of blood through the heart, and demonstrates malformations when viewed under X-ray.

Diagnosis by the method is rapid and accurate, he said, and danger to the patient greatly reduced. Castellanos recommended the use of the fluid to detect defects before surgery is undertaken.

At the same meeting, Professor Estenio Hormaeche of Uruguay discussed acute diarrhea of infancy and early childhood. This ailment, he noted, is particularly grave in the very young child and occupies first pjlace in death statistics for the first few months.

The infection seems to have a distinct relationship to artificial diets, and poor environmental conditions. Breast-fed babies are seldom afflicted.

Drs. Mario J. del Carril and Alfredo E. Larguia of Argentina pointed out that in their experiments with the disease they have been able to reduce fatalities from 30% to 5%.

Kidney diseases and pediatric surgery were discussed at the afternoon session after the delegates visited Mount Vernon.

The congress, under the auspices of the American Academy of Pediatrics, began with a business meeting Wednesday, and will be concluded tomorrow when many of the delegates leave for New York to attend the International Congress of Pediatrics.

Bowen Is Named Area Officer for Polio Foundation

Appointment of William C. Bowen of East Orange, N. J., to represent the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis in Washington, New Jersey and Delaware was announced yesterday.

Bowen

Bowen joined the organization in 1945 as executive assistant to the president and later became personnel director for its greater New York fund raising division, according to Basil O'Connor, national president.

As area representative, Bowen will cooperate with county medical authorities, hospital officials, nursing associations and crippled children's services in providing for care and treatment of polio victims.

Lapsed Service Insurance

Holders of lapsed National Service Life Insurance now have until January 1, 1948, to reinstate their policies, the Veterans Administration announced today. The former deadline was August 1. A lapsed NSLI policy may be reinstated by its holder upon certifying that he is in as good health as he was at the time of lapse, and paying two monthly premiums.

SAGA OF TWINS. Of a twin-some family are the Blackburn Twins, Ramon and Royce, handsome 6-footers dancing at the Casino Royal. Mamma Blackburn produced four sets of twins and two other youngsters. . . . Ramon and Royce are long-time pals of the Baker Twins, beauteous Conover models, were their classmates at Foxwood School, Great Neck, Long Island . . . The boys are identical twins which enables them to put on a perfectly timed "mirror-dance" stunt which they worked out while appearing with Olsen and Johnson.

GOLD KEY INTO SALVATION ARMY. From Hot Springs, Ark., the secretary of the Gold Key Club, Edward Meserole, writes that the spot is to be moved from its 16th st. location to the building at 606 F st., formerly occupied by the Salvation Army. Eddie's all peppered up over the project, says it will be developed in Gay Nineties style.

DISPLACED SUITE. While pianist Stan Mayer was at the Mayflower, he wrote a subtly toned suite called "Liendo," descriptive of the similarly named Texas home of sculptress Elizabeth Ney. It was about to go into rehearsal when Stan up and joined Sammy Ferro's Tidesmen in the Neptune Room. "Liendo," to put it mildly, is not in the Tidesmen's boiling metier. Stan says, "I think I'll play it at home for my own frustration."

Olmsted's is gloating over a letter from a customer who claimed he enjoyed their food in Chapel Hill, N. C., where he was visiting his aunt. The good lady served him Olmsted's green salad as described in a national magazine.

BARGAIN DAYS. A chap who "knew them when" is A. I. Wasser, partner in the Chicken Hut. When he operated a New York club some years ago, he remembers that Hazel Scott played there for 13 months for $25 a week. And probably thought it was money.

DINNER TIME ANGLES. One explanation of the fine food at the Silver Fox is that their chef is Marcel de Persig, who formerly presided over the cuisine of the Ritz-Carlton at Atlantic City . . . Housewives who are proud of their pressure cookers should see the one at the Muses. It cooks five bushels of vegetables in six minutes without losing one little vitamin . . . You can combine a luxury dinner with a panoramic view of the summer sunset by dining on the Starlight Roof. Here, too, you'll find those new style cocktail glasses, the hard-to-turn-over kind . . . Greek wines have a delicate tang that's all their own. The New Athens has a cellar full of both white and red varieties, also a stock of the fiery but velvety Metaxa brandy, often rated as the world's finest . . . When you order the Good Earth's all white meat chicken chow mein, you can be sure you're getting the Tiffany of all chow meins . . . While the Roosevelt's Victory Room is closed for the summer, dinners are being served in the hotel's loggia and lounge . . . A dream dessert at Normandy Farms, the ice cream cocoanut balls with hot butterscotch sauce.

Merry-Land is installing an extra bandstand for organist Nate Shanks, who is now alternating with the Jimmy Downs Trio. This, owner Olivia Davis proudly proclaims, makes it the only spot around with two bandstands. . . .

PREFERRED RHYTHM. Those side-splitting travesties on radio advertising ditties are being tossed out by Herbie Zampini and his Tunesmen at Quonset Inn . . . The nostalgic blend of "Kentucky Babe" and "Curly Headed Baby" played by Jimmy Nichols' band in the Rainbow Room . . . Those unusual numbers of Moorish derivation that are exclusive with Stephen Kisley's orchestra in the Carlton's Congo Room . . . Silvio Bianchini's spirited baritoning of such Neapolitan airs as "Oh, Marie" and "Sorrento" at Ciro's. . . . The special zing that Al Shea's China Clipper crew gives to "Peg o' My Heart" when they do it with accordion, organ and guitar . . . Waltz time in the Dubonnet Room when George Berg uncorks his endless variety of bubbling Strauss waltzes . . . All those requests played by George Stein's River Bend band. George would rather have a tooth pulled than have it said he ignored a customer request . . . Miguelito's hotly tempoed Caribbean songs at the Madrillon.

CAREER GALS. Betty Knight, who buys high style dresses for the Hecht Co., is married to Bob Knight of the radio and Lounge Riviera . . . Jean Davis, booker of the Lotus floor shows, has opened a gift shop in Greenwich Village, will specialize in painted ceramics, including those ornate demi-tasse cups that are now collectors' items.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

CHICAGO, JULY 10.—In the downtown ticket offices, the legitimate brokers are blandly charging $75 for the $30 ringside seats to the Tony Zale-Rocky Graziano middleweight title fight and doing a brisk business. It's the tip-off of the fight's customer appeal, which is not surprising.

POVICH

For sheer excitement, Zale and Graziano packed more throbs per minute into their last battle at Yankee Stadium last September than any other title fight produced since the Dempsey-Firpo brawl. Their rematch here on Wednesday night is a natural. The reaction of three ringsiders at the New York battle, as spoken by Bob Hannegan, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, was pretty typical.

"I'm coming back to see the fight," said sports fan Hannegan, who was in Chicago for the All-Star baseball game, and can be found wherever there is the promise of sports excitement. "In New York I went to the fight with Mayor Hague and Mayor Ed Kelly, and even before the fight ended, we promised each other we'd meet again if they ever rematched Zale and Graziano. None of us wanted to miss it."

IT'S SIGNIFICANT that when the rematch was announced the betting men installed Grazino as the favorite to lift Zale's title, despite the fact that when last seen in the ring with Zale, Rocky was taking the full count in the sixth round.

Nobody ever looked more like a winner to that point, however. Going into the sixth it appeared not to be a question who would win but how long Zale would last.

A new slant has been developed meanwhile, and it's now Champion Zale who is favored in the odds. Importance is given to the fact that when Zale took on Graziano in September he was ring-rusty from his long service in the Navy and fighting his first rugged opponent. The intervening months have given Zale time to sharpen up.

It was Zale's body punches that wore Graziano down and set him up for the coup de grace to the chin, finally, and former champion Barney Ross always did say that body punches hurt the most. "You feel three times the punishment because you last that much longer against body punches and are conscious of each blow. A good punch on the chin comes as something of a relief."

WHEN HE WENT to his dressing room after his New York knockout, Graziano is reported to have said he wouldn't fight Zale again. "What's the use," he was quoted, "how are you going to beat a guy who won't stay down?"

"But training here in Chicago, Rocky now denies he made any such crack, and is talking about winning Zale's title.

To date, Graziano has confounded everybody in everything he has done. He's as crude today as he was when he first fought in the $25 preliminaries at Turner's Arena, and there was suspicion that he would ever go far.

All he apparently had in his favor was a roundhouse right and a certain ability to take punishment. He was supposed to be a set-up for the good boxers.

And then he went along and licked every good boxer they tossed in with him, until he came to Zale. And then he confounded the critics by calmly walking into Zale in the first round and knocking him down for a nine-count. It was sort of incredible.

IT WAS INCREDIBLE, too, one round later when Graziano, springing in for a quick knockout of the seemingly washed-up champion, was on the floor himself, dumped there by a wicked left that Zale threw from scarcely 6 inches away. Graziano took only a short count, and was back flailing at Zale and still threatening to put him away in that round.

When the knockout of Graziano did come, it was inexcusable on his part. He let his hands fall to his sides when Zale banged him in the stomach though apparently unhurt by that blow.

The sight of a guy standing in front of him with his hands down spurred every instinct of Zale at that point, and quickly. He belted Rocky with the knockout left to the chin.

This week in Graziano's training camp, his handlers are right back teaching Rocky the fundamentals of the fight business, keynoted by the injunction to "keep your hands up when you're fighting Tony Zale."

They're 'Our' Nats Again—They Win, 4-0, 7-2; Don Black Pitches No-Hitter Against Macks

Ex-Bad Boy Walks Six in 3-0 Triumph

Cleveland, July 10 (AP).—Don Black, former "bad boy" pitcher with the Philadelphia Athletics, tonight hurled a no-run no-hit game against his former teammates. The Clevelnd Indians won, 3 to 0.

His achievement climaxed a comeback campaign which started withthe Indians this spring after he was shipped to Milwaukee last year. He won no games there and lost five.

The Indians obtained Black via the waiver route in the fall of 1945, but he failed to make the grade after the 1946 season opened and was sent to Milwaukee.

It was the first no-hitter pitched this year in the American League, and the only previous major league game of its kind this season was pitched by Ewell Blackwell of the Cincinnati Reds against Boston, June 12.

Walking six men, Black pitched to a total of 31 Athletics.

Tigers, Bosox Tie, 2-2

Detroit, July 10 (AP).—Prince Hal Newhouser of the Detroit Tigers, back in action after his elegant performance in the all-star game, dueled to a 2-2 tie with Dave Ferriss of the Boston Red Sox, in an abbreviated twiligt game tonight.

Darkness closed in on unlighted Briggs Stadium to halt the Sox-Tiger battle for second place in the American League after eight innings of their series opener before 37,384 fans.

New Mark Set For Inverness

Toledo, Ohio, July 10 (AP).—Ed Furgol of Pontiac, Mich., and George Schoux of San Francisco, teamed up as the perfect pair today to blaze a birdie trail into a long lead in the first round of the tenth Inverness four-ball matches.

The youngsters, newcomers to the best-ball classic, set a new scoring record for the event as they combined to snare nine birdies and an eagle for a 30, 30—60, an 11-under-par performance which gave them a six-up edge over Vic Ghezzi, former PGA champion, and Ed (Porky) Oliver of Wilmington, Del., runnerup in last week's Tam O'Shanter tourney at Chicago.

Ben Hogan, 1946 PGA champion, and Jimmy Demaret, the defending Inverness titleholders, opened the seven-match tourney with a two-up win over Sam Snead, last year's British Open king, and Dr. Cary Middlecoff. The defending champs were six under par for the 18 holes.

Phillies Take Double-Header From Pirates; McCormick's Hit Gives Braves Win Over Reds

Philadelphia, July 10 (AP).—The Philadelphia Phillies in a battle for seventh place in the National League shoved the Pittsburgh Pirates further into the cellar today by taking both ends of a doubleheader, 7-2 and 2-1.

A six-run outburst in the fourth sewed up the opener and homers by Andy Seminick and Johnny Wyrostek clinched the nightcap.

The Blue Jays erased a 2-0 Pirate advantage with the fourth inning rampage of the first game in which they swatted Jim Bagby for five hits and put six runners across with the aid of three errors and two hit batsmen. Dutch Leonard gave the Bugs only four bingles to ring up his ninth win against four defeats. It was Bagby's third loss against two wins.

The Pirates jumped off to a 1-0 lead in the fourth of the second encounter as Elbie Fletcher tripled and Al Westlake doubled but Seminick blasted his seventh homer in the fifth and Wyrostek collected his second in the sixth to put the game away.

Reiser's Return Cheers Dodgers

Brooklyn, July 10 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers' flag hopes shot upward today when Pete Reiser, their hard luck outfielder, rejoined the team and belted three balls over the rightfield wall in batting practice.

Reiser had been sent home to St. Louis for a two-week rest after suffering a brain concussion. Yesterday he visited Dr. George Bennet in Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, and was told he could get back in action after four or five days.

Orioles Draw 205,120 12,881 Off '46 Pace

Baltimore, July 10 (AP).—The Baltimore Orioles are in seventh place in the International League standings and the club has drawn 205,120 paid admissions for 26 playing days here his year, 12,881 off thme 1946 pace, Business Manager Herb Armstrong said today.

C. Kirk Straub, board of park commissioners president, said yesterday that the city's revenue from Municipal Stadium would be reduced considerably if the Orioles continued to drawk such small crowds.

Hardy's Beats Clifton's

Hardy's Barber Shop downed Clifton Liquors, 9-6, in the Boys Club of Washington Pee Wee class game yesterday on the West Elipse. Hardy's rallied for eight runs in the last inning to overcome a 6-1 Clifton lead.

Talbert Advances At Spring Lake Nets

Spring Lake, N. J., July 10 (AP).—Bill Talbert of Wilmington, Del., seeded No. 3 and ranked sixth nationally, became the first player to gain the semifinal round of the annual Spring Lake Bathing and Tennis Club invitation tournament today when he rallied to subdue Armondo Vieira, Brazil's singles champion. The scores were 6—8, 6—0, and 6—0.

After allowing his smooth-stroking South American opponent to cop a see-saw first set, Talbert took command in the next two sets and Vieira was unable to win a game.

Garvin Girls Score

With Ruth Sondheimer scattering five hits, Garvin's Grill girl softballers swamped Naval Communications Annex, 10-1, yesterday at Lincoln Memorial field. It was the 15th victory in 17 games for the Garvin gals.

Boston, July 10 (AP).—After Tommy Holmes created ties with two successive homers, Mike McCormick climaxed the Boston Braves' 16-hit attack by lashing out a two-run double in the eighth inning today for a 6-4 win over the Cincinnati Reds.

It was the first game of a day-night twin bill.

McCormick's game - winning clout was made against Harry Gumbert, who relieved Starter Ken Raffensberger in the seventh, with Sibby Sisti and Holmes on base. While bashing his third and fourth four-baggers of the season, Holmes accounted for four of the Braves' runs.

Perry Picks Hursey to Win

Aaron Perry, who lost to both, believes Washington's Smuggy Hursey will edge out Danny Kapilow of New York when they meet in the 10-round feature bout Monday night at Griffith Stadium. Perry, who was kayoed by Kapilow and lost a decision to Hursey, is of the opinion Hursey's consistent punching will wear down the Jewish lad.

Hursey, who finished training in New York yesterday, will return here today in time to work out at 3 p. m., at Liberty A. C. gym. Kapilow, already on the scene, will drill an hour earlier.

Three All-Star Games Today at Griffith Stadium

East meets West today in the tenth annual Boys Club of Washington All-Star games at Griffith Stadium.

Three games are scheduled, in the Midget, Pee Wee and Insect classes, with the Midgets getting underway at 10 a. m.

The Pee Wee clash is slated for 1 p. m., with the Insects taking the field immediately after Pee Wees finish.

The Insect game has added interest, for the winning team faces the Brooklyn, New York, All-Stars at Griffith Stadium next Friday night.

Tennis School Registrations Extended, Classes Tomorrow

Registrations for The Post-Recreation Department Tennis School will continue to be taken after tomorrow's opening day, Bill Shreve, commissioner of the school, announced yesterday.

This will enable boys and girls who are away from town this week a chance to get in on the free instruction by Washington's top tennis stars.

* * * * * *

Shreve also released the list of instructors at tomorrow's session. Included are Gil Bogley, present national boys' title holder; Don Leavens and Alphonso Smith, past national boys' champions; Barney Welsh and Jim Thackara, City of Washington and District of Columbia kings, and many other holders of city, State and collegiate crowns.

Registrations for the school will be taken by Recreation Department officials at any playground in the city from Monday to Friday each week. Registration time is 9:30 a. m. to 6:30 p. m. Only persons 19 years of age and under are eligible for the school.

Lessons will be given from 9:30-11 a. m., Saturdays, July 12, 19, 26 and August 11. On August 4, classes will be held at the Department of Commerce Auditorium, where tennis films will be shown.

Boys and girls owning tennis racquets are urged to bring them to classes. For those who do not possess racquets, The Post and Recreation Department will furnish them.

List of playgrounds and the instructors at each follow:

Takoma-Coolidge—Buddy Adair and Don Leavens.
Hillcrest—Gil Bogley and Alphonso Smith.
Columbia—Jim Thackara.
Congress Heights—Hugh Lynch.
Garfield—Ed Richardson and Joe Jones.

Branca Beats Chicago Twice For Dodgers

BROOKLYN, July 10 (AP).—Ralph Branca boosted his victory total to 14 games, the last seven in succession, as he hurled the Brooklyn Dodgers to a double victory over the Chicago Cubs, 5-3 and 4-3 in 10 innings today, assuring the Brooks of holding the National League lead for at least one more day. The largest crowd of the Ebbets Field season, 34,476, watched the games.

Branca was the starting pitcher in the first game but required relief help from Hank Behrman and Hugh Casey when the Cubs threatened in the ninth. Casey made Pinch Hitter Don Johnson bounce into a force play at second with the btses loaded to end the game with a 5-3 Dodger edge.

Jackie Robinson's two-run homer in the third helped chase Hank Borowy as the Brooks collected 12 hits, including three each by Ed Stanky and Arky Vaughan.

VAUGHAN'S pinch single in the tenth pulled the second game out of the fire after starter Ralph Taylor had blown a three-run lead. Carl Furillo's homer with two men on in the first inning routed Bob Chipman. But the Cubs tied the score in the eighth.

A walk to peanuts Lowrey started the trouble. Singles by Bill Nicholson and Andy Pafko brought Branca to the scene just in time to yield a double by Clyde McCullough that tied the score.

Baltimore Women Meet Today for Maryland Golf Title

Never a Dull Moment . . .

BLIND RIVER, Ont., July 10 (AP).—Bud Young, a tourist from Bluffton, Ind., moved to the front today for the honor of catching the season's largest muskellunge. Shortly after dawn Young, using an 18-pound test line and a cheap spoon, landed a 43-pound silver "muskie" after a 45-minute battle. The fish was 57 inches long, largest to be taken from nearby Lake Lauson this season.

BOSTON, July 10 (AP).—The Cincinnati Reds and the Boston Braves had to umpire as well as play ball in their first game today when two of the three assigned umpires failed to report at Braves field.

The absence of Umpires Larry Goetz and Beans Reardon at game time was attributed to a misunderstanding as the Braves staged Boston's first afternoon-evening double-header, with games at 1:30 and 8:45 p. m.

With only Umpire Jocko Conlon on the job—behind the plate—Cincinnati contributed Pitcher Bucky Walters to call the decisions at first and the Braves nominated Infielder Dick Culler to umpire at third.

WESTBURY, N. Y., July 10 (AP). A lack of horses has caused the West Point Ramblers, a quartet of Army officers from the United States Military Academy, to withdraw from Pete Bostwick's $5000 world handicap polo championship, now under way at Bostwick field.

The ponies which the West Point officer were to have used in the tournament have been turned out to pasture, on Government order.

BELFAST, July 10 (AP).—Long-Distance Swimmer Tom Blower of England will attempt tomorrow to splash from Donaghadee, Ireland, to Port Patrick, Scotland—23 chilly miles. Blower swam the English Channel 10 years ago.

The annual 15 mile YMCA swim-a-thon started yesterday at the Central Branch Pool. The course consists of 990 laps up and down the pool, with a swimmer allowed to swim more than 8 and less than 32 laps at one stretch. The contest will continue until Sept. 30.

De Cozen Loses Jockey's Services

New York, July 10 (AP).—State Supreme Court Justice William C. Hecht, jr., today denied a motion for a temporary injunction brought by Alfred de Cozen, New Jersey horse owner, seeking to restrain Alfred G. Vanderbilt, New York and Baltimore horseman, from hiring Jockey Ruperto Donoso.

De Cozen said he had Donoso under contract until June 1, 1949, and charged Vanderbilt with wrongfully, corruptly and maliciously" enticing the Chilean rider away from him. Vanderbilt denied the charge and Donoso said he had been under contract to de Cozen but that the pact expired some time ago.

Refereeing Vet Dead

Detroit, July 10 (AP).—Elmer Benedict (Slim) McClelland, who started a long career as a boxing referee in northern Michigan lumber camps and later handled a number of world championship fights, died at his home here today after a two-year illness. He was 59.

Kreuzburg Is Defeated on Extra Hole

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

Mrs. Richard Kreuzburg, Washington's last contender for the 1947 Maryland state women's golf championship, lost out yesterday, one down on the 19th hole in a stirring match at the Kenwood Golf and Country Club.

Mrs. Kreuzburg's conqueror was Mrs. T. E. Schluderberg, Baltimore Country Club, who will meet Mrs. Maurice Glick, Woodholme Country Club, in an all-Baltimore affair today, starting at 10 a. m.

Mrs. Glick moved into the title contest by defeating Mrs. Mary Louise Bell, Baltimore Country Club, 4 and 3.

Gallery Applauds Them

Mrs. Kreuzburg, playing on her home course at Kenwood, waged a gallant duel with Mrs. Schluderberg, particularly from the 12th hole through the 17th, when one exceptional shot after another brought repeated applause from the gallery for both players.

But on the 18th and 19th Mrs. Kreuzburg lost the fine control that had enabled her to hold the lead for most of the match and the capable Mrs. Schluderberg made the most of her chances to grab the victory.

On the 18th, Mrs. Kreuzburg, standing 1 up, topped her second shot and put her third in a trap to the right of the green. Mrs. Schluderberg took a 5 while her opponent had a bogie 6.

On the 19th Mrs. Kreuzberg's ball landed in a trap and her recovery left her 30 feet from the pin. She three-putted for a 6, but Mrs. Schluderberg hit the middle of the fairway and was on in two strokes. Although she needed three putts, her 5 gave her the match.

Mrs. Glick Consistent

Mrs. Glick played steady golf to down Mrs. Bell as the latter's putter failed her when she needed it most.

Two up at the turn, Mrs. Glick won the tenth, eleventh and twelfth holes as Mrs. Bell three-putted on the tenth and twelfth.

Although she won the fourteenth with a par 4 to Mrs. Glick's 5, the white-haired Mrs. Bell could do no better than halve the fifteenth as the match ended 4 and 3.

Yesterday's semifinals results:
First Flight Consolation—Mary Ann Downey, Baltimore Country Club, defeated Mrs. Rex Howard, Kenwood, 3 and 2.
Second Flight—Mrs. P. Menoher, Kenwood, defeated Mrs. John Long, Indian Spring, 2 up. Mrs. W. Fairfield Peterson, Elkridge, defeated Mrs. T. Peyser, Woodmont, 2 up.
Second Flight Consolation—Mrs. G. S. Peterson, Kenwood, defeated Mrs. Roderick Watson, Manor, 2 up. Mrs. Ed Widmayar, Kenwood, defeated Mrs. N. P. Hollander, Kenwood, 4 and 3.
Third Flight—Mrs. G. Awalt, Congressional, defeated Mrs. E. B. Ferguson, Kenwood, 3 and 2. Mrs. E. Hansen, Congressional, defeated Mrs. H. L. Lacey, Manor, 3 and 2.
Third Flight Consolation—Mrs. A. A. Merrill, Kenwood, defeated Mrs R. Hayman, Indian Spring, 4 and 3.

Plush Harness Track, Club Projected Near Waldorf, Md.

Waldorf, Md., July 10 (AP).—A group of promoters announced today they are ready to go ahead with the building of a high-toned sports club and harness racing plant on U. S. 301, a mile south of here.

State Senator James B. Monroe of Charles County, a director, announced election of George R. K. Carter, New York and Florida sports promoter, to the presidency of the corporation to proceed with the two-million-dollar project.

The group already has incorporated as "the Waldorf Turf and Polo Club" and has applied to the Maryland Racing Commission for authority to conduct a 10-day harness racing meet with pari-mutuel betting, as provided in a bill passed by the 1947 General Assembly.

Carter, long associated with the late Tex Rickard in boxing promotions and developer of sports clubs in Florida, said membership in the new venture will be limited to those listed in Baltimore, Washington and Richmond social registers and the Washington diplomatic corps.

The promoters have leased a 3000-acre tract from former Senator Robert Reynolds of North Carolina. Carter said immediate building plans call for expenditure of $300,000 and will include a clubhouse, stables, other buildings and landscaping.

Ultimate plans contemplate a riding academy, tennis courts, a swimming pool, airfield, bridle paths, a polo field and skeet shooting range.

Carter said the club hopes to develop a polo team for international competition, fox hunting, and a game preserve stocked with birds and fish.

Abrams Choice Over Belloise

New York, July 10 (AP).—A couple of the middleweight division's better beak-busters—Georgie Abrams and Steve Belloise—tangle in the headline 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night. Abrams is a 5 to 8 favorite to repeat a win he chalked up nearly a year ago.

On that occasion, the boxing skill of Georgie, from Washington, was more than enough to counter Steve's knockout wallop, and the result was the only defeat the Bronx belter has suffered in 27 fights since leaving the Navy.

Abrams, also a Navy veteran, has dropped two decisions since leaving the armed forces, but these were classy punchers, Welterweight Champion Ray Robinson and European Middleweight Champion Marcel Cerdan—and both were close affairs.

A crowd of some 10,000 is expected to chip in to a gate of $30,000 to sit in on tomorrow night's festivities.

Catholic Will Revamp Stand

When Catholic University's "Flying Cardinals" return to the collegiate football field this fall, a newly renovated, freshly painted and polished C. U. Stadium will be the setting for the four home games.

An estimated $56,000 will be spent in replacing the ancient and eroded wooden structure and seats on the west side with a concrete stand and iron-braced seats patterned after Central High School's stadium.

Approximately one half of the present stands will be renovated by fall and if attendance warrants, the entire stadium will be overhauled by the start of the 1948 season.

Athletic Director Eddie LaFond announced yesterday season ticket books for the four home games shortly will go on sale priced at $4, tax included. Single game tickets will sell for $1.20. The home games are: October 18, Randolph-Macon; November 1, Newport News Apprentice School; November 8, Mount St. Mary's and November 15, Washington College.

The Cardinals, who will be coached by Gene Augusterfer, a former Cardinal quarterback, will start practice September 15. Away games with Western Maryland, October 18, at Westminster, Md., and Johns Hopkins, October 25 at Baltimore, completes the Cardinals' half-dozen contests.

Staunton Court Aces Headed for Virginia U.

Charlottesville, Va., July 10 (AP). Gus Tebell, University of Virginia basketball coach, said today three of five basketball players who sparked Staunton Military Academy to the State military prep school title last year will enroll at the university in September.

He named Joe Butler, center, from Baldwin, N. Y.; Bob Pickett, guard, from New York City, and Frankie Alley, forward, from Conshohocken, Pa.

Gene Schroeder, basketball and track performer from Anacostia, D. C., also will attend Virginia, Tebell said.

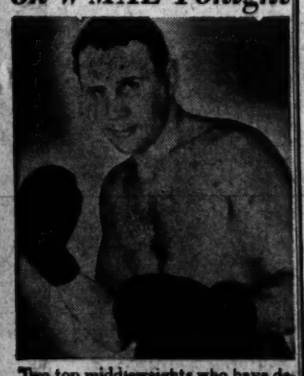
Hot Return Fight on WMAL Tonight



Two top middleweights who have designs on the title, Georgie Abrams (above), Brooklyn, and Steve Belloise of the Bronx, N. Y., clash tonight in a return ten-rounder at Madison Square Garden. In a whisker-close fight last fall, Abrams was awarded the decision. The referee called it a draw but the two judges voted in favor of Georgie.

Belloise has had 27 settos since his Navy discharge, and has won all of them except the Abrams' brawl. Twenty of these triumphs have been knockouts.

Abrams is a canny, ringwise performer. In fact, he's considered the cleverest boxer in the 160-lb. class. He possesses a good left hook and a fast right hand. It looks to be a Kilkenny and should make for mighty good listening.

Enjoy the excitement, blow-by-blow, on Gillette's Cavalcade of Sports over American Broadcasting Co. and WMAL (630 on your dial) at 10 p. m.

Jimmy Baird Rides 45th Winner of Meeting at Charles Town

Bill Bennings

Dear Folks: Charles Town.

Walter Haight, the horse, arrived from Monmouth Park and is slated to see action on the Friday program. Looks like the favorite, too. If memory serves, he has never won as the choice. Mrs. H. M. Jenkins of Charles Town has purchased Thormond and Bill Wright will do the training. Claiming of horses, once a rarity here, continues at a fast clip. When C. R. Norris took Demaris for $1000, it was the fiftieth claim of the meeting. Jockey Francis Kelly had to cancel mounts yesterday due to a leg injury. After Linda's Wash had won the third race at $29.40 the song "Linda" came over the PA system. If it had been played before the race, many would have taken the hunch. Remember the hard-running mare, Schley Nurse? Well, she is the dam of Old Fellow, the 4-year-old now campaigning here. The horse, New Life, is aptly named, being out of the mare Baby Shoes. Two track records have stood here for years. They are the 1:18 2/5 for 6½ furlongs by Misty Lady and the 1:23 1/5 for about 7 furlongs by Soldierette. See you on the rail. . . . BILL.

Flying Raid Romps Home By 5 Lengths

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., July 10.—Jimmy Baird rode his forty-fifth winner of the meeting in the featured sixth race today. The former soldier was aboard the Stevens Stable's Flying Raid and brought the daughter of Sky Raider home five lengths in front of the closest opposition.

Flying Raid, who has been chasing some of the best sprinters here, finally had good ones chasing her.

Trainer Bernie Bond sent two horses out to shoot against Flying Raid but they finished second and third—G. A. Lawson's Fall Guy and R. L. Hall, jr's Patuxent Belle.

Flying Raid was second choice to the entry and paid a $4.60 mutuel. She stepped the about 4½ furlongs in :51 over a track that was drying out rapidly and had reached a "good" stage for the event.

The three rivals came out of the starting gate alertly but Flying Raid soon shook them off and Baird coasted into his first victory since this recent loss of apprentice allowance and serving a suspension.

Apprentice Jockey Pat O'Brien rode four winners on the program. His first success was in the second race when he scored with J. W. Ignatowsky's Rakish Jane, a $5.80 favorite, to put the finishing touches on a $25.20 daily double, started when Gene C. Dunway's True Lass at $7.20 won the first race.

O'Brien came back to take the third with Glusker and Araluskas' Linda's Wash, a $29.40 shot. In the fourth, the same youngster kept H. Howard's White Russian in front all the way at $4.60. O'Brien also had the mount when H. B. Fergerson's Royal View turned a form flipflop at $10.40 in the second.

Councils Curb Bait Fish Take

Baltimore, July 10 (AP).—Arrangements were being made today for the appointment in each county of a three-member advisory council to work with the Game and Inland Fish Commission.

The commission authorized the councils yesterday at its July meeting, during which new regulations were adopted in a drive to stop reported depletion of bait fish.

Each council will comprise representatives of sportsmen, farmers and the county board of education.

The commission had been advised bait fish were being sold by the thousands and particular concern was expressed over the taking of these fish from trout streams.

The commission decided to prohibit the taking of bait fish or minnows of any description from any Maryland trout stream or its tributaries, and set a limit of 35 bait fish which anyone may have in his possession.

Rejected a request from the Western Maryland Wildlife Federation that the minimum size of brook trout which could be taken be reduced from 7 to 6 inches.

Amplified regulations affecting boats on Deep Creek Lake by providing that all privately operated boats display numbers and carry a life preserver and that no aircraft use the lake without written permission from the commission and the Pennsylvania Electric Co.

Directed drafting of a regulation specifically outlawing the trapping of wild waterfowl.

They're Our Boys Now

quickly. Eddie Yost doubled promptly down the left field line to start it. Pepish curved third strikes past both Lewis and McBride, but Spence jolted him with a right field single that scored Yost.

Lewis and McBride whacked out hits to start the third. Lewis' was a single to center, but McBride powdered a triple to the same sector. Spence and Vernon couldn't move McBride home, but after Priddy walked the pair of 'em worked a smart double steal to get McBride in.

Scarborough meanwhile encountered a rough first inning that wasn't his fault. Appling got a double on a fly that Lewis lost in the sun, and when Lewis made a shoestring grab of Wright's liner, Umpire Weafer ruled he had trapped the ball, despite the Nats' protests. Appling held his base on the play. Scarborough buckled down to fan Wallaesa and get out of the inning on York's infield out.

Papish, Grove Bumped

In the third, the Sox cut Scarborough's lead to 3-1 with their first run of the day on Baker's single, a walk and another single by Wallaesa.

It was a feeble contrast to the Nats' sustained socking. In the seventh, the Nats put on a three-run crusher, driving both Papish and Relief Pitcher Orval Grove from the box.

Christman opened that seventh with a single, stole second after being trapped off first, and scored on Ferrell's single. A sacrifice and a single to left by Yost, his third hit of the game, scored Ferrell. A bit later, Michaels made a wild throw to Appling on a double play ball and Yost scored. Maltzberger finally got the side out when Vernon bounced into a bases-full double play.

What happened thereafter was inconsequential with Scarborough continuing to pitch one of his best games of the year.

Midget Races On at Lanham

A mass effort to halt the sensational streak of Ed "Dutch" Schaefer red hot Offenhauser pilot from Floral Park, Long Island, will be made by two dozen Ford V-8 drivers tonight when midget automobile racing enters its fourth week at the West Lanham (Md.) Speedway at 8:30 o'clock.

The Flying Dutchman tied the old track record of Mike Joseph while taking his second successive 25-lap feature at Lanham last week, and is far out in front as the scoring leader there with 33 of a possible 36 points, netted from six first place finishes and three seconds in nine starts.

Schaefer and Johnny Ringer, the latter a Chicago ace, will be the only Offy chauffeurs in tonight's field, and will be challenged by a formidable field.

Hawley Kight, Ernie McCoy, Red Redmond, Steve Jars, Jimmy Forte, Steve Yannigan, Charlie Breslin, George Marshman, John Favinger, Shorty Miller, Carl Miller and Ray Hartsook also will put in bids for the prize money.

Md. Tax Aide Appeals to D.C. Merchants

William E. Kennedy, Maryland's retail sales tax division chief, stressed yesterday he was urging cooperation rather than threatening to stop trucks of District merchants who fail to collect taxes on goods delivered in Maryland.

The tax chief told members of the Junior Board of Commerce he was asking Washington merchants to cooperate with the State of Maryland in collecting the tax.

If the merchants fail to comply, Kennedy said that he could declare that they were doing business in Maryland and halt their trucks.

Not a Threat, Kennedy Says

"This is not a threat," Kennedy said. "I'm just telling you what I can do."

When asked what he would do, Kennedy said: "Let's wait and see."

Discussing the problem of enforcement, Kennedy said that it is possible to evade the tax.

"But that is true of all taxes," he said.

Meanwhile, members of the Montgomery County delegation to the Maryland Legislature charged that the "uses" tax to be collected on goods bought elsewhere and used in the State cannot be enforced.

In a statement released to the press by A. R. Lofstrand, jr., the delegates declared that the tax fails to offer Montgomery County merchants any real protection.

"It is reported that only about half of the retail merchants of the State have paid the fee required for a permit to do business under this tax," the statement said. "No wonder they do not see fit to pay for a permit that will drive them into bankruptcy."

38,595 Licenses Issued

As for the sales tax, a total of 38,595 licenses have been issued to date to retailers for collection of the tax, State Comptroller James J. Lacy reported in Baltimore.

Lacy said investigators would be sent into the counties in the immediate future to see whether all merchants were licensed.

A total of 2599 Baltimore retailers had taken out the $1 licenses as of the close of business today. Allegany was second with 1435 licensed places, Anne Arundel had 1365, Washington 1312, Frederick 1112, Prince Georges 1056 and Montgomery 1008. The tax became effective July 7.

Aid Asked on Md. Canned Foods Surplus

By The Associated Press

Maryland's entire congressional delegation yesterday supported the plea of food growers, processors and distributors that the Government remove a big canned food surplus from the market by sending it abroad in its relief program.

The Maryland group appeared at a hearing before a House Agriculture Subcommittee.

Representative Miller (R., Md.), one of those who interested the committee in the problem, noted the presence of the State's delegation and told the committee it demonstrated the importance of the matter to his State.

Various witnesses told the group that farmers had expanded production at Government urging, that a 67-million-case surplus of canned foods now exist and that canners and processors are unable to purchase this year's crop because of this surplus.

Dr. T. D. Symon, director of the Maryland Extension Service, appealed for immediate action because "the packers and the growers do not know what to do."

Symon suggested that the committee appeal to the Secretaries of Agriculture, State and War to buy surplus commodities and send them abroad.

"I fear we are facing tremendous loss otherwise," he said.

Miller declared the problem is of far-reaching importance and will affect "not only the farmer but the national economy as well."

"I realize that the problem of transportation and funds are difficult," he said, "but why try to keep the economy of Europe up and let our own go?"

Senators O'Conor and Tydings and Representatives Meade and Fallon also spoke briefly in support of the plan. Other Maryland Congressmen were interested spectators.

O'Conor said the problem was vital in Maryland since 15,000 of its 41,0000 farmers produce food for canning.

Robert W. Mairs of Baltimore, representing a canning concern, said his company "is not turning a wheel because of the large surplus which we are now offering below last year's prices.

"We simply are not in a position to take any crops from the farmer."

Calvin L. Skinner, Easton, Md., secretary of the Tri-State Packers Association, said the big surplus exists because producers and processors relied on Government urgings that more food was needed.

"Now we're stuck with it," he said.

Skinner urged that the Government purchase the surplus for use abroad or "let the producers and processors know its policy so we will know just where we stand."

William D'Miller, secretary of the Cooperative Food Distributors of America, said it wasn't so much a question of pricing as the fact that people seem to have plenty of money and are buying quality goods rather than standard brands.

As a result, he testified, cheaper brands are gathering dust on grocery store shelves and in distributors' warehouses.

D'Miller said a survey of 80 warehouses in 76 cities showed that distributors have enough standard brands in reserve to last eight to 14 months at the present rate of distribution. Some have an 18-month supply.

He warned that unless something is done to reduce this "dangerously large" stockpile, packers, and canners are going to cut down their processing this season and farmers are going to have trouble selling their vegetables.

William Heckendorn, assistant secretary of the National Council of Farmers Cooperatives, said farmers in Louisiana already are plowing under snap bean crops because they have no market.

Subcommittee Chairman August H. Andersen (R., Minn.) wanted to know if the distributors had tried cutting prices.

Heckendorn said some had tried it, but that others were still holding out.

Plow Up String Beans

Mountain City, Tenn., July 10 (AP).—Johnson County farmers, dissatisfied with prices offered by buyers, have begun plowing up their green string bean crop, County Agricultural Agent Vernon Sims reported today.

This year's market opened two weeks ago, Sims declared at $3 a bushel, and already has dropped to 60 cents.

One on the Aisle—

Manhunt With Moral

Britain Unreels Something New

By Richard L. Coe

ANOTHER SUPERB BRITISH film has arrived—"Odd Man Out" at the Metropolitan. Like the Earle's "Great Expectations," this is another picture you shouldn't miss.

In a sense, "Odd Man Out" is two pictures in one. It's an exciting chase yarn, a manhunt that will keep you on edge for two hours. Carol Reed, who made the tingling "Night Train," is the director and he has fashioned his story with pulsating effect.

James Mason plays Johnny, a chieftain of the Irish Republican Army at Belfast. After escaping from prison he plans a mill holdup to raise money for "the organization." But prison life and his long, forced hideout have slowed up his reflexes. In the getaway after he has killed a man, he is shot and falls out of his comrade's car.

From then on he's hunted up and down the back alleys of Belfast. His companions try to help their chief, but fail. He staggers from one risky hideaway to another, protected but not really helped by strangers along the way. The hunt finally funnels through Father Tom, a parish priest. Johnny's girl ultimately gets to him and rather than let the police take him she kills Johnny and herself.

That is one "Odd Man Out," the picture as it appears on the surface.

If you choose to see it as such, "Odd Man Out" also is an allegory. The story it tells is of man's need for charity, which the hunted hero speaks out when finally he knows that death is upon him, quoting Paul's Epistle to the Corinthians: "Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal . . . Though I have all faith so that I could remove mountains and have not charity, I am nothing."

All Without Charity

The people whom we have met during his eight-hour wanderings are ourselves. The old priest wants Johnny because he feels that a dying man's soul is his business. The police inspector is the law, humane and sensible, but without mercy. Two women who take him in do what they can but they cannot risk their own lives.

"ODD MAN OUT." Universal-International release, presented by J. Arthur Rank, produced by Carol Reed and Two Cities Films. Directed by Reed. Screenplay by Robert Sherif and R. L. Green, from a novel by Green. Music by William Alwyn, played by the London Symphony, Muir Mathieson conducting. At the Metropolitan Theater.

An old rip turns in his pals for the reward. His girl wants him because she feels she canot live without him; when she sees his safety is impossible she destroys them both.

Her grandmother, old and wise, would have her grandchild give up Johnny so she can live to enjoy life. His cohorts help Johnny not from the instinctive impulse of charity but that of duty to their chief. A half-mad artist helps him because he wants to paint the eyes of death. A broken doctor patches him together to prove he's as good as the surgeon he never became. A derelict comes to his aid, if not for money, at least for what the priest tells him is a good as money—faith. What faith is, the derelict doesn't know.

The camera alone shows us all these people with bitter compassion. They are eloquently played—so eloquently that these actors become their roles. It seems foolish to single any one of them out; most of them are London and Dublin stage folk, but Mason finally shows what he can do as an actor, making as he does the hunted man a figure of stature.

A Mystical Belief

W. G. Fay, one of the founders of the Abbey Theater, plays Tom; F. J. McCormick, who passed away recently, is superb as the old, shrewd derelict who carries on his negotiations with an allegory of his own—the caged birds he keeps in his dank room. Fay Compton and Beryl Measor give a touch of the normal as the surprised housewives, while Robert Newton's florid painter is another contrasting portrait from the fringes of life.

"Odd Man Out" is disturbingly difficult to put into words. It is that rare thing—an ambitious film. Its brooding pictures of a great city, its half-world and respectability daringly mixed, its peculiar, murky beauty, its troubled insistence on probing a mystical belief and all of it mixed in with a thoroughly engrossing manhunt, make it a remarkable, unusual film. If picture-going has begun to pall on you, "Odd Man Out" will wake you up again to what an exciting, stimulating adventure it can sometimes be.

Ironic Chapter Added To the 'Jolson Story'

New York.—Al Jolson's new radio contract assures him $7500 a program. His sponsor pays all the expenses of the show—the music, the guest stars, everything. In addition, Jolson will get a two-week vacation after the first 13 weeks, and and a three-week vacation after the second 13 weeks. This solves the problem of Jolson's longing for the Florida racetracks as soon as he sees the first tanned man returned from Miami . . . His every whim is being catered to by show producers and the men of radio and films. Yet only a few years ago, when he offered Warner Bros. a deal to sell the film rights to "Wonder Bar" and to appear in it—all for $75,000—the producers offered $100,000 if his services were not included.

Al Jolson

It was Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt who served as mediator between her sons, when Elliott was suggested for the chairmanship of the American Veterans Committee in opposition to the slate proposed by Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr. Elliott withdrew his name . . . Walter Duranty, who once won a Pulitzer Prize for his dispatches from Moscow, has applied for a visa to return to Russia.

Lou Holtz was in the Stork Club the other night and told of a night he saw Joe Frisco entertaining in a Kentucky nightclub which was adjacent to the gambling room. When Frisco arrived at the night club to do his show he found only six people in the audience: "I left more people in my hotel room," Frisco told Holtz that although he has worked in New York for long stretches he never acquired a liking for the Big City. "It's too hot in New York. Or else it's too cold," said Frisco. "But hot or cold—somebody's always pushing you."

Noel Coward is expected to arrive here on the 26th, to spend a vacation at Katharine Cornell's . . . Coward has completed all of the recordings—13 half-hour programs—which will be sold to radio sponsors throughout the English and French speaking countries. Coward made the bilingual recordings himself, doing the commentary both in English and French, playing, singing and commenting on the songs and plays he's written . . . A notorious New York night club figure never has paid any income taxes, either State or Federal. He never has filed any return. "Officially," he shrugs, "I don't exist."

John Sonnett, boss of the anti-trust division of the Department of Justice, will proceed with his prosecution of the investment trust companies. President Truman will give approval of this action . . . Winston Churchill has completed almost all of the material he contracted to write for Henry Luce and the Times.

BACK AGAIN: "Miracle on 34th Street," that beguiling comedy, is back on F street, at the Columbia with Maureen O'Hara and John Payne, who aid Edmund Gwenn in proving that there is a Santa Claus

'Cynthia' Mixes Tears and Titters

Dew's on the Lark at the Capitol

By Leo Brady

In "Cynthia," at the Capitol, Elizabeth Taylor starts out as a sensitive, if sickly, adolescent with a devotion to Shakespeare and ends up as the belle of the Junior Prom.

Elizabeth Taylor

This metamorphosis, which is presumably desirable, from bookworm to butterfly is encased in that peculiar blend of farce and bathos to which movie-goers are thoroughly accustomed by now. Its farce moments—derived from the ridiculous side of adolescence and family life—are delightful. Its sentimental aspects are adroitly done, and if you are feeling dewy-eyed anyway, probably Miss Taylor is as appealing a young actress to cry over as any other.

Robert Z. Leonard's imaginative direction sustains the weepy portions admirably and a sturdy list of competent actors, headed by George Murphy and Mary Astor, make a great deal of it credible. They succeed in making some scenes enjoyable instead of embarrassing, but they are not entirely successful.

The story has two prongs, and the action hops back and forth between them like an electric spark. Cynthia is prohibited from indulging in what are accepted as normal adolescent antics, by a parental authority overconcerned about her delicate health. Her captivity is the result, we learn, of her father's enslavement to convention. But Mother is a strong woman and finally takes a stand which solves everybody's problems — except possibly the ones which occur to the audience. You may wonder, for instance, whether Cynthia wasn't better off reading "Macbeth" than doing a snake dance in front of an obvious joint operated by a man named Benny.

Captivating Cast

One of the choice farce moments occurs when Scotty Backett's tuxedo disintegrates in the middle of a ballroom—hilarious proof of what an able director can do with an ancient routine. The acting over-all is top-notch, from the principals, through Miss Taylor, who is certainly captivating, down to Gene Lockhart, Morris Ankrum, Carol Brannan and S. Z. Sakall (who has some connection with the plot for a change.) If the sentimentality isn't too weak-kneed for you, you may thing it's heartiwarming and enjoy the whole picture.

The Capitol stage features Harry Babitt, a crooner evidently in favor with Kay Kyser fans, but the man who came near to bringing down the house yesterday was a comedian named Frank Marlowe, who, you will be relieved to hear, is not just following in Bob Hope's footsteps. His routine is original, rowdy and funny, and if he lives through it—as he cautions—he might to heard from largely in the future. Bill and Cora manipulate marionettes with dexterity and humor. Pritchard and Lowe handle the dance portion nicely.

"CYNTHIA." M-G-M release produced by Edwin H. Knopf. Directed by Robert Z. Leonard. Screenplay by Harold Buchman and Charles Kaufman, from the play "The Rich Full Life," by Vina Delmar. At the Capitol Theater.

Va. Improves Its Secondary Road System

Richmond, July 10 (AP).—Expenditures on Virginia's secondary roads during the fiscal year ending June 30 soared to almost double previous highs.

Total expenditures for the 12 months were $23,911,675, the State Highway Department disclosed today in its annual report. The previous high was $12,102,105, in the fiscal year 1945-46.

During the 12-month period the Highway Department applied to secondary roads 844 miles of new hard surfacing, 2143 miles of bituminous retreatments, conditions resurfaced 6399 miles, stabilized 3944 miles, graded or constructed 2636 miles, and constructed 3 new bridge. Included in the mileage were 11,104 miles of school bus routes.

Transportation Job Remains

Governor Tuck commenting on the report called the progress "more than gratifying," but he pointed out that Virginia still has a tremendous job ahead. "I trust," the Governor said, "that the people of Virginia will bear with us as the Highway Department continues toward its goal of getting Virginia 'out of the mud.'"

A Highway Department spokesman called the year just ended "the greatest year we have ever had for achievement on the secondary system." He added, however, than many miles are still sub-standard.

Much of the accomplishment during the past fiscal year, Highway Department spokesmen pointed out, was due to the additional one cent gasoline tax imposed by the General Assembly of 1946. The money was earmarked for the secondary system.

School Routes Improved

Emphasis during the year, was placed on bringing school bus routes to all-weather standards. Not a school bus day was lost in the State last winter due to mud, the department said.

Accomplishment on the secondary roads, officials pointed out, was despite unprecedented labor shortages, equipment shortages, and rising costs. Continuing efforts, they said, will be based on priority as established by traffic counts.

The past year's 23 million dollar expenditure on the secondary system was nearly four times the $6,543,641 spent during 1932-33, the first year the county roads were taken into the State system.

Total expenditures last year on secondary roads by construction districts follows: Bristol—$3,258,284; Salem—$2,871,976; Lynchburg—$2,857,683; Richmond— $3,125,521; Suffolk—$3,191,069; Fredericksburg—$2,031,610; Culpeper—$3,132,405; Staunton—$2,543,124.

Pay Boost Due to Aid Hospital Help Shortage

Baltimore, July 10 (AP).—Dr. George H. Preston, State commissioner of mental hygiene, today expressed hope for rapid improvement in the employment situation in Maryland's mental hospitals as a result of newly authorized pay increases.

There is currently a shortage of more than 500 workers in five institutions.

A scale recently approved by the Salary Standard Board allows hospital attendants a starting salary of $1380 yearly plus maintenance, with a maximum of $1725 after five years. The previous beginning rate was $1180, which Dr. Preston asserted was too low to attract attendants.

New salaries for other categories range from a minimum of $1500 for hospital charge attendants to a high of $4600 for clinical directors. The increases were granted as of July 1.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste. Get Doan's Pills.

Va. Sanatoria Heads Tell Needs to State

Richmond, Va., July 10 (AP).—Dr. L. J. Roper, State health commissioner, conferred today with superintendents of the three State sanatoria and other officials on personnel and construction needs.

Meanwhile, health officials revealed the three sanatoria, Blue Ridge, Catawba and Piedmont, as of July 5, had 253 vacant beds and a waiting list of 316 patients, most of whom were reported to be bedridden patients who cannot be handled in the pavilions without additional help.

It was said also that 53 per cent of the patients now in the hospital are bed-ridden cases. Piedmont has 60 per cent, Blue Ridge 59, and Catawba, 40 per cent.

Piedmont's present capacity for all cases is 269, Blue Ridge, 370, and Catawba, 400.

Governor Tuck yesterday said that salary restrictions would be lifted if necessary to enable the hospitals to recruit additional doctors and nurses, and directed that steps be taken to obtain needed personnel.

Meanwhile, the State Corporation Commission held today that Lynchburg hospitals operating in connection with the group hospitalization plan could charge patients an additional fee if the patients had to take accommodations more elaborate than those provided in their contract.

There was no opposition to the petition and the commission stated that an order would be entered granting it.

Bill Would Hike Penalty on Peanut Quota Violation

By The Associated Press

Representative Hardy (D., Va.) yesterday introduced legislation to amend peanut marketing quota provisions which would increase penalties imposed on peanuts planted in excess of farm acreage allotments.

Under existing law, Hardy said, "penalties involved in producing excess peanuts are not considered adequate to secure compliance with the acreage allotment program.

"As a result price-supporting activities on the part of the Government might entail heavy expenditures of Government funds.

"I feel that such a possibility should be avoided and that the cost of administering governmental price support should be kept at a minimum. This, I believe, is in the interest not only of the general public but of peanut producers themselves."

Hardy said that "the Secretary of Agriculture has indicated his intention, pursuant to existing law, to proclaim peanut marketing quotas for the 1948 marketing season."

Plant Tax Exemptions Held Illegal

Cumberland, Md., July 10 (AP).—Three circuit judges had under consideration today a contention that tax exemptions granted three large industrial plants by Allegany County are illegal.

Attorneys for James H. Reed, a taxpayer, argued that the Allegany County commissioners were discriminatory in authoring the exemptions and the Maryland State law which permitted them violates the Federal Constitution.

Counsel for the county commissioners and the Celanese Corp. of America, the Kelly-Springfield Tire Co., and the West Virginia Pulp & Paper Co. pleaded it was a long recognized practice to exempt a plant's tools and machinery from Taxation in order to attract new industries.

Case Under Advisement

After hearing the arguments in a day-long session, Chief Judge William A. Huster and Associate Judges George Henderson and Joseph D. Mish of the Fourth Judicial Circuit took the case under advisement. They indicated they may not rule for several weeks.

David I. Kauffman and Clarence Lippel, attorneys, argued against the exemptions on tools and machinery.

Kauffman contended the 1931 Act of the Maryland General Assembly which gives the Allegany Commissioners power to grant such exemptions is invalid because:

1. It gives the commissioners discretionary powers without defining the limits of the powers.

2. It duplicates Article 81, Section 7, of the code of General Public Laws for Maryland.

3. It violates the general constitutional principle (Fourteenth Amendment) of nondiscrimination in taxes and tax reliefs.

"The Constitution provides that taxes and exemption classifications must be equal and not arbitrary," Kauffman declared. declared. "People must be treated alike.

"Here, three specific, arbitrary exemptions have been granted. The only basis for classification I can find is that the companies are large. It is a dubious basis, against both the law and public policy."

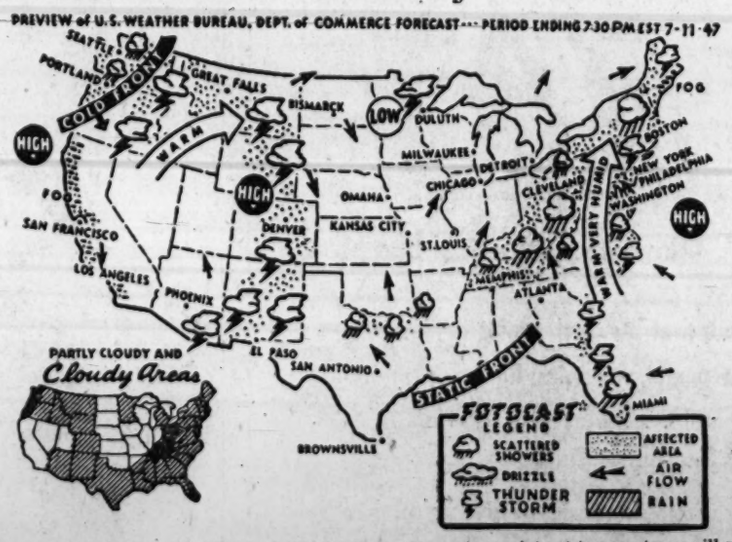
Accepts Richmond Call

Richmond, Va., July 10 (AP).—The Rev. H. Ruffner Lowman, pastor of Olivet Presbyterian Church, Staunton, has accepted a call to the pastorate of Porter Street Presbyterian Church here, effective September 1, it was announced today. He has been pastor of the Staunton church for eight years.

National Weather Summary

Copyr., 1947, Edw. L. A. Warner

PREVIEW of U.S. WEATHER BUREAU, DEPT. of COMMERCE FORECAST··· PERIOD ENDING 7:30 PM EST 7-11-47



24-HOUR FORECAST: Residents of the Northeast should prepare to experience very humid weather with afternoon temperatures in the mid-80s this afternoon. Maximum temperatures will be in the 90s in the northern Plains, Texas and the Gulf States. Readings of 100 degrees or more will be recorded in the Southwest desert region. By way of contrast the Pacific coastal States will enjoy comfortable conditions with afternoon temperatures in the 70s.

Weather experts are calling for showers and thunderstorms from Maine to Florida, the Ohio Valley, southern Plains and the Northwest. Heavy swelling "thunderheads" will form in the Rockies followed by afternoon and evening thundershowers. (Affected areas show where rain will fall in the next 24 hours.)

Forecasters point out temperatures will rise in the Ohio Valley and sultry, oppressive conditions will persist from Pennsylvania to Maine as warm, moist air pours into the Northeast. (See air mass and air flow arrows.)

Fog will blanket the Maine and California coastlines. (See FOTOCAST.)

Skies over most of the Nation will be partly cloudy in the coming 24 hours. Clear, sunny skies are indicated from the Lakes region to the central Plains and the Southwest. (See inset map.)

Highest temperatures expected this afternoon include Bismarck 95 degrees, Forth Worth 90, Kansas City and Tulsa 88, Boston, Hartford, Washington, Atlanta and Duluth 85, Philadelphia and St. Louis 84, New York 83, Nashville 82, Buffalo, Chicago and Detroit 80, Milwaukee 79, Pittsburgh 78, and Cleveland 77.

New Law Cuts Jobless Claim Discrepancies

Annapolis, Md., July 10 (AP).—Maryland's new unemployment compensation law, unique in the Nation, is yielding substantial results, Russell S. Davis, chairman of the Department of Employment Security, reported to Governor Lane today.

One section of the law which requires "accession reports" after an employer hires a person, Davis said, has resulted in catching many improper claims and cutting out idle pay benefits to some workers and criminal prosecutions for others.

The law passed by the 1947 General Assembly was effective April 1. The experience of the first three months' operation was set forth in Davis' letter to the Governor.

Davis explained that under the old law, quarterly reports were submitted by employers, which delayed detection of fraudulent claims for months.

Maryland is the only State in the Union which requires the new reports although Connecticut uses them on a voluntary basis.

During April 39,134 accession notices were received and there were 3988 cases of workers who had filed claims; in May 49,291 notices included 7567 claimants, and in June 57,032 notices included 7450 claimants.

The department head explained that the figures did not necessarily mean that all claims were filed improperly. "A worker may have filed the previous week and was subsequently employed and ceased filing claims since employment," Davis said.

Davis reported that 73 persons were disqualified from benefits for attempted fraud and 42 found guilty of fraud.

Cumberland reported four cases of attempted fraud; Hagerstown 10; Frederick, six; Towson, nine; Cambridge, six; and Centerville, 17.

All of these cases have been or are being investigated, Davis added. In some cases criminal prosecutions have resulted in convictions with 30-day jail sentence and $50 fines.

Meanwhile, Davis reported unemployment compensation claims for the week ending July 4—including four days' activity—reached $253,986.

Payments in the counties included 4327 checks totaling $69,454; in Baltimore 9410 checks totaling $168,987 and out-of-State claimants received 761 checks totaling $15,545.

In the separate class of self-employed persons there were 139 continued claims and $12,832 paid out.

Pennsy Service To Baltimore Delayed by Wreck

Arundel, Md., July 10 (AP).—Service over two of the Pennsylvania Railroad's four tracks between Baltimore and Washington was halted for 10 hours today when 11 cars of a 100-car freight train left the rails near here, in Prince Georges County.

Several hundred feet of track was ripped up, railroad officials said. One of the derailed cars contained a load of sheep, but none was reported killed.

The fast freight was en route from Potomac Yards, Washington, to New York.

Trains moving over the division were delayed from 10 to 15 minutes during most of the day, and at 7:10 p. m., the two tracks were reported virtually clear.

The cause of the accident was not determined.

Animal Protection Studied in Frederick

Frederick, Md., July 10.—What constitutes cruelty in the shooting of animals was discussed by the Frederick County Chapter, Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, with a view to adopting a policy for the organization. The chapter elected Benjamin B. Rosenstock, local attorney, as its legal counsel.

AN EXTRAORDINARY small estate, located for year-round living, 7 miles from historic and colorful Alexandria, 40 minutes commuting from the Nation's Capital. Nicely secluded setting 2 miles off Defense highway on South River—a salt water tributary of Chesapeake Bay. On 3 acres of land, this luxurious home setting boasts a 900-ft. waterfront with a fine dock and boathouse, having dressing rooms, bar, sun deck, etc. Fully equipped. The plan of the house is ideal, all built around the vast 36-ft. living room which opens directly to all other rooms. On the first floor there is also the dining room, bar, pantry and kitchen, the master suite of bedroom, 2 dressing rooms and bath, another suite of 2 bedrooms and bath and a front guestroom and bath. A 11-ft. screened porch overlooks the river. On the second floor there is a 26-ft. recreation room and 2 suites, each with 2 rooms and bath. 14 large closets provide ample storage space for all purposes. 2-car garage has large rooms and bath above. New, small greenhouse permits early start of annuals. For a family seeking delightful surroundings—with emphasis on seclusion and boating from yacht to canoe—"WOODHAVEN" will offer an irresistible appeal. Privacy, yet not isolation—a setting for pleasant living and gracious entertaining. Offered at less than two-thirds of cost of building with financing—a real value. Come out and see for yourself. Enthusiastic Sightseer

D. C. Most Beautiful Capital, Says Peruvian Minister's Wife

By Genevieve Reynolds

ONE OF THE most enthusiastic sightseers in Washington is vivacious, Senora de Garcia Sayan, wife of the Foreign Minister of Peru. Since arriving here with her distinguished husband Tuesday, she has covered the Capitol, Mount Vernon, art galleries and museums.

The chic, Parisian-educated senora unhesitatingly calls this the most beautiful, enchanting capital in the world. As for the humidity, she has been so busy meeting people, shopping and going places that she has not had time to think of the climate.

Aids Students

Back in Lima, she puts in several hours weekly working for various welfare and charity activities. One of her projects is a student aid program to assist college students, especially those from the provinces who are short on funds.

Brown-haired, blue-eyed Senora de Garcia Sayan thinks that it is not only right, but necessary for women to participate in politics. "Women can aid particularly with social welfare, sanitation and educational advancement," she explained in

Mary Haworth's Mail

Bride, 19, Fled Home and Husband Before Child Was Born, to Leave Field to Older Sister Whom He First Loved; Now What?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My sister and I don't see alike about anything except men. I am 19, she is 23, and as it happens we both love the same man. He loves my sister and when he proposed, she accepted him. A few days before they were to be married, she eloped with another man.

In his sorrow Jim turned to me and asked me to be his wife. I accepted because I knew he liked me, at least, and I didn't expect any more. We had been married five months when I learned I was to have a baby. That evening my husband came home in a happy mood. For the first time, I felt he wasn't acting!

I decided to wait until after dinner to tell him about the baby; but during dinner he handed me a letter. It was from my sister, saying her elopement had been a mistake and she was coming home. I realized Jim still loved her and I knew I must leave if I wanted him to be truly happy. So I said nothing about the baby.

Man Wants Her To Come Back

AFTER a troubled night I packed some clothes and left a note asking him not to follow me. I told him he should divorce me. I had never worked and in my condition I had to take an easy job which didn't pay much. I soon learned he had taken my advice and filed suit for divorce. I was heartbroken but didn't do anything, as I felt he would be happier without me.

A month before the baby was due I became very ill and wrote to my parents, who urged me to come home. I left for home that night, and when I stepped off the train they were shocked by my appearance. For the next month I stayed in my room, refusing to see anyone.

After the baby was born and I was back from the hospital, my husband asked to see me and I consented. He told me he had stopped divorce proceedings when he heard about the baby and said we ought to go back together. He tells me he never really loved my sister, that he only thought he did.

I can't believe that; but for the sake of our child and my deep love for him, should I go back to him? Maybe in time I could win his love; but I'm afraid to take the chance. Please advise me. K. N.

Melodramatic As the Movies

DEAR K. N.: This sounds like something out of the movies, but maybe it really happened to you. Taking the story at face value, assuming it's true, I think you ought to go back to your husband if he is willing.

After all, he gave you no provocation to leave. You flew the coop for reasons of your own, leaving him without knowledge of all you knew and felt in your emotional crisis,—therefore without a clear-cut chance to show himself false or true in the role of husband.

However, all's well that ends well, and maybe your melodramatic disappearance helped to give you a certain advantage over your sister, in Jim's opinion,—although in principle I don't approve it as a purported noble gesture. It was childish and corny, quite the reverse of sane sound facing-up to threat of trials and tribulations.

Time to Conquer Childish Fears

THE average man's vanity is his Achilles heel where women are concerned. And the fact that you went to such lengths and pains to offer Jim happiness on a silver platter, before he'd asked anything of the kind, is tremendously touching to him, I'm sure. Your sister's elopement, on the other hand, must have been a kick in the teeth to his ego. So maybe you've stolen the inside track from her unwittingly.

Also the fact that you've produced a child of Jim's would further tend to endear you to him, provided he'd been sincerely fond of you before, and I gather he was. As for being afraid to resume marriage with him, I think the greatest obstacle to success is in your own mind,—in a nebulous inferiority complex that you've got to outgrow. Jim's offer gives you opportunity to make a start in that direction and my advice is: Go ahead.

What Children Are Reading

Scientific Fiction Startles But Sawyer's Still a Stand-by

By Peggy Preston

Children, the reactionary little rascals, have not noticeably changed their reading tastes in the last 100 years.

That's the opinion of a member of the staff of Washington's Public Library, who claims that children's classical books remain the favorites, year in and year out. New stories for youngsters continue to flood the market and many are popular. But what are the volumes most frequently asked for over a given period?

Why it's carefree Tom Sawyer and his pal, Huck Finn; the incomparable Mother Goose and the fairy tales of Grimm; little Pinocchio; the "Adventures of Robinson Crusoe," and "Little Women" of Louisa May Alcott that are the best eye-wideners.

Not the Covers

The formats change but not the subject matter. This year, the spokesman pointed out, there has been a large increase in new editions of the classics. Attractive bindings and new illustrations are constantly being used to dress up these old favorites which children clamor for even in old wrappings.

During the war there was great demand for books on the subject, the librarian explained. But no sooner had hostilities ended than the children lost interest. This sudden reaction caught publishers and librarians by surprise and the result has been that many new books with war background are neglected on the shelves.

Children appear to be reverting to their old love of pseudo-scientific stories and adventures. One of the new books which the Washington Library believes will replace the war stories is "21 Balloons," which follows the Jules Verne pattern.

They Go for Pictures

Remarkable strides have been made in the picture book field. Sound craftsmen have been put to work on the illustrations which several years ago were done by inferior artists.

Some of the best examples of this type of books at the Public Library are "Trucks At Work" with illustrations by Ursula Koering; and "Oley, the Sea Monster."

Only modern Mother Goose edition to catch the children's attention is the "Tall Mother Goose" which came out several years ago. But so far no artist has succeeded in producing a more popular series than England's nineteenth century Leslie Brooke. His winning figures of The Three Bears, Simple Simon and all the others still have first claim to the affections of children.

Boys Like Wheels

Books of mechanical interest continue to be of interest to boys. Years ago they avidly read stories of the first locomotives. Then came automobiles. For the past 20 years the romance of the airplane has held top place in its field. Newest volumes on this subject at the Public Library include "How Planes Get There," and "Sky Roads."

Tales of adventure in far-off lands captivate the interest of both boys and girls at this time of year. One of the new books they are showing a marked preference for is "On Safari" by Waldeck, which tells of exploration in Africa.

During the last school term the Library received many requests for books on the United Nations. The need is for simple, explanatory reading matter and so far officials have found only two good examples of this style. They recommend Fisher's "You and the United Nations;" and "How the United Nations Work" for those in the 11 to 13-year-old age group. The former contains some excellent diagrams and would make good adult reading material.

Free State to the Vatican.

In this, his first diplomatic post, George Garrett, Washington resident partner of a New York brokerage firm, says, "I plan to be a Minister of good will."

For Mrs. Garrett it couldn't have been a happier appointment. An expert rider, she's also a fox hunter. "It's like a dream come true," she told friends just before she sailed. "Ireland is the best fox-hunting country in the world."

SENATOR MILLARD TYDINGS, who had been aboard the Sea Cloud, former Ambassador and Mrs. Joseph Davies' yacht in Bermuda, has returned to Washington. Mrs. Tydings is staying a bit longer with her father and stepmother while Mr. Davies continues to make gains after a critical illness.

The Sea Cloud has been anchored in Hamilton Harbor for three weeks, in fact ever since Mr. Davies' illness. Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Chace of New York, who were also guests of the Davies, returned home on Tuesday.

TOWN TOPICS:

Washington won't have opportunity to see the calisthenics performance of the 62 members of Czechoslovakia's famous "sokol," who will arrive on Tuesday. The group will go instead to Belcamp, Md., a Czech village established by Beta, noted Czechoslovakian shoe manufacturer. On a tour of Czech centers in this country, the sokol have visited Chicago and will sail July 20 for home.

On Tuesday the Ambassador of Czechoslovakia and Mme. Slavic will entertain at a reception at the Embassy in honor of their countrymen.

The only reason Juan Heurtematte, Commercial Counselor of the Panama Embassy, wasn't present at the wedding of his cousin, Robert, in Miami, was that he wasn't told about it until after it happened

Juan and Robert Huertematte grew up together, are as close as any brothers could be, in fact, are often taken for brothers. Robert and Bette Dare Gibson staged a quiet ceremony, July 1, not letting anyone in on their plans. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Holbrook Gibson of Newport, and the late Captain Gibson, USN. She attended Kendall Hall in New Hampshire and Senor Huertematte is a graduate of Yale. They'll live in Panama City.

an interview yesterday in the Blair House.

National Suffrage Is Goal

"Peruvian women can vote in municipal elections," she said. "In fact, we have two feminine mayors. Eventually our women will obtain national suffrage—there's a strong feminist movement underway to get it."

She pointed out that more and more women are studying law, pharmacy, medicine and the other professions. "Slowly the custom is changing," she said. "In the old days no high social class or even middle class woman could work. Now both do whenever they like. However, a few of the older people object to their daughters holding jobs."

Alert, friendly Senora Garcia Sayan married early and didn't take a fling at a career. But if she had chosen one—law would have been it.

Your Questions On Homemaking

How can I get rid of tiny black ants which come into my house in droves? Their appearance is similar to that of the small red ant. L. A. D.

These tiny black and red ants are very hard to control. It's almost impossible to find and destroy their nests as they usually build within the walls of houses. There are several ways to combat them, but you may have to try them all before you get rid of the ants.

A new insecticide known as "chlordane" is reported effective in killing them. Several commercial preparations now on the market contain this chemical. Ask your dealer about them. Exercise care in using this type of insecticide. It has not been fully tested for its possible effect on children.

Another way to fight these little black ants is with a residual spray of 5 per cent DDT solution. Apply it extensively on surfaces where the ants may run and in places where they may hide. There are also several ant powders that may prove effective. Most of them contain either pyrethrum, sodium fluoride or DDT. You also might try an ant bait containing arsenic. Remember to be careful with this preparation, as it is poisonus to humans and animals.

Will you tell me how to remove oil paint from canvas chairs? D. D. S.

Scrape off as much of the paint as possible before using a remover. Then rub lard, vaseline, or oil into both sides of the stain. Let it remain long enough to soften the paint, then sponge thoroughly with pure turpentine.

What will remove a peach stain on a blue chambray dress? The stain has been on the dress since last summer. I tried to take it out with lemon juice and have laundered the dress several times, but the stain remains. W. F.

Make a solution of 1 tablespoonful of hydrogen peroxide to 2 quarts of water. Test the solution on a hidden part of the dress to be sure it will not remove the blue color. If it doesn't, soak the stains for one-half hour, or longer if necessary. Rinse twice.

That's frozen roasted chicken Mrs. Marguerite Bowie is buying in the frozen food department of a local chain of drive-in restaurants. When it's been well-heated in the oven, it will be ready for serving, complete with cornbread stuffing and rich, brown gravy

Frozen Food Method Provides Your Fricassee in a Flash

Remember that girl in the song who could "bake a cherry pie quick as a cat could wink its eye?"

Nowadays she can cook up the whole dinner in the same length of time, thanks to master minds in the frozen food field.

Precooked frozen foods made their advent some years ago, but it wasn't until the war's end that they really began going places. Now stores are selling complete meals, pre-cooked and frozen, that can be heated and served in a jiffy. Many other miscellaneous precooked dishes are on the market. And housewives are putting home-cooked foods away in freezer lockers ready to use next winter at a moment's notice.

Chain Store in Business

One of the latest firms to go into the business of selling frozen, cooked food is a large local chain of drive-in restaurants. Two of their shops now have frozen food departments where you can buy frozen baked chicken or turkey (complete with stuffing and gravy), frozen cakes and pies, and other items cooked in the restaurant's kitchens.

Several Washington food stores are featuring the ready-cooked frozen dinner in a compartmented plate of plastic. It consists of a meat and two vegetables and sells at prices ranging from 69c to $1.75. All you have to do is take it home and pop it in the oven for awhile. There are 20 different types of meat on the menus for these dinners.

If you're giving a party, you can buy frozen hors d'oeuvres—really fancy ones. A short thaw and they're ready for your guests. Then, too, there are frozen hot tamales, French fried onions, potato puffs, and many other dishes.

Food Containing Iron

If someone in the family requires more iron in his or her system it is well to know the foods containing this valuable vitamin. They are beef, eggs, milk, barley flour or cereal, cornmeal, oatmeal, rice, wheat flour, beans, cabbage, sweet corn, peas, spinach, turnips, apples, lettuce, dried prunes and raisins. Include them in your menu.

Market Memo
By Lucia Brown

MORE delicious, pink-meated cantelopes from tidewater Virginia and Maryland are arriving here now. The same goes for their California cousins . . . smooth, pale-green honeydews. Watermelons are sweeter . . . later, riper gatherings from the Georgia patches.

There's been a price drop on stringless green beans. Bananas are down in price, too . . . coming in greater quantity from the Carribean countries. New crop potatoes are here from nearby fields . . . still slightly higher than old crop spuds.

Have you noticed what a bargain crabs are now? Two to three dollars a bushel less than last year . . . and prices on lump, regular, and claw crab meat have dropped accordingly. Plenty of frying chickens, smoked pork, and luncheon meat around . . . but most other meats scarce. The price of eggs has risen, keeping pace with meat.

BUT HERE'S A HAPPY NOTE: Soap powder prices have taken a tumble. . . and other laundry soaps are cheaper. Cooking and salad oil were in the bargain bracket this week, too . . . at least, compared with many weeks past.

A Bit of Imagination

The housewife will think up almost anything to make for improvement in the furnishings of her home. The same thing applies to cooking. A little imagination and thought when putting food together make for very interesting dishes.

Brookings Entertain At "Open House"

MAJ. AND MRS. WALTER DuBOIS BROOKINGS kept "open house" yesterday afternoon at Menokin, their home in Seminary Hill, Alexandria.

The occasion was to celebrate the family reunion at Major and Mrs. Brookings' home. Assisting in receiving were Mrs. Walter Curtis Inrie of Fairlington, Va., daughter of the hosts, and their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Robert Somers Brookings 2d, who recently moved to Alexandria from Newport, R. I.

With Major and Mrs. Brookings for a visit are Major Brookings' sister, Mrs. George S. Henry of Hollywood, Calif., and their youngest son, H. N. Kinney Brookings of Shreveport, La., with Mrs. Brookings and their 11-month-old daughter, Deborah DuBois Brookings.

In Bridal Procession

Making their home in Washington following a honeymoon trip to Florida and Cuba are Mr. and Mrs. Martin Goldberg, who were married here on June 8. The bride is the former Miss Adele Bressler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Bressler, this city, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Goldberg, also of Washington. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Isadore Feldman and Rabbi Zemach Green officiated.

The bride wore an afternoon dress of pink crepe with pink and white accessories and carried white orchids on a Bible. Eugene Lewis served his brother-in-law as best man.

Mrs. Goldberg attended George Washington University and is a member of Sigma Pi Sigma sorority. Her husband, a member of Upsilon Lambda Phi, served three years with the Army Air Forces.

Petellat—Tacey

Miss Mildred Elizabeth Tacey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Tacey, Lorton, Va., was married June 26 to Harvey Ernest Petellat, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose J. Petellat, Occoquan, Va. The wedding took place in the Methodist Church of Occoquan, the Rev. Oscar B. Goode officiating.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a gown of white lace with fitted bodice and short train. Her finger-tip veil fell from a tiara of orange blossoms and she wore a strand of pearls, gift of the bridegroom. She carried a white Bible overlaid with an orchid.

Miss Mary Petellat, maid of honor, was costumed in orchid marquisette. The bridesmaids, Mrs. William M. Jones, Mrs. Francis F. Tacey, Mrs. Raymond D. Clifton and Mrs. Marshall Tacey, jr., were in pink and green marquisette. All wore matching hats.

Howard Petellat was his brother's best man and James L. Tacey, Charles Petellat, Marshall B. Tacey, jr., and Earl De Young served as ushers.

A reception followed at the home of the bridegrom's parents.

Do you know WHAT THEY'RE SAYING about the Famous, the Notorious, the Great, the Near-Great of WASHINGTON SOCIETY?

MARY VAN RENSSELAER THAYER will give you the kind of intimate, personal, inside picture that you could obtain for yourself only by being omnipresent wherever tales are told over teacups and cocktails.

The society life of Washington and of the great capitals and society centers of America and Europe is alive with more excitement than meets the eye—but not more than meets the eye of Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer.

One of America's foremost woman reporters, she has written for the World Telegram, the New York Herald Tribune, the New York Journal, the New York Times, King Features, Vogue, Ladies Home Journal, International News Service, North American Newspaper Alliance, Town and Country, Woman's Home Companion, Fortune, Mercury, Coronet, Harper's Bazaar. What she wrote about Mrs. Wellington Koo got one of her books suppressed. What she said about some of our efforts in South America has gone into the archives.

Now, she is writing a sparkling new column for The Washington Post, a column that is filled with real insight into Washington Society. You will know why Capital cocktail lounges so often furnish world-shaking political news; why the lives, loves, disappointments, hopes and dreams of charming men and lovely ladies are both important and exciting. You'll know what they're saying about Washington Society when you read Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer in The Washington Post five days a week.

Truman Advised by Friend to Keep France's Portrait of Franklin for Inspiration Value

By Drew Pearson

A friend visiting President Truman recently remarked on a portrait of Benjamin Franklin over the door of his study. The President, who has got himself into quite a controversy with art critics over his condemnation of the State Department's modern art exhibit, looked at the portrait appraisingly and explained.

De Gaulle

"De Gaulle sent it to me. Probably he took it from some French art collection and I suppose it really ought to go back to a Paris museum where the French people could enjoy it. Must be worth $100,000. A woman who was in love with Franklin in Paris had it painted while he was Ambassador there."

"Mr. President," replied the friend—and he happened to be a friend who had known the President well before he became President—"Franklin was not only a great man, but a very human man. When you look up at that portrait I know that some of his qualities will be passed on to you and the American people will be the better for it. So don't send it back to a French museum."

'House on R St.'

Believe it or not, but John Monroe, famous "man in the red house on R st.," who entertained admirals, generals and Senators to help get war contracts, is back at work lobbying at almost the same old stand.

Three years ago this column revealed the amazing manner in which Mr. Monroe was able to inveigle big shots into his drawing room, even including Secretary of the Navy Knox, thereby impressing war contractors with the wires he could pull in Washington.

Following this revelation, Mr. Monroe sued this column for one million dollars, lost his suit after the jury was out only 20 minutes, and some time later was convicted of black marketeering. He was sentenced to two years in jail. However, he is still out on appeal, and while justice grinds slowly, Monroe is making the most of the delay by opening another Washington office under the imposing name, "Advice, Inc."

Advice, Inc., is located in one of the Capital's respectable, but somewhat tarnished residential districts, now made less fashionable by the westward sweep of the city. This time Monroe has moved up a couple of letters in the alphabet from R to N st. and has converted his rented house into a dignified, somewhat stuffy office, furnished with well-worn antiques.

Monroe has also taken out a certificate of incorporation which gives his firm these high-sounding functions: "To act as consultants on all business matters; to act as consultants on legal matters; to engage in research and development; to engage as consultant to townships, cities, municipalities and States; to act as manufacturers' sales representatives; to represent chambers of commerce and any and all other business organizations; to represent banks and insurance companies."

In fact, there is almost nobody that Monroe and his associates do not represent themselves as able to represent.

Expansive Mr. Monroe

When an investigator for this column called at the office of Advice, Inc., he was met by a gentleman who explained "my name doesn't matter," but who turned out to be Mr. Monroe himself.

Mr. Monroe then explained that his firm conducted business mostly with foreign governments (he once tried to sell rifles to the Dominican Republic and Greece); that the firm occupied three buildings in Washington (he avoided giving their addresses); that it employed a staff of 117, mostly experts (two stenographers were the only staff in evidence); and that this was an old-established firm founded 12 years ago (the certificate of incorporation shows it was founded May 31, 1945).

Monroe named as president of the firm, Col. Harry Cooper, former provost marshal of the India-Burma theater under General Stilwell. The certificate of incorporation, however, shows that three trustees are authorized to manage the company: John Monroe, Melvin T. Kane of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Edward T. Buxton of Washington.

When a subsequent interview was arranged with Meyer T. Sawyer, the lawyer who signed the incorporation certificate, Harry Cooper, having been tipped off by Sawyer, in advance, was eagerly sitting in Sawyer's office awaiting the investigator. Obviously, the members of Advice, Inc., were getting worried at the possibility of publicity. In fact, Colonel Cooper was fuming.

"What is behind this investigation?" he stormed. "If you're not careful I'll turn you over to the FBI."

"There's no law against asking questions," replied the investigator.

Mr. Cooper, who once worked for the Secret Service, and knew better than to attempt intimidation, agreed that that was right. He then calmed down, but remained highly uncommunicative. Asked what job the famous John Monroe occupied with the firm, Cooper replied:

"He's only a salesman. His standing with the company is very insignificant."

Apparently Colonel Cooper forgot that Monroe is listed as one of the three "trustees" authorized to manage Advice, Inc.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

The Bridge Deck

By Florence Osborn

The correct opening lead by the West defender won against all but one declarer when today's three no-trump deal was played in a duplicate game.

Today's Hand

EAST DEALER

	♠ 9 2 ♡ K 7 3 ◇ Q 9 5 3 ♣ 7 5 3 2
♠ Q 4 3 ♡ 9 6 5 4 ◇ 6 4 2 ♣ J 9 4	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠ A 10 8 6 ♡ 5 ♡ J 8 2 ◇ A 8 ♣ K 10 8
	♠ K J 7 ♡ A Q 10 ◇ K J 10 7 ♣ A Q 6

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ♠	Dble	Pass	2 ◇
Pass	3 NT	Pass	Pass Pass

Opening lead: 3 ♠.

If West opens the queen of spades, his partner's suit, declarer has two spade stoppers and he can establish his diamond suit and win game before his second spade stopper is forced out.

Only one declarer played carefully enough to make game after the lead of the spade three. When East returned the spade six at trick two South paused to consider West's original spade holding before playing. It seemed West started with four spades, or three, including the queen.

Declarer realized that if West started with four he could finesse the jack with safety for even if it lost he would lose only three spades and a diamond. If West originally had three to the queen the finesse would cost him his contract.

South therefore went up with the king on the second spade lead and now couldn't lose. A diamond lead went to East's ace and then a spade return was taken by West's queen, but West had no spade to continue. Declarer won the return and finessed the club queen to make game, winning a spade, three hearts, three diamonds and two clubs, losing two spades, a diamond and a club.

Best Meal

A hearty breakfast gives me pep . . . And sends me on my way . . . Prepared to do a bang-up job . . . Throughout the working day . . . I like my lunch because I rest . . . While I am eating it . . . And usually my friends are there . . . With merriment and wit . . . And then there is the evening meal . . . That means so much to me . . . Because it is the hour to . . . Enjoy family . . . But as for tastiness . . . That I have or lack . . . The satisfying bite . . . Of the midnight snack chicken, milk and ve . . . Upon the frigid . . . When I decide to make a raid . . . To fill my hungry self.
